Litigation of cable possible

NEWTON — The Cable TV Advisory Commission's selection of three cable companies Thursday night for recommendation to Mayor Theodore Mann may be clouded by the possibility of litigation.

The three companies to be recommended are Warner Amex, Continental and Teleprompter.

These three companies and one other, American, all offered sizable inducements to the city to meet a selection criterion established by the commission and included in the request for proposals issued by the mayor called "in-kind benefits (such as providing building space for the library)."

James Salter of Newton MetroVision had questioned the legality of such inducements offered by the four companies when the commission met last Saturday.

Salter said Thursday night MetroVision will appeal to the Massachusetts Cable Television Commission, asking an advisory opinion on the "in kind benefits."

The city should wait until an opinion is rendered before awarding a license, Salter said.

He also indicated that he may seek a restraining order to prevent the mayor from awarding a license.

The opinion to be sought from the state cable commission is on the "legal and ethical aspects of gift giving," Salter said.

Newton MetroVision, of which Salter is the president, did not consider offering any special inducements, even though with the backing of the Newhouse communications chain it would have been able to' Salter said' because he considers the inducements akin to bribes.

His company offered the lowest-cost service to subscribers, he said, and considers that the proper kind of benefit.

Newton MetroVision received only two votes in the selection process.

Last Saturday some questions had apparently arisen in the minds of some commission members as well, and the commission asked for legal advice from the state cable commission.

The legal opinion, delivered Thursday night by Kenneth Spiegel, a state cable commission lawyer, did not answer the questions, which included whether the commission could take the gifts into consideration when evaluating the companies.

The extras offered to the city were a $250,000 media center for the library with a $50,000 annual budget, from Continental; an $800,000 nonprofit corporation for the library and extra studio facilities and equipment, from Warner; an estimated $1.5 million for a foundation from Teleprompter; and a $350,000 corporation for local television from American. These amounts would be reached over the 15-year term of the license.

Spiegel said "in kind benefits" could include charitable organizations with or without a specific purpose and special studio facilities. He did not say there cannot be other types of in-kind benefits.

The large-scale inducements have never before in Massachusetts been offered to the extent to which they are offered to Newton, Spiegel said. He knows only of "luxury model" studios, he said, which are the typical "gravy" kind of things offered.

Spiegel said one problem of the gifts is that the subscriber pays in the long run, and the commission should consider whether it wants cable subscribers to pay for something that will benefit the whole city.

Commission member Alvin Hartman disagreed. The price has been driven down by competition for a good market, he said, and asked that Spiegel confine his remarks to points of law. "I'm not interested in philosophy," he said.

"My limited research," Spiegel replied, "did not show in-kind benefits to be prohibited on the state or local level. This is in general. I'm not here to say that A, B, C, or D are not objectionable. I'm not dealing with specific benefits."

Spiegel explained that the head of the state cable commission and the second in command are both on vacation and that he had not had time to do exhaustive research in the short time since he received the request from the Newton commission Monday.

Ald. Paul Coletti, a member of the commission, asked, "Has anyone ever felt aggrieved by the benefits?"

"There has been no appeal in the year and one-half I've worked there from an unsuccessful applicant on any basis. That's not to say it might not happen," Spiegel replied.

On the benefits, Hartman said, "These were unsolicited."

And Spiegel concluded his comments on benefits by saying, "That's not to say they (specific benefits) might not be illegal."

The voting procedure allowed every cable commission member three votes. Continental received the most votes, followed by Warner and Teleprompter.

Chairman Martin Alpert will submit a formal report to Mayor Mann by April 4.

Some changes seen after police audit

NEWTON — An audit of police salary accounts due in the next two weeks will not point to major problems, according to Comptroller Lawrence Marino, but will recommend some changes.

Marino was asked to look at the books by Alderman Richard McGrath after copies of court-time records of police officers surfaced last month that pointed to discrepancies.

Some officers who worked overtime were paid from an account for courtroom time, the records suggested.

Marino would not go into detail but said his report would recommend a few more controls on court time' and not because someone has been dishonest.

The potential for abuse is "small," according to Marino, who said the recommended changes will attempt to eliminate the possibility of dishonesty.

McGrath, who called for the probe, seems pleased with the course of the audit. "There were instances of unusual court time . . . ", he said, " but I think this will correct the problem."

Newtonville nixes Walnut St. plan

NEWTONVILLE — The Newtonville Advisory Committee for the community development program voted overwhelmingly last week not to allow the narrowing of Walnut Street in Newtonville Square.

The vote overturns a decision made in early winter that approved the narrowing, as proposed by the architects engaged for the Newtonville Square plans.

Since the plan to narrow Walnut Street was announced, business people suddenly understood what was being proposed and began to oppose the narrowing.

According to Ald. Elaine Gentile, a member of the advisory committee, the vote against the narrowing of Walnut Street was 10-0.

The plans will proceed to create the two "focal points" of Newtonville Square — one at the corner of Walnut and Austin Streets, where there will be a bus shelter and meeting place, and the other in front of the Newton branch library, where there will be benches'

Plans for improving the Austin Street parking lot behind the Walnut Street stores will also be held in abeyance, Gentile said, until the idea of a deck over the existing parking lot has been fully explored.

The idea of narrowing Walnut Street was advanced as a way of introducing landscaping and trees onto the street and to decrease the speed of the traffic through the square.

Business people began to oppose the narrowing as they learned about it because they were afraid the double parking currently plaguing the square would continue and choke off access for shopping.

The tree planting has also been delayed, according to Gentile, although she said there is a way to put in some trees without the widening of the sidewalks.

Improvement of the passageways between the parking lot and Walnut Street will be kept in the improvement plan.

The vote against the narrowing of Walnut Street is expected to be approved by the aldermanic Public Safety & Transportation Committee April 14.

Library management under fire

NEWTON — Library critic O. Andrews Ferguson charged last week that the library is a "closed system" as far as public input goes, and said he wants to see that situation changed.

He was particularly critical of the composition of the advisory committee working with a consultant hired under a federal grant to do a library-community analysis. The committee has since been enlarged to include more than library staff.

According to Human Services Committee Chairman Carol Ann Shea, the advisory committee hopes to have information in June from surveys being conducted. A public meeting will be held in May.

Ald. Rodney Barker was incensed that the committee is waiting until near the end of the information-gathering process to obtain public comment on the library system and its needs.

Acting on a suggestion by Ald. Lisle Baker, the committee will ask the Library Trustees to hold up on the information gathering until the public has had a chance to suggest some of the information the consultants should be collecting.

Shea will ask for a response to that point before the next meeting of the Board of Aldermen April 7, indicating to the trustees that if the response is inadequate the aldermen may well convert the request to a resolution of the Board of Aldermen.

Ferguson has a list of 21 questions to pose to the Library Trustees on the management and operation of the library system he would like to have answered. The subjects range from minor improvements in service to the pervasive criticism that the public is excluded from any role in setting library policies.

The Human Services Committee is acting as the mediator between Ferguson and the Library Director Virginia Tashjian and the Board of Library Trustees.

To Ferguson's suggestion that the library director be hired on a year-to-year basis, Shea responded that each year at budget time "substantive discussion" takes place about the director and the management of the library, and in the long run the control resides in the Board of Aldermen, which may eliminate the salary for the position.

Ferguson believes that the director should not act as secretary to the Board of Trustees, that there should be meetings of the trustees scheduled for public comment and that public comment should be allowed at all their meetings, and that the trustees should publicize controversial votes taken in the absence of press representatives.

All these suggestions received approval of the committee and will be forwarded to the trustees, along with another suggestion — that the trustees' meetings be scheduled at a more convenient time for the public than 6:30 p.m., their present starting time' in order to encourage public attendance.

Action!

OAK HILL — For years, the historic Bigelow House sat on its majestic hill, folorn and abandoned, the target of vandals.

Today, it is a star.

In a coup of sorts, the city and its historical preservers, with the help of WGBH-TV and the Mutual Bank for Savings, have combined forces to redo the Bigelow House, turning it into condominiums and making it the subject of the next "This Old House" segment of Channel 2's emmy-winning series.

Renovating a house and creating a television program at the same time is a dual challenge. How do you rehearse construction?

Here's one day in the saga of Bigelow House.

One of the first segments being taped is inside a portion of the stable area, which is going to miraculously become a kitchen and dining area for one of the five condominiums being built.

The small room where the lights are set up could still pass for a stable, prompting one member of the crew to remark "Can you imagine eating in here with that smell?"

Nevertheless, the room was most likely chosen for the tapingbecause renovations had not yet started, enabling host Bob Vila and architect John Gifford (of Design Associates of Nantucket which has been commissioned to design the units) to discuss the "before" as well as the "after."

They start doing the run-throughs before the actual taping starts, with Vila, Gifford and the crew taking their cues from producer-director Russ Morash, whose voice comes booming into the room over a loudspeaker. Morash is sitting in the WGBH truck parked outside the house, watching the run-throughs on a small television screen so that he can get an idea of what the end result will look like.

Finally, the scene is taped, and it really isn't too much different from the practice scenes. It starts with Vila and Gifford walking into the room, both wearing raincoats and other ap-

Future of Pomroy House is a concern for many

NEWTON CORNER — This neighborhood is already divided over the future of the Pomroy House, which is almost certain to be sold by the Newton Community Service Centers Inc. whether or not the NCSC is allowed to buy the Davis School in West Newton.

One neighborhood group, the Newton Corner Neighborhood Association, wants to try to keep the status quo and find another nonprofit agency to take over the large building at Eldredge and Church Streets for day care and after-school care programs.

The Newton Corner Community Development Corporation, all of whose members belong to the neighborhood association, has applied to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for funding for a congregate-housing facility for 20 elderly persons to be located in the Pomroy House.

And both these groups oppose a proposal by Ald. Terry Morris, chairman of the aldermanic Land Use Committee, that the NCSC give Pomroy House to the city in exchange for the Davis School.

According to Glenn Morris, chairman of the Community Development Corporation (CDC), the chairman of the Land Use Committee wants to see conversion of the Pomroy House to housing for low-income families to satisfy the ordinance requiring developers to provide 10 percent of their new units for subsidized housing.

There seems to be little chance of finding a buyer for the property, such as another social-service agency, that could afford to fix up the building and continue to operate the programs now provided by the NCSC.

If NCSC is successful in getting the Davis School it would sell the 80-year-old Pomroy House because of the work needed on the heating system and other repairs needed as well as the cost of upkeep.

It operates an after-school and vacation program for school-age children; drama, sewing and crafts activities for children; a dance program; adult cooking and sewing classes; a mothers' club; and a Friday afternoon program for senior citizens.

The activities would be transferred to the Davis School if the Pomroy House is sold, although a member of the NCSC said publicly recently the organization is considering staffing a child-care program at a church in the area.

The congregate housing, according to Glenn Morris, would be a joint venture among the Newton Corner CDC, the Cooperative Metropolian Ministries, and an already established group, Cooperative Living of Newton.

Under the plan submitted to HUD, the resulting organization, called Community Housing Programs, would own and operate the housing, with contracts with the CDC and Cooperative Living of Newton. The latter would provide the requisite social services to the tenants, including preparation of one meal a day.

Morris, an architect, says the Pomroy House could be converted into housing for 20 people. Each unit would have a bed-sitting room, kitchenette and bath. There would be a common dining room and sitting rooms.

Morris said HUD has funds for 103 percent of the cost of such projects. The housing would be for people from 62 years old to the age at which they would have to enter a nursing home. Half the units would be subsidized for low-income elderly tenants.

The total cost, including the purchase of the Pomroy House, Morris said, has been pegged at about $820,000' which makes a unit cost of $41,000. That figure is not beyond HUD guidelines, Morris said.

The CDC's share is mandated at $10,000, Morris said, which will be provided by that amount in architects' fees to be donated by the Cooperative Metropolitan Ministries, which has that much coming from architects employed for another project.

The word on whether the project will be funded by HUD should be forthcoming during June, Morris said, which creates something of a problem in timing for the Newton Community Service Centers' plans for Davis.

One reason for selling the Pomroy House, aside from its maintenance and repair costs, is to raise some money for renovations at the Davis School for NCSC use of that building. The NCSC headquarters building on Cherry Street would also be sold for renovation money, estimated by NCSC at $250,000.

If NCSC gives the Pomroy House to the city it will not have enough money to fix up the Davis School.

The purchase of the Davis School has been approved by the aldermanic Administration & Planning Committee. It must go next to the Land Use Committee and then for a determination of minimum price to the Finance Committee.

Finally the mayor has the decision on the sale. He may negotiate the sale price up, but may not sell it for less the minimum price approved by the Board of Aldermen.

Davis School will be closed at the end of this school year.

No smoking areas asked

NEWTON — Local restaurants will be asked to designate certain areas in their establishments "no-smoking areas", according to a resolution approved last week by an aldermanic committee.

The resolution, introduced by Ald. Edward Richmond, directs the Board of Licensing Commissioners to discuss the implementation of the no-smoking areas with restaurants between now and the end of the year to try to gain voluntary compliance.

If compliance is not good, Richmond said, the Board of Aldermen should consider further steps.

Smoking is prohibited in supermarkets, state law elevators, and MBTA public transportation vehicles by and is restricted to designated areas in certain public buildings. areas

Richmond noted that no-smoking are set aside in three Newton restaurants and four ice-cream stores.

Cynthia Ferguson of the American Lung Association of Boston said the state organization is starting a campaign directed toward restaurants this year.

The restaurant industry is strongly opposed to non-smoking areas, Ferguson said, even though several polls taken have shown that smokers and nonsmokers alike favor a restricted area.

The nonsmokers want to get away from the smoke and the smokers want a place where they can feel comfortable about smoking without disturbing nonsmokers, Ferguson said.

Only 35 percent of adults smoke, according to Lung Association statistics. Ferguson also presented statistics representing that 34 million people in this country are allergic to smoke. "Secondhand smoke" that comes off the end of a cigarette burning and not being drawn on has a higher tar and nicotine content than the smoke inhaled, according to the Lung Association.

The designation of nonsmoking areas does not entail large construction or expensive air-conditioning equipment, Ferguson said. The Lung Association will help restaurant owners plan the areas, she said.

New recovery plant site chosen

The 128 West Resource Recovery Council (WRRC) has chosen Plainville as the preferred site for a resource recovery plant, a shift away from the former preferred site in Stoughton.

The WRRC represents Newton, Waltham, Weston and Watertown among its member communities.

Plainville was chosen as the preferred site for a recovery plant and landfill on the condition that Clean Communities Corp. designate its 17-acre site and landfill to the 128 WRRC project and the developer chosen by the council.

The council has also asked the Commonwealth to acquire the Plainville site for council use, and has directed its negotiating committee to negotiate an interim landfill contract with Clean Communities Corp. for presentation to communities that make up the WRRC.

Newton WRRC representative David Jackson has urged other representatives to secure the support of their local officials for the speedy acquisition of the site for the recovery plant, commitments for interim disposal contracts and the selection of a contractor to build the facility.

Stoughton voters will decide through an April 7 binding referendum whether there should be a recovery facility in that town.

Clean Communities Corporation offered their Plainville site as the preferred location, and use of an adjacent landfill in excess of 200 acres for interim dumping until the proposed recovery plant is operating. Then the landfill would be used for residue from the plant and as a back-up landfill.

The corporation has offered for sale to the state for the use of the WRRC the 17-acre site for the recovery plant and the associated landfill rights.

Convicted man escapes, surrenders

NEWTON — A Dorchester man who escaped from the cellblock at police headquarters Monday surrendered at Newton District Court Wednesday morning and was promptly arraigned on a charge of escape.

Paul Personeni, 20, of 118 Milton Ave. was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction Monday, and he was taken to the cellblock downstairs in the courthouse. His shouting there, however, disrupted court proceedings, so he was taken to the police cellblock to await transportation to Billerica.

There Personeni was able to remove a bar in his cell which had been cut with jeweler's wire in an escape two years ago.

He then slipped a lock on the cellblock door and went out the back door of the police station.

Personeni surrendered to the court Wednesday morning and he will now serve the three-month sentence imposed Monday. When he imposed that sentence, Judge Monte Basbas said he would review it after 30 days and consider suspending the balance.

A trial date on the escape charge was set for April 14.

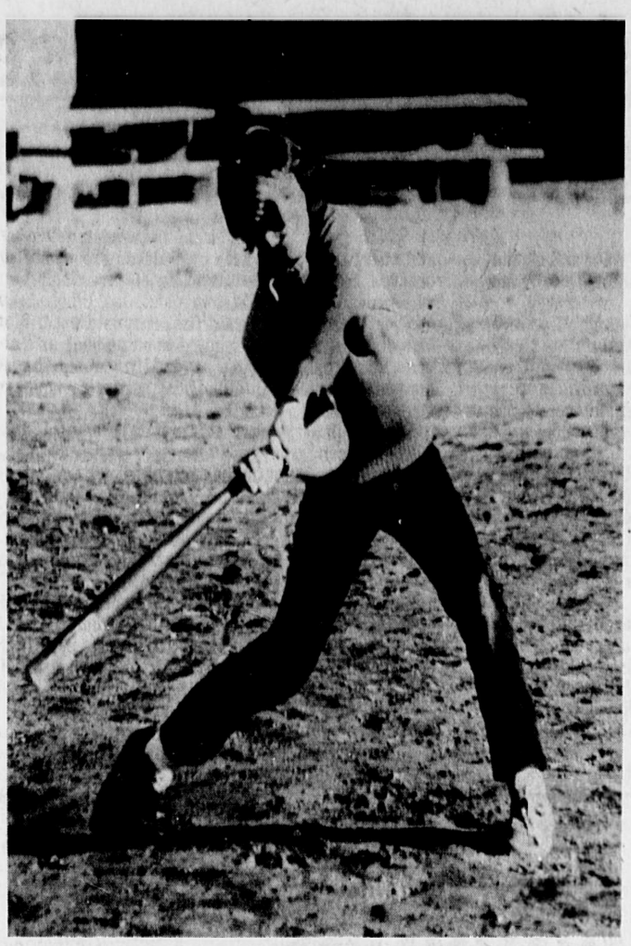

Personeni was convicted of harassment by telephone in Newton District Court March 4. At that time Judge Basbas placed him on probation for one year and as a condition of that probation Personeni was ordered to have no contact with the complainant, a Natick woman whom Personeni reportedly harassed over the telephone at her place of employment in Newton.

On March 27 Personeni was convicted in Natick District Court of possession of a dangerous weapon, possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, failure to stop for a police officer, leaving the scene of an accident after causing property damage and operating to endanger. He was given two concurrent three-month sentences, which he appealed.

Two charges of assault with a dangerous weapon, a car, were dismissed. All the charges in Natick stem from an incident in which Personeni was following the same woman and was stopped by police. He reportedly tried to run down a police officer and sideswiped a parked car before he was arrested.

At a surrender hearing in the Newton court Monday Judge Basbas found that Personeni had violated the conditions of his probation and imposed the three-month sentence.

At the arraignment on the escape charge Wednesday, Personeni's attorney John Salsberg asked Judge consider allowing the defendant to serve his sentence Basbas to on weekends and said he will file a motion to revoke and revise the sentence.

Upstart bus idea fails; schools to aid new plan

NEWTON — The Upstart bus, an experiment in weekend-night and Sunday public transportation, is a failure, according to the mayor's advisory committee on transportation, which will recommend to Mayor Theodore Mann that it be terminated April 13.

After admitting that the service was badly because conceived the teenagers and elderly it was designed to serve will not walk to a bus at night, the committee agreed to pursue a modification of the Upstart bus to serve Mt. Ida Junior College and Boston College, with funding from the two schools.

At last count, the buses were costing the city $4.70 for each passenger carried. The total cost through April 13 will have been $16,000. The bus service started last October.

The new route serving Mt. Ida and B.C. would require only one bus, which would shuttle between Mt. Ida on Dedham Street and Boston College Law School on Centre Street with a stop at the MBTA station in Newton Centre.

The bus would be available for a fare to anybody who wanted to flag it down on the route. It would run every half-hour. The two colleges have indicated a willingness to pay $100 a week each.

Representatives of the two schools will be asked to come to a meeting of the transportation committee to discuss the service further.

Another new bus service, to be operated by a private firm at no cost to the city, has been approved by the MBTA, which has the right not to allow the route if it conflicts with MBTA service.

Tentatively scheduled to begin in September, the new service will run hourly between Lake Street at Commonwealth Avenue and Auburndale Square. The route will be along Commonwealth Avenue to Centre Street to Beacon Street, then along Beacon to Washington Street, to Grove Street and the Riverside station and then to Auburndale Square and back.

A third bus, the so-called shoppers' bus, is being worked on. The Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce is soliciting subsidy money from businesses in the areas to be served by the bus, which would run from the Chestnut Hill trolley station to the Marshall's Mall in Upper falls on Needham Street, with service also to the Newton-at-128 office park on Wells Avenue.

The shoppers' bus would go into the Chestnut Hill Mall, then down Langley Road to Newton Centre, and along Centre Street to Marshall's, returning by way of Wells Avenue.

The bus service would not begin until there is enough money to operate it for one year, according to Transportation Planner David Tannozzini, and only $7000 has been committed by business so far. The Chestnut Hill Mall has offered $5000 and Marshall's Mall $2000.

The shoppers' bus is seen as a 7 a.m.-7 p.m. service running every half-hour.

Ald. Mark White, a member of the committee, objected strongly to the discontinuance of the Upstart bus and said he would fight through the budget-review process in the Board of Aldermen, which is about to start, to get some money into next year's budget for the Upstart bus.

White moved unsuccessfully to recommend to the mayor that the bus be kept in operation until June 30, the end of the fiscal year, and said he will apply some pressure to have the mayor do that.

Medicine in school supported by panel

NEWTON — School personnel should be allowed to administer routine medication to school children with parental consent and signature of a form releasing the city from liability.

That recommendation of the Human Services Committee will be sent to the Board of Aldermen for a vote April 7.

The subject of administration of medicines by nonmedical school personnel came up last fall, when parents of a child severely allergic to bee stings objected to signing a release. When they would not sign, they were told to take the medication out of school.

The policy of the School Department is to allow the school secretary or principal to dispense medication as directed by a physician. Usually this would entail a short-term course of medication, such as penicillin for a streptococcus infection.

The bee stings need immediate injections, which are not allowed to be given by non-medically trained people.

Human Services Committee Chairman Carol Ann Shea said she had found out from the state Department of Education that the state is in process of writing guidelines for bee sting emergencies. The department says routine medication may be given by secretaries.

Until guidelines are promulgated on bee sting injections, Shea said, emergency medical technicians (EMTs) may give the injections. All firefighters and some police officers are EMTs and can arrive at the scene quickly.

Shea said she has also found that there are pills to be given for bee stings to help until the injection can be given.

"We have done all we can as a committee," Shea said, in recommending that the matter be discharged.

The release form has been prepared by the Law Department and is in use by the schools.

Funding for two centers expected

NEWTON — It appears there will be funds in next year's budget for the continued operation of community centers in the former Emerson and Hamilton Elementary Schools.

Alderman Richard McGrath said the mayor's Chief Administrative Officer James Hickey told a subcommittee studying the reuse of surplus buildings that money for the centers would be included in a supplemental budget.

The fiscal year 1980 budqet has already been printed. McGrath expects the supplemental request will cover capital improvements amounting to about $100,000, and operating expenses of about $50,000.

It also appears responsibility for operation of the centers will be transferred to the Recreation Department.

The subcommittee is composed of aldermen and city department heads, and McGrath said there was general support for continued operation of the two centers.

The decision will be welcome news for supporters of the Hamilton School community center who learned last week funds for equipment, new staff and new facilities have been g frozen until the city formulates an overall policy for the reuse of school buildings.

Although that was the stated reason for formation of the subcommittee, discussion has centered on the Hamilton and Emerson centers.

McGrath said both centers operated an active community program under the aegis of the School Department before they were closed, and the mayor is concerned about the creation of other community centers in schools that close.

Both centers are the first of their type, and aldermen have argued they are special cases because they are located in geographically isolated neighborhoods, and because the services are not available elsewhere in the area.

City Treasurer Theodore Scafidi has been asked to judge the best way to finance the proposed capital improvements.

Capital improvements should mean lower fuel bills in the future. The entire Emerson School is being heated now, and the new wing at Hamilton that houses the center is being heated with boilers in the older section of the building.

McGrath doubts the subcommittee can come up with a policy for all surplus buildings; he thinks each school will have to be considered alone. But he said there may be a policy that would allow the ' center newstrib 3 continuation of services that were once provided by the School Department.

Goodwill needs donations of hard goods

Goodwill is requesting that area residents begin their spring cleaning earlier than usual this year because of an extreme shortage of hard goods. Materials are refurbished by handicapped people working in vocational rehabilitation programs and then resold in Goodwill thrift stores. Proceeds are used to pay wages and salaries of clients, workers and staff.

Dennis Midgorden, executive director, said items needed the most are dishes, pots and pans, kitchen wares, bric-a-brac, utensils, toys, games, small appliances.

Goodwill has 22 donation centers which are small trailer trucks painted bright yellow located at shopping centers north, west, south of Boston. The attendant on duty Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., will issue a receipt for tax purposes, if requested. The public should call Goodwill at 357-9710 for the location of the donation trailer in their area.

A noble experiment

The mayor's advisory committee on transportation has recommended that the Upstart bus, an experiment in providing weekend-night and Sunday public transportation, be terminated at its appointed time April 13.

We agree.

Although we have used this space before to applaud badly needed experiments in mass transit, Upstart, as was the case with the Newton-Cambridge bus, failed to attract needed ridership or interest.

Reasoning at the transportation committee's meeting was that the people Upstart was designed to serve, teenagers and the elderly, will not walk to a bus at night.

The total tab for the Upstart bus is $16,000. It breaks down to $4.70 for each individual transported. To continue to subsidize this effort would be folly.

Next on the horizon is a proposed shoppers' bus to serve the Chestnut Hill Mall, Marshall's Mall and the Newton-at-128 office park on Wells Ave.

We would advise the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce to give this idea serious consideration before funding is obtained or committed.

For example, it might be worthwhile to send a few people to the malls and survey shoppers as to where they live and whether they would use the bus if it were available.

Maybe what Newton needs at this point is a transportation consultant who could look at the overall Newton picture and make recommendations on where bus service could best be supplemented, how, and who the target ridership actually is.

A bus experiment designed to truly suit those who would be most likely to support mass transit would seem to be a better use of public or private funds than the ones we have attempted to date.

Part of the problem seems to be people, when they are presented with the concept, tend to say they would use a bus, as happened in Newton Highlands when the Highlands-Cambridge bus was proposed.

A professional, if he was to survey, would probably be in a position to know who how such questions should be phrased and what statistically is realistic in terms of a response.

Finally, let's not make a political football out of this issue. Fighting to the death to save the Upstart Bus is not the answer to our transportation problems or the failures of our experiments.

The responsible approach is to acknowledge failure and go on from there.

My Turn

In praise of cats

By ELIZABETH McKINNON

Cats are really inscrutable.

Is that why people who like cats go overboard for them, and people who don't like cats seem to be afraid of them?

I have seen grown men tremble in the presence of a cat, and I can't understand it.

Egyptians held cats to be sacred. I don't go that far, but I have to admit I find cats the perfect companions. And we once had 13 cats, including kittens, at our house.

Dogs are too much like people. They come running, too willing to please, indiscriminate in bestowing their favors — anything for a kind word or a doq biscuit.

Cats keep their distance. Before they come to you, they measure you, decide whether you're worth their sleek, self-assured selves, then brush by a leg to let you know you're accepted.

What cat ever runs to fetch anything? Is there a more stupid pastime that than throwing a stick for a dog to fetch?

What dog can settle comfortably on your lap and begin that rumbling purring that lets you know how satisfied he is?

What dog can resist its master's voice and sit and stare at you if it has decided there's really no reason to obey at this moment?

It may be the independence of cats that I admire and the slavering, fawning approach of dogs that I can't stand. And then, cats don't bark.

Aesthetically, a cat is like a piece of sculpture. I can see why the Egyptians carved statues of Cats are made to be stroked, just cats. as some pieces of sculpture are.

Although we are now down to three cats in my house, I sometimes wonder whether I will turn out to be a crazy old lady who is found dead in a house overrun with cats. (They do seem to multiply, and then you have to take in the strays that present themselves pitifully several days in a row at the back door.)

I wondered about the whole cat situation once when my daughter brought a paper home from Hyde School, one of those compulsory biographies the children had to write in about the fifth grade.

Hers began, "All my life I have lived with cats." I got an immediate picture of Anne being suckled by cats like Romulus and Remus.

Why is it always "a boy and his dog" and a girl and her cat? It's true — dogs are more "masculine," cats are more like women. Is that why some men are afraid of cats?

When I was a small child first encountering the idea of reincarnation, I wanted to come back as a lion. I'd settle for being as good a cat as the matriarch of our cat family, Daisy, who is going on 14 years old.

She was the best mother, human or animal, I have ever seen.

She took her numerous and frequent kittens out for lessons in tree-climbing, hiding in tall plants, pouncing, and learning the boundaries of our yard.

These lessons were well thought out and executed, and I could tell exactly what she was doing.

She was the terror of the neighborhood dogs, especially when she had kittens around, and the rare times when she didn't she forgot she didn't.

She would leap fearlessly onto the flanks of any dog, from a German shepherd down, that came near the house.

But please — don't think of me next time you have some spare kittens. I don't want to hear from you.

Curbing drugstore robberies

By ROBERT DRINAN

WASHINGTON, D.C. — All across the nation robberies of drug stores are increasing. These robberies keep a steady flow of illegal drugs on the street, but even more tragically they often result in the death of the pharmacist who is robbed.

Recently at a meeting of the Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, which I chair, I heard testimony from the director of the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) about an effective new program aimed at preventing such robberies. The Pharmacy Theft Prevention Program has been operating in 14 cities since 1977. In those cities, drug store robberies have decreased, while they have increased by 12 percent in the rest of the nation! This is a voluntary program, in which local police, DEA officials and local druggists work together to fight crime.

This week in the full Judiciary Committee I successfully offered an amendment to the Justice Department's authorization to help the DEA to expand the Pharmacy Theft Prevention Program to 125 major metropolitan areas, including Greater Boston.

This is a program that can work to save pharmacists' lives and cut down on drug store robberies but only if this measure gets the support it needs in the Ways and Means Committee, and in the full House.

VA Bill

Under existing law, once the Veterans Administration decides that a veteran is ineligible for benefits, that decision is final and cannot be appealed in court. Unlike the social security recipient or anyone else dealing with a federal agency, veterans are thus deprived of their constitutional right to have their dispute heard by an impartial tribunal.

Months ago I introduced legislation to correct this situation, and recently the bill gained some important support. The Senate passed its version of the same measure last fall. Here on the House side more than 40 members of Congress have joined me in sponsoring the bill, including Rep. Don Edwards (D-CA), a powerful member of the House Veteran's Affairs Committee. Now the American Bar Association and the National Legal Aid and Defenders Association have voiced support for the measure, and it has been endorsed by virtually all veteran's organizations.

We still have a long way to go, but these signs of growing support are most encouraging.

Competing for Gas

Since 1972, 100,000 small gasoline station dealers have gone out of business, many of them victims of the unfair marketing practices of the major oil companies. The various unfair trade practices of the big oil companies are continuing to put independent dealers out of business at a rate of 10 percent per year, while the major refiners double sales at their own stations.

One example of their anti-competitive practices will demonstrate this problem. Most dealers who lease brand-name stations from major companies are prohibited from buying gas from anyone but that brand name supplier, thus competition is eliminated, and both the dealer and the consumer suffer.

I have agreed to cosponsor a bill, "The Small Business Motor Fuel Marketing Preservation Act," designed to correct these abuses. The major oil companies already have a stranglehold on virtually every level of oil production and distribution. We cannot allow them to wipe out the small, independent gasoline dealers.

Social Security Increases

The Congress' budget-cutting frenzy is reaching a fever pitch. Some have even gone so far as to suggest that the scheduled cost-of-living increase for social security recipients be cut back by one-third! This cost-of-living increase is designed to help social security recipients to keep pace with inflation. While the inflation rate is currently running at about 18 percent, I think it absurd to even suggest a cut in the planned 13 percent social security increase.

While I am certain that the Congress would never approve a cut-back on the already meager benefits our elderly receive, I have joined with other members of the Aging Committee in sponsoring a resolution expressing Congressional support for the 13 percent increase. The budget should not be balanced on the backs of older Americans.

Mass transit

Green Line gets a committee

By ERNEST V. LOEWENSTEIN

In response to many complaints from citizens and public officials about service on the Green Line, which in Newton means principally the Riverside Line, MBTA Chairman Robert Foster has established a Green Line Service Committee.

The causes of the many problems with service on the trolley lines include unreliable rolling stock, neglected track, and antiquated communications and signalling systems.

None of these problems are the doing of the present administration—they are rooted in the years of neglect suffered by this and other transit systems in the United States.

During the post-World War II period nearly everyone thought that the automobile was the only means of transportation, and trolleys were for those too poor to afford automobiles. It is only in the last two years that ridership on the MBTA has begun to increase again after decades of decline.

The situation in which the MBTA now finds itself with respect to the Green Line is one of inadequate, unreliable rolling stock and an increasing demand for service on one hand and economy on the other.

The new LRV's from Boeing are a maintenance nightmare, according to a report given to the committee by Shirley DiLibero, Green Line maintenance manager.

No subsystem of the cars, be it air-conditioning or door closers, is operating properly. Some days as few as 20 cars are available for service; 37 is the minimum required for normal operation.

The cost of the LRV's is staggering. The original contract cost was $300,000 per car. Boeing claims

Boeing claims to have spent an additional $350,000 on each. Under the settlement reached last fall between Boeing and the MBTA there will be modification kits worth $200,000 installed in 100 cars. The labor cost of installing the modifications is not specified, but will be borne by the MBTA, while Boeing will provide supervisory personnel.

Even then, there is no guarantee that the cars will perform satisfactorily.

The committee also hear from Phillip Craig, Green Line manager, who spoke about the program to find a substitute vehicle for the Boeing LRV's.

Three Canadian LRV's have been delivered to the "T" and are undergoing tests. Two European companies have been asked to send trolley cars for trials here, and a Japanese firm is being considered. In any case, however, the earliest date at which new cars can be delivered is two years from now.

In the meantime, the Boeing cars will have to be maintained, no matter what the cost.

At the same time the old trolley cars are being rehabilitated in a program that was begun under a previous administration. Originally estimated at a cost of $100,000 per car, the figure has risen to an actual cost of $400,000 per car.

Part of the increase is attributable to inflation, but the greatest increase is a consequence of the fact that equipment shortages have forced the "T" to work on the rehabilitation of the worst cars rather than the best, as originally planned.

So serious is the shortage of rolling stock that anything that moves is in service and the only cars available for rehabilitation are those that should really be junked.

Twenty cars have been rebuilt so far, and federal funds are being sought for the rebuilding of 30 more, bringing the total to 50.

Future work on the Green Line Service Committee will include efforts to improve service operation, station and platform cleanliness and lighting, and the availability of public information.

Any citizen who has a problem that he or she thinks should be addressed by the committee can contact me in the evening at 244-8429.

Is democracy running amok?

Commentary by Robert Walters,
Newspaper Enterprise Assoc.

WASHINGTON (NEA) - When politicians and pundits recently were deprived of their favorite topic of conversation by the temporary collapse of both major parties' contests for the presidential nomination, they found a new subject for ceaseless discussion.

It usually appeared under the rubric of, "Isn't there a better way to select the Republican and Democratic presidential nominees?"

Those who thrived upon trading speculation and scenarios on the fates of the various Democratic and Republican contenders were understandably disturbed by the arrival of the denouement after fewer than one-third of the primaries have been held.

Westerners were upset because more than a half-dozen major candidates appeared to have been effectively eliminated from the race before any state in their region had an opportunity to conduct a primary election.

Traditionalists and party activists complained that the current emphasis on primaries — the method used this year to select convention delegates in 35 of the 50 states — gives too much influence to unsophisticated voters and not enough to veteran political leaders.

There are countless variations on that theme, with those who unsuccessfully opposed the reforms that opened up the nominating process during the past decade continuing to gripe about democracy running amok under the new system.

But those who yearn for a return to the good old days when presidential nominees presumably were selected by political bosses holding secret meetings in smoke-filled rooms might consider this question: If those "old pols" and power brokers could be convened this year to unilaterally select the two nominees, who would they choose?

The recently modified, refreshingly open selection process appears to be producing strikingly similar results. That's not necessarily salutary, but it certainly suggests that the reforms haven't destroyed many sacred political traditions.

The absence of early primaries in the West is disconcerting, but authority for scheduling those elections is vested exclusively with the states. Although a Democratic Party rule confines most primaries to a 13-week period, no other party regulation or federal law would prevent California and Oregon, for example, from advancing their primary dates by two months or more.

It should be noted, however, that many of the same voices now being raised in favor of improved geographical balance throughout the primary season were calling only a few years ago for a far different change — a series of regional primaries.

That system has many advantages, especially in bringing rationality to candidate travel and advertising in multi-state television markets, but it also would allow one region to enjoy the disproportionate influence that comes from voting first while others might suffer the fate of balloting long after the contest had been effectively resolved.

Similarly, many of those who were complaining about the surprisingly sudden disappearance of competition in both parties' presidential contests were bemoaning the intolerable length of the primary season not long ago.

In any event, those who feared that the selection process had been prematurely truncated have reason to remain hopeful.

The recent history of presidential politics — in the 1960s and 1970s — indicates that the only element that has become predictable in the process is unpredictability. It's still possible, as results in New York and Connecticut demonstrated, for unforeseen developments to dramatically revive the competition for one or both nominations this year.

Opinions

Appreciates nurses

To the Editor:

I am and have been a patient at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital since Jan. 2 of this year. I would like at this time to publicly express my appreciation to all with whom I have come into contact during my stay here.

I would especially like to thank the nurses in the Intensive Care Unit who, through their professional skills, compassion and cheerful attitudes, helped to pull me through the early dark days of my illness, as well as the staff in the Dialysis Unit. I shall be forever grateful to each and every one.

Special mention is needed in regards to all the nurses on Ward 4 North. These wonderful people, too numerous to mention by name, gave me such attention around the clock, the like of which I have never seen or experienced before.

Each and every one of them was skilled in her profession, tender and compassionate in her attitude, as well as cheerful in fulfilling any requests I had.

Words alone cannot express the deep gratitude I feel for all of them. I shall always keep them in my thoughts and prayers.

I must also mention the student nurses and the physical therapists that have treated me. What I have said before applies to them as well.

As I have said before I shall never forget these exceptional people and sincerely hope the hospital administration is aware that they have such dedicated and professionally skilled people in their employ.

Would that I could reward each and every one of them individually; but as such is not possible, I shall keep them in my prayers and ask God to bless them.

House or hovel?

To the Editor:

How about a follow-up story on the "Allen" House or Hovel in West Newton?

Two years ago in the Letters to the Editor I mentioned how terrible its condition. Mrs. Helen Levy, major domo and head benifitor, called us and was so happy that it was getting publicity.

This winter she conducted a meeting of the HCD at the house and mentioned a figure of $250,000 to be used to bring the house up to par.

That junk pile is in such hopeless condition that $250,000 would be better spent in collecting horse manure in Afghanistan.

She also said money was to be donated by the Riley Fund to fix the pillars that are falling down and Ald. Tennant also assured me that these were to be repaired.

What's been done? Nothing.

She's still collecting two or three rentals from the property and arranging parties.

Admittedly, I have no use for the entire operation. There is nothing historical that requires preserving and the City of Newton would benefit only by tearing the house down before a strong when wind beats the city to it and selling the lots for development as lots or condos.

Overnight parking

To the Editor:

It is unfortunate that Dr. Richard Iacobucci feels Newton is an "unfriendly city" because of a $4 ticket for overnight on-street parking.

If Dr. Iacobucci investigated parking ordinances further, he would have determined that Newton is hardly unique in its overnight parking ban. Wellesley, Waltham, Brookline, Needham, Watertown, Framingham and Belmont, to mention a few of the surrounding towns, have the same ordinances as Newton. In winter months these laws are vigorously enforced; in the summer months offending cars will be tagged for all-night on-street parking if residents complain to the police.

Most visitors' cars can be accommodated in the residents' driveways, or arrangements can be nade with neighbors to temporarily park an extra car. Newton homeowners know of these ordinances and it is unfortunate that Dr. host was both Iacobucci's unable to provide him with a parking space and failed to point out the parking ban. Most Newton homeowners support the on-street parking ban especially for security purposes. A resident would be suspicious if he awoke to see a car in front of his house at 3 a.m., which was not familiar to him. In addition, this ordinance serves to limit the number of roomers in such houses which are springing up around the city. By law a homeowmer can rent to only three roomers; however, in some cases this is abused. Cars parked on lawns, or out over sidewalks is flagrant evidence of overcrowding. Dr. Iacobucci's suggestion that the Police check the registration plates of cars left in the street is un realistic. The Newton Police have other things to do then check every plate of offending on-street all-night parkers. Adherence to the parking ban relieves the Newton Police of this burden.

Interpreters

To the Editor:

As the warmer weather returns to Newton, so has a small but steady stream of S.E. Asian refugees. Two here, three there, they are so grateful for so little that they serve as a poignant and constant reminder of my own good fortune.

Newton's generosity continues to amaze me; everything that sponsors ask for appears as though by magic. However, there is one problem. Interpreters.

Does anyone out there speak Cantonese or Mandarin Chinese? Does anyone speak Vietnamese? Situations constantly arise, whether it be at the doctor's office or at home where we need extra help beyond what a dictionary or good humor can supply.

We need people who can explain mutual concerns and needs over the telephone as well as some who can accompany them on early trips to the doctors and the supermarket. If you can help us out I would appreciate your calling me...527-2988 ...anytime. Thank you.

Support club plan

To the Editor:

On Feb. 26, the board of the Newton Conservators, Inc., voted to support the proposal of the Newton Commonwealth Improvement Corporation (NCIC) to rezone the Chestnut Hill Country Club land on Algonquin Road.

By selling 10 acres on the periphery of the golf course to a developer for construction of 60 townhouse units, NCIC will be able to sell the 70 acres of open land surrounding Strong's Brook and Strong's Pond to the city for only $250,000.

Half of this will be reimbursed to the city from federal open space funds. The purchase will satisfy the Conservators' 1974 Open Plan goal of keeping the Chestnut Hill Country Club as open space to which the public has access.

There is relatively little public open space i the northeastern part of Newton, and many residents now use the country club land informally for off-season recreation.

City ownership will assure the land's continued availability for public off-season recreation as well as for a public golf course during the warmer months.

Moreover, because of the size, beauty, and distinctive terrain of this stream valley, the land is valuable as open space to all Newton residents and to nearby Boston residents.

Maintenance of the land will also be assured by the operation of the municipal golf course and the city will benefit further from the real estate tax generated by the proposed development.

Therefore, we urge Newton residents to support the permanent preservation of this important open land for public access.

The Aldermanic Land Use Committee (Terry Morris, chairman) will probably make its recommendation this week, and the full board will decide the issue soon after.

All those involved in the decision should be reminded that the neighbors in NCIC worked hard for several years exploring ways to preserve the land without development.

Their current plan, while perhaps not ideal, is a good plan under the present circumstances, because it achieves substantial protection at low cost to the city, and because it offers an effective way to maintain the land in the future.

Twenty completed course in preventative maintenance.

20 city workers get diplomas at ceremony

NEWTON — Twenty employees of the Public Works, Water and Recreation departments last week received certificates of completion of an 84-hour course in the use and preventive maintenance of heavy equipment at a ceremony at City Hall last week.

The "graduation" exercises were held in the Memorial Auditorium and followed by a party in the cafeteria.

Most of the families of the employees attended the ceremony, including some small children. Personnel Director Edith Meisser thanked the families for their support in having the husbands and fathers away from home so much during their training course.

The course was paid for principally byNewtonLocals 800 and 2443 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, with a contribution by the city. The employees took the training course on their own time, meeting at night and on Saturday at the city yards.

Local 800 President Robert Hand called the occasion a "great day for the city, a rewarding day for us, something that has never happened before."

The event was arranged by George Mead, safety inspector and director for the city's work force.

Richard Fryar took first prize among the graduates. John Piselli was awarded second prize, and Stephen Tocci and Richard Leone tied for third. Prizes were sets of tools.

Mayor Theodore Mann said the course was during the joint labor-management Quality of Work Life program that has been ongoing for a few years.

"The overriding concern was the well-being of our employess employees," the mayor said' "and second was how we spent the taxpayers' dollars."

As the mayor looked around at the large number of tall and heavy men congregating on the stage, he quipped, "I feel as if the Green Bay Packers are behind me."

DeNucci denies rumor he will run for sheriff

NEWTON — "There's no truth to it," Rep. Joseph DeNucci said Sunday about a rumor that he plans to run for Middlesex County sheriff this fall.

"I am only running for the state House of Representatives," DeNucci said. DeNucci is in his second term as state representative from the 10th Middlesex District, which includes precincts on the north side of Newton and the south side of Waltham.

People have asked him to be the Democratic candidate against Republican John Buckley, DeNucci said admitting, "It would be a natural."

"Maybe some year I might run for sheriff," DeNucci said, "but this fall I am absolutely, definitely running for state representative." DeNucci's campaign is getting its official send-doff at a party at the Newton Armory April 11.

Cabbie predicts 'harder times'

NEWTON — "I think we're heading for harder times," Dewey Mollomo said. "Government, big business and big labor are to blame for all of this, and we're just the pawns.

Mollomo is president of Veterans Cab Co. and spokesman for the city's cab companies that are proposing rate increases.

He thinks cab companies are as good indicators of the state of the economy as any and right now, he says, the industry is reeling under steep increases in almost every operating expense.

The current fare in Newton is $1 for the first mile, and 20 cents for each additional one-seventh of a mile. Waiting time is $9 per hour.

New rates, if approved by the Board of Aldermen, may be $1 for the first five-eighths of a mile and 20 cents for each additional one-eighth of a mile. The charge for waiting time will be $11.

Newton is alone among area communities in offering a full first mile for $1' other communities charge $1 for various fractions of a mile.

Under the proposed rate schedule, it would cost $1.60 to travel one mile in Newton. Using that distance as a yardstick, the same ride in Boston would cost $1.60; in Brookline, $2; in Wellesley, $1.80; and in Waltham, $1.40.

Waltham cab companies have petitioned for rate hikes that would bring the cost of a one-mile ride to $1.80 and, according to Mollomo, Boston companies will soon request a rate increase. Brookline's rates were increased about six months ago. Newton companies had initially suggested a one-mile rate of $2.

Mollomo justifies the rate increase by pointing to a 70 percent increase in the cost of fuel in two years and a 41 percent increase in the cost of a taxi in the same period.

A Ford Fairmont taxi package cost $4,697 in 1978 and would cost $6,630 today. Compounding the 33 cent increase in the cost of fuel are federal fuel allocation quotas based on 1977 consumption.

In 1977 Mollomo's fleet was gradually switching from leaded to unleaded fuel and with only one fuel tank available, gasoline deliveries did not represent the full requirement of his fleet.

As a result, Veterans Cab must now buy between 20 percent and 30 percent of its fuel on the street, at retail prices.

In the last two years finance charges have jumped 33.3 percent, insurance has climbed with increased costs for taxis, and since January taxis must carry increased personal injury limits.

The end result of various increases, according to Mollomo, is that it costs 60 percent more to put a car on the road than it did two years ago.

Another indication of economic conditions is the number of job applications. "In the last three or four months we've had all the help we needed," Mollomo said. "It's the first time I've seen that in 23 years. People are looking for regular jobs and supplemental income as inflation takes more of their real income away."

The industry has lost thousands of taxis across the country, Mollomo said, and there are many communities that no longer have cab service. New cab companies are not being started.

To put the cost of doing business in perspective, Mollomo said the one-mile rate in Newton in the early 1920's was 50 cents and remained at that level for years. At the end of the depression, he said, it was possible to buy a cab for $475, and a dollar bought eight gallons of gas.

While the cost of doing business is increasing, the demand for taxi service has also increased, Mollomo said, as more and more people abandon their cars.

"People find it easier to pay for a taxi when they need it, than pay for the car in the yard," Mollomo said.

"We're a demand service," Mollomo said. "When people pay to go somewhere, we're there. We're the last transportation service without a subsidy, and I don't want to get into that. We don't take any pleasure in coming in after a year for another increase."

Since that increase a year ago, there have been 15 increases in the price of fuel, and there have been increases since the Taxi Association drafted its proposal.

"Last time was a catch-up deal," Mollomo said. "It's always a last minute deal, when we get our backs against the ropes. A year ago was a little relief."

"We're always behind the economy. It's always been a struggling industry," Mollomo said.

Grant aids library gain small press titles

NEWTON — The Newton Free Library has had its "Small Press" grant renewed. This means the library will be able to continue to subscribe to an expanded number of Massachusetts literary books and periodicals.

The library is pleased a wider reading public will continue to have the opportunity to enjoy and benefit from many more small press publications. Some of the publications put out by small presses are now on display at the main library and are available for borrowing.

In addition to the main library, Newton Centre, Newtonville, Auburndale, Waban, and Lower Falls branches will also continue to receive a selection of new subscriptions.

With the grant, which was funded by the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, the library subscribes to such titles as the "Andover Review," "Canto Review of the Arts," "Tendril," "Swift River," "The Nantucket Review," "Green House" and many more.

The small presses have a long and distinguished history in Massachusetts dating back to Ralph Waldo Emerson's little magazine "The Dial." Within the last decade, moreover, there has been an extraordinary rise in literary activity, with both unknown and nationally recognized writers coming together an unprecedented number of little magazines, reviews and small press books.

Since these publications are usually produced on small budgets and not distributed or promoted commercially, they have been available only by subscription and in a few specialized bookstores. Increasing the small press collections in public libraries means many more people can sample and explore the diverse, challenging world of small press publishing, with its independent point of view.

Directs finance

BROOKLINE — Lawrence H. Dallin of Newton has been appointed to the newly created position of director of finance and administration for the Jewish Community Center of Greater Boston.

Dallin will be responsible for designing and implementing internal accounting and administrative systems for the agency.

Dallin, a public accountant, was most recently deputy director of administration and finance for Newton Area CETA.

Get healthy at the YMCA

NEWTON — A new limited membership in the Newton YMCA Health Center — with reduced hours and reduced fee — is now available.

The center's facilities under the new program will be open 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. on Saturday mornings.

Membership in the Health Center includes use of all YMCA facilities as well as these additional features: a walk-in whirlpool, sun ray lamp, personal locker, steam room, exercise room, lounge-color TV, towel service and a full-time attendant.

For more details drop into the YMCA, 276 Church Street, Newton Corner, or phone 244-6050.

propriate wet and cold weather gear. The mood is casual, and it's doubtful that anyone in the viewing audience will be able to tell that this is the fourth time they have done this scene.

"The floor would actually be raised, which would solve the problem of the window height over here," says Gifford, leading Vila over a wall where there is a row of small windows about eight feet off the ground.

"And there will be a partition over here?" asks Vila, pointing to a far corner of the room.

"Yes, that area will be a combination kitchen-dining area," replies Gifford.

After a couple more minutes of chit chat about the layout of this particular room, the scene is wrapped up and Morash, or rather, Morash's voice, tells everyone to get ready for the next scene, which is being shot outside. Since the cameras are , or seem, fairly light, the cameramen hoist them up on their shoulders and carry them outside, followed by crew members who help pull the thick wires out after them.

The house is huge, and the entire building, which includes the four-story main house, an ice house, woodshed, stable, and barn, takes up 10,000 square feet. The five acres of land include three acres of conservation lands and abeautiful view of Blue Hills and Mount Wachusett.

The most distinctive feature of the house, other than its size, is the hundreds and hundreds of shingles that cover the outer portion of the building. These shingles are a big reason why Design Associates was chosen to do the designing, since it is practically a law on Nantucket that houses be shingled, and they would obviously have a lot of experience in this area.

The house, designed by famed Victorian architect Henry Hobson Richardson for Dr. Henry Jacob Bigelow, has been abandoned since 1973, and is listed in the National Register of Historic Places. The Preservation Association bought it from Newton for will sell the $10,000, and five condominium units on the open market in the fall. According to WGBH, renovation costs will be about $65-$75 per square foot, which will be met by a $500,000 line of credit loan from the Mutual Bank for Savings in Newton, plus $100,000 the station hopes to receive in donations.

The program will start to air in Boston this month, and will include the first season's series on the house in Dorchester. Both the 13-week Dorchester series and the 26-week Newton series are hosted by Vila, a Boston builder and designer.

Renovations are scheduled to be completed in late 1980, coinciding (they hope) with the end of the series. A description sheet of the condominiums indicates that the units will contain Cathedral ceilings, spiral staircases, sunken living rooms, and country kitchens.

Now the cameras have donned umbrellas and the next scene is scheduled to be shot. Vila and Gifford are rehearsing.

"This is where we discuss the importance of the house architecturally," tells Gifford

It is the expression of the skin of the building, rather than the skeletal structure." "Let's get a shot of the house," says Morash over the loudspeaker.

One of the camermen swings his camera upwards to catch the top portion of the house, while Gifford and Vila continue talking.

"John, what special significance does the building have in terms of its architecture?" asks Vila, repeating a previous question so that they can go through that section again. And go through it they do, for about a half hour.

The group goes on to film the two men walking around the house as they discuss the historical importance of the shingles and the roof and the windows and ' what the architects will do to preserve the historical integrity of the structure.

"The asphalt shingles on the roof are completely inappropriat. We have got to put wooden shingles back on, and make it exactly as Richardson would have wanted it. . . ."

Police report

NEWTON — A taxi driver was robbed of around $50 Monday by a man carrying a snub nose .38 caliber handgun. Police say the driver, James Murphy, picked the man up in Needham and drove him to the Elliot Street MBTA station.

When they got to the station, the man reportedly said, "This is it. Give me all the money from the shift." The man also pulled off the microphone on Murphy's radio.

The man was described as around six feet tall, weighing around 225 pounds, about 30 years old, white, wearing blue jeans and a green shirt.

A man who purchased two new tires at Zayre's in Waltham Saturday presented an overdrawn credit card, which was refused. The manager agreed to allow the man to go home, accompanied by a clerk, to get cash for the purchase.

The man, who police suspect was using false identification, drove to Florence Street in Newton and pulled a knife on the clerk, saying, "Here's where you get out."

A Newton woman got out of bed around 7:50 a.m. Sunday to find a young man in the hall of her Boylston Street home.

The suspect, described as around six feet tall, with short blond hair, wearing a tan jacket and pants, walked out the front door of the house and headed toward Needham Street, police said.

Missing from the house are a wallet, two packs of cigarettes and a pair of wine glasses.

Six tires and rims and a chainsaw valued together at around $600 were stolen from the basement of a Harvard Street home by thieves who entered the house in an unknown manner according to police. Police say the theft occurred sometime Thursday or Friday.

A champagne fountain has been reported missing from the Chestnut Hill Caterers at 427 Langley Rd. Police say the office was entered Saturday by smashing a window in the front door.

A home on Fairway Drive was entered sometime Monday by jimmying the front door, police said. Taken in the break were $40 in cash and three silver dollars.

IN FOCUS

HE'S A TROUBADOUR FOR THE LORD

By DOROTHY HINES
In Focus Editor

The curly haired, golden bearded, 36 year old vocalizes in a clear tenor voice reminiscent of country singer John Denver. He plays a 12-string guitar and converses in an informal, relaxed manner. But for his clerical garb, the contemporary minstrel would pass for another professional songsmith.

However, Rev. Andre Patenaude is a troubadour for the Lord.

Father Pat, as he's affectionately known to friends and acquaintances, is director of the Shrine of Our Lady of La Salette, Enfield, New Hampshire.He spends much time traveling throughout New England to spread the "good news" of the Christian gospel.

The priest melds self-taught musicianship with his religious ministry to further the La Salette mission of "reconciling man to his God."

Father Pat has been singing his life, since childhood days in Fall River, and it seems only natural to continue.

Down playing his obvious talents, the priest prefers to characterize the music a "way of saying things not always possible in words."

Last Thursday Rev. Patenaude, by popular demand,"played a return engagement," at St. Mary's in Dedham.

It was an evening of song, prayer and a little laughter with several hundred of all ages in attendance. The priest is a favorite of area residents and came on the invitation of Mary and Ed Broderick of Bullard Road.

He made it clear from the outset, that his was not a performance, though he would sing and play.

"Don't applaud," he cautioned the audience with a smile. "I want to get to what I want to say."

What he wants to convey is "that God stands for life, goodness and love."

The clergyman speaks of Lent, the 40 day period in the Christian liturgical calendar preceding Easter, as a season to repent. In simple, human terms, it's an opportunity "to look back for awhile, to recognize our real woes."

Speaking plainly, Father Pat urges his audience to "get rid of the rubbish of their lives." He suggests the proverbial "spring cleaning."

"It's never too late," the priest assures.

He offers an invitation to join in prayer, vocalize the hymns, many of which Rev. Patenaude composed, and consider renewal.

His warm, friendly manner encourages postive response in his listeners.

It's an opportunity to gather one's thoughts together before the solemnity of Holy Week and the celebration of Easter, April 6 .

The Missionary Fathers of La Salette staff several shrines in the New England area offering various religious experiences.

At Enfield, New Hampshire visitors are welcome to come for an afternoon of prayer or a weekend retreat.

The shrine is located on the site of an earlier Shaker religious community and the property and buildings have been designated a National Historic District.

Lodging is available and individuals and families also come for the recreational activities, such as hiking and cross-country skiing.

As in the case of Father Pat, the shrines offer themselves, not especially for fundraising, but, particularly, for the spreading of the Christian word.

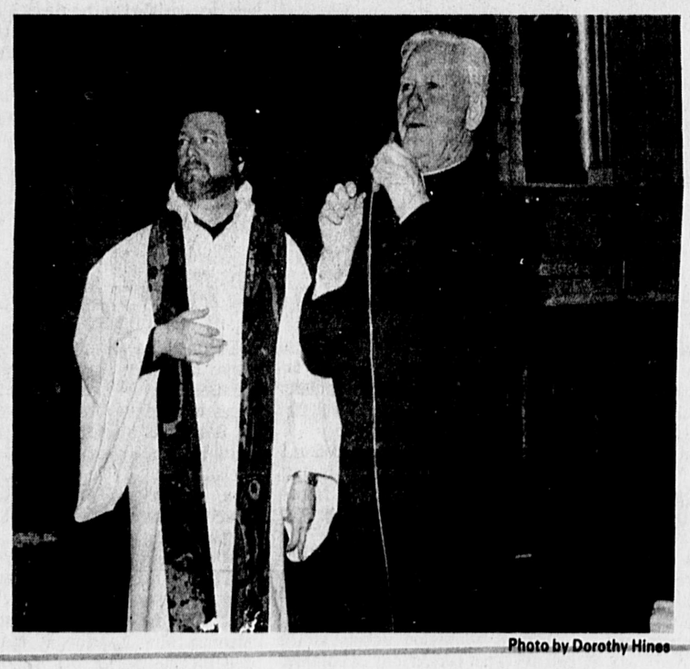

At the urging of others, Rev. Patenaude has recorded six albums of songs, mostly of his own composition. It is much of this material which he brings to the Dedham meeting.

The newest, "Breath of God," is billed as songs to sing in harmony with a healing God.

The albums have been produced over a 13 year period and reflect the minister's upbeat faith and belief in his Creator.

As to Easter, Rev. Patenaude is in his element. For he believes in making "a joyful noise to the Lord;" and what more appropriate time than in celebrating the resurrection of Christ.

Rev. Andre Patenaude makes music a part of his ministry. Below center, Father Pat, left, with Msgr. Charles F. Dewey of St. Mary's in Dedham

KITCHEN CORNER

Easter Sunday: A golden time for enjoying family and friends

Easter Sunday is a warm, golden time for enjoying family and friends throughout the day and around the festive table. Only the gold can be somewhat tarnished if you find yourself viewing the holiday from behind the kitchen door.

This Easter meal has been designed to accomplish three purposes . . . to please the palate of the most discerning Easter dinner gourmet . . . to enable the weight conscious to savor each and every course . . . and to allow the cook plenty of time to also be a guest at the table.

The fragrant, juicy leg of lamb marinated and trussed in advance, needs only to be popped into the oven and is complemented by the fruited mint "jelly" prepared several days beforehand. The freshly made salad is laced with a lemon juice and oil dressing, all the better for being made days ago. Accompanying the main dish, stuffed mushrooms and rice primavera can also be pre-assembled and not given a second thought until time for the oven. Finally, the fruit medley of grapefruit, pineapple, strawberries, apricots, grapes and apples can be prepared the night before and caps an easy and abundant meal.

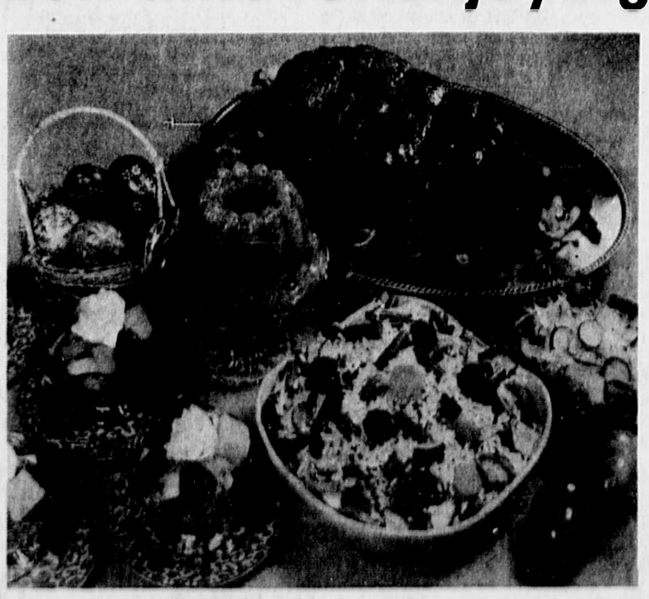

MARINATED LEG OF LAMB

½ cup sliced celery
½ cup sliced carrot
2 ounces chopped onion
1 packet instant chicken broth and seasoning mix
2 cups cider vinegar
1 cup water
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
1 bay leaf
¾ teaspoon thyme
¾ teaspoon basil
4 cloves
Freshly ground pepper to taste
5-pound leg of lamb, boned

In saucepan combine celery, carrot, onion and broth mix. Cook 5 minutes, stirring often. Add remaining ingredients, except lamb; simmer 20 minutes. Cool to room temperature. Strain liquid into long, shallow pan; discard solids. Marinate lamb in liquid, in refrigerator, overnight or at least eight hours, turning lamb several times. Remove lamb and discard and discard marinade. Roll and tie lamb; insert meat thermometer. Place on rack in roasting pan. Roast at 325°F. for about 2 hours, or until thermometer registers 150°F. for rare; 160°F. to 170°F. for medium; 175°F. to 180°F. for well-done. Makes about 6 servings.

RICE PRIMAVERA

2 cups cooked enriched rice
2 cups diced zucchini, blanched
2 cups cut green beans, blanched
1 cup sliced carrots, blanched
1 cup cooked frozen broccoli spears, cut into pieces
½ cup boiling water

2 packets instant chicken broth and seasoning mix
¼ teaspoon dried mint or 1 teaspoon chopped fresh mint leaves
⅛ teaspoon garlic powder
2 tablespoons imitation (or diet) margarine

In 2-quart casserole combine rice, zucchini, green beans, carrots and broccoli. In small measuring cup combine water, broth mix, mint and garlic powder. Stir until broth mix is dissolved. Pour broth over rice-vegetable mixture and stir to combine. Dot evenly with margarine. Bake at 325°F. for ½ hour. Makes 6 servings. Divide evenly.

NOTE: For less work on Easter Sunday, prepare a day or two in advance and refrigerate, covered. Bring to room temperature before baking or increase baking time to 40 minutes.

FRUIT MEDLEY

This can be assembled in advance; sprinkle diced apple with lemon juice to prevent discoloration.

1 medium grapefruit, peeled and sectioned
2 medium apples, cored and diced
1 cup canned pineapple chunks, no sugar added
1 cup strawberries, sliced
4 canned apricot halves with 2 tablespoons juice, no sugar added, cut into quarters
20 small purple grapes, halved and seeded
¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons low-calorie whipped topping, optional

In large bowl combine all ingredients, except topping. Divide evenly into 6 dessert glasses. Top each portion with 1 tablespoon whipped topping, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Each serving is equivalent to: 1½ servings Fruit, 8 calories Specialty Foods, optional (1 tablespoon whipped topping)

STUFFED MUSHROOMS

24 large mushrooms, about 8 cups
2 garlic cloves, minced
2 packets instant beef broth and seasoning mix
¼ cup red wine vinegar
6 slices whole wheat bread, toasted and made into crumbs
¼ cup water
2 tablespons chopped fresh parsley
2 teaspoons sesame seeds, toasted
½ teaspoon salt
Freshly ground pepper to taste

Preheat broiler. Remove stems from mushroom caps; chop stems from mushroom caps; chop stems. In nonstick skillet combine chopped stems, garlic and broth mix; cook, stirring occasionally, until tender. Add vinegar; cook 5 minutes longer. Remove from heat. Add bread crumbs, water, parsley and sesame seeds; stirring occasionally until tender. Add vinegar; cook 5 minutes longer. Remove from heat. Add bread crumbs, water, parsley and sesame seeds; stir to combine. Season with salt and freshly ground pepper. spoon on equal amount of filling, approximately 1 tablespoon, into each mushroom cap. Place stuffed mushrooms on baking sheet, which has been sprayed with non-stick cooking spray. Broil 5 minutes. Makes 6 servings. 4 stuffed mushrooms each.

NOTE: These can be prepared the day before. Dip mushroom caps in lemon juice before stuffing to retard browning. Remove from refrigerator at least 1 hour before serving so they can reach room temperature before broiling.

Mrs. Lester A. Steinberg of West Newton views preparations for "Boston Dresses Up," an exhibition of costumes at the Museum of Fine Arts at Faneuil Hall. Mrs. Steinberg, a member of the museum's ladies committee, and Matthew Kiernan, an organizer of the exhibition, are shown with a dress and cape which will be displayed.

'Boston Dresses Up' at Faneuil Hall

BOSTON — To celebrate the 350th anniversary of founding of Boston in 1630, the Museum of Fine Arts at Faneuil Hall will present "Boston Dresses Up," an exhibition of outstanding costumes from 1750 to 1963, sponsored by the Champion International Corporation of Stamford, Conn. The costumes on display were worn by famous Boston families including the Cabots, Sears and Bowdoins to parties, political affairs, and as daytime attire. Many were designed by such renowned French fashion couturiers as Jean Philippe Worth, Madeleine Vionnet, and Yves St. Laurent, who once worked for Christian Dior. These 17 costumes will go on view at the satellite museum April 15 through Sept. 14.

Says Matthew Kiernan of the Department of Textiles, "Contrary to the typical image of Bostonians — one that says they don't concern themselves with high fashion or spend money on such frivolities — this exhibition shows that many Bostonians have elegant taste and a strong sense of color and design."

The costumes range from an 18th century blue brocaded silk dress worn by Mary Faneuil Jones, sister of Peter Faneuil who built the renowned Faneuil Hall, to a 1963 aqua silk gown trimmed with seed pearls and gilt beads worn by Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy to a White House reception held in honor of Haile Selassie, then the Emperor of Ethiopia. The gown was designed by Cristobal Balenciaga who created many of Mrs. Kennedy's ensembles during the 1950s and 60s.

A young girl's party dress in pink, yellow and grey stripes against a background of champagne colored silk, reminiscent of the Gibson Girl style, is one of the most delightful costumes in the show. The dress features handmade lace on the bodice, puffed sleeves, and is trimmed with pleated ribbons of grey, pink, and green. A blue satin cummerbund and skirt inset add to the "sweet sixteen" feeling of the dress.

Male attire of the early 1800's is represented by a man's court suit made of dark plum broadcloth with an embroidered floral pattern of silk and chenille threads in shades of lavender with sequins and paste gems attached. The suit was worn by the Honorable James Bowdoin of Boston, the son of Governor James Bowdoin, to a ball given by Napoleon I.

Among the most elaborate women's evening ensembles is an 1877 floor-length purple velvet skirt with deep folds and a tailored jacket. The velvet bodice is particularly lovely for its slashed sleeves which are inset with lavender satin. The ensemble was designed by Worth of Paris for the trousseau of Sarah Choate Sears. Visitors will also see the lace-trimmed pink and cream satin dress that Fanny Crowninshield (later Mrs. John Quincy Adams) wore to a ball where she danced with the Prince of Wales.

Decorative arts including furniture, silver, and glass will be shown as part of the exhibition. Says Deborah Emerson of the Department of 20th Century Art, "A number of these objects have been passed down from generation to generation in Boston families. It's not at all unlikely that some of them were used by the same people who wore the costumes featured here."

Highlights include an elegant silver coffee pot made in London in 1751 and engraved with the Faneuil crest and coat of arms, Tiffany vases and desk set, and a child's pewter tea set with a barely three-inch high pot.

The exhibition was conceived by Matthew Kiernan and was organized by Kiernan, Deborah Emerson, and Joanna Hill. Judith Downes and Tom Wong of the Department of Design are responsible for the design and installation of the exhibitions in the contemporary galleries at the Museum of Fine Arts at Faneuil Hall. Kenworth Moffett, curator of the museum's Department of 20th Century Art, supervises the overall Faneuil Hall Museum project.

For more information, please contact Shawn McGivern or Mollie Bell at 617-267-9300, ext. 445.

International Ball at Park Plaza

BOSTON—The 43rd International Ball, , featuring an ethnic food fair ethnic and ballroom dancing, stage performances and presentation of the Boston Consular Corps, will be held on Friday evening, April 11, at the Park Plaza Hotel, Boston.

The Ball is one of the major annual events of the International Institute of Boston, a 56-year old United Way agency providing services to newly arrived immigrants and refugees to the Boston area. One of the current projects of the Institute is assisting the many IndoChinese refugees settling here.

The Ball will begin with a reception at 6 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m. for sponsors, patrons and members of the Boston Consular Corps. The Ball will open to the general public at 7:30 p.m. to the music of Ruby Newman's orchestra. Food of various nationality groups will be available at colorful booths.

The consuls will be introduced at 9 p.m. A stage show will follow, featuring ethnic groups including Ramon De Los Reyes, Flamenco dancer; the Siyanka Ukranian dancers; The Clan MacPherson Bagpipe Band; and the Mandala Folk Dancers. Lisa Jean Matta, Miss Massachusetts, will officiate at the door prize drawing.

General admission tickets to the ball at $12 per person may be obtained by phoning the Institute at 536-1081. Tickets will be $15 at the door on the night of the ball. Sponsor tickets are $75 and patron tickets $50 each.

The Institute offers English as a second language classes and legal counseling as well as the social services it provides foreign newcomers to Boston. It also sponsors several cultural and educational programs, including the Whole World Celebration, a five-day multi-ethnic fair which draws more than 60,000 participants each year.

Mrs. Robert D. Wrenn is president of the International Institute of Boston, and a consultant for the ball with Dr. Helene Day, Consul of Monaco. Mrs. Charles D. Howell is general chairman of the 1980 Ball and Robert G. Neiley will be master of ceremonies.

Middlesex Insurance Women will sponsor two April seminars

WOBURN—Two seminars on insurance will be sponsored this month by the Middlesex County Chapter of the Massachusetts Association of Insurance Women, Inc. Both sessions will be held at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Forest Park Road, Woburn.

Session I , An Introduction to Condominium Insurance (property), will be given on Wednesday, April 16, from 6 to 8 p.m. The speaker will be Michael O'Brien, vice president of Kaler, Carney & Liffler & Co., Inc.

William Guess, advanced sales consultant and estate planner for the Insurance Company of North America, will speak on estate planning at Session II, Wednesday, April 23, from 6 to 8 p.m.

Cost is $10 for a single session or $18 for both sessions. The seminars are open to all interested insurance personnel, who are requested to contact Ms. Mary Davies, 25 Stoughton St., Medford 02155, or telephone Melanie Stokes at the Forsberg Insurance Agency, 944-4648, or Adele Heft at the Press, Bateman and Turner Insurance Agency, 890-0050.

New members of Woman's Club

NEWTON CENTRE—The Newton Centre Woman's Club has welcomed three new members. They are Mrs. Robert W. Barrett of 439 Brookline St., Newton Centre; Mrs. George Grady of 101 Thornton Rd. and Mrs. William Arthur Reilly of 341 Commonwealth Ave., both of Chestnut Hill.

Jackson Homestead offers free bus tours of Newton

NEWTON—The Jackson Homestead, Newton's Historical Society Museum, announces the following schedule for its free spring bus tours of historic landmarks in Newton: Friday, April 11 at 1:30 p.m.; Saturday, April 12 at 10 a.m. and Friday, April 18, at 1:30 p.m.

A leader will accompany each tour through the city, pointing out many of the historic houses and landmarks. These include the Parker House (1751 or earlier) in Newton Centre; 19th century homes and mills in Newton Upper Falls; the Woodward House in Waban (1681); St. Mary's Church (1831) in Lower Falls and the Auburndale Congregational Church (1857).

The tours begin and end at the Jackson Homestead, 527 Washington St. For further information call the Homestead at 552-7238. Reservations are not required as riders are accepted on a first-come first served basis.

Danforth Museum to hold first Italian Wine Festival

FRAMINGHAM—The Danforth Museum will offer a selection of fine wines from the northern and central regions of Italy, at its first "Italian Wine Festival" on Sunday, April 20, from 5 to 7:30 p.m. The Pendolari family of Framingham will sponsor the party, which will also include a wide variety of imported cheeses, and Italian music.

Representatives from Italian wine companies will be on hand to discuss the various wines, which will include the red wines from northern Italy's nebbiolo grape, the Soave and Bardolino from Verona, and the white wines from the Marches and Umbria. Complementary cheeses from France and Italy will enhance their flavor.

Tickets for the festival are $4 for museum members and $6 for non-members. Advance reservations are encouraged. Danforth Museum is located at 123 Union Ave., Framingham, tel. 620-0050. Parking is free.

IMPORTANT AUCTION
GENUINE HANDMADE ORIENTAL RUGS
Final deman by overseas creditors which are under pressure with the overseas banks to raise immediate cash for unpaid goods of Persian and Oriental rugs, therefore those financially concerned are liquidating the entire collection of over 500 pieces of authentic Persian and other Oriental rugs piece by piece to the highest bidder by auction.
THIS IMPORTANT AUCTION TO BE HELD AT:
TRAVEL LODGE
1200 Beacon St., Exit 18, Mass. Tpke., Brookline
FRIDAY, APRIL 4, 8 P.M.
Exhibition 7 P.M.
Please note: Oriental rugs have been enthusiastically collected since the 16th century, but currently there is a mad rush for them. Sales in the United States alone have increased almost 400% in the past few years, besides Oriental rugs is the best floor covering for the following reasons:
1. Oriental rugs reflect the true simplicity and harmony of all works of art. They blend well with and enchance both modern and period furniture.
2. Oriental rugs are a great investment and increase in value with age.
3. Oriental rugs are easy to care for. The pure natural handspun wool resists dirt and grime.
4. Oriental rugs will last a lifetime.
An exceptional opportunity will be yours to view this beautiful collection.
Sponsor: Dryus Rug Galleries, 201-227-6484
TERMS: Cash or check.
AUCTIONEER: Herman Hurwitz
A short movie on Oriental Rug weaving will be shown and the master weaver of oriental Rugs will demonstrate the actual rug weaving before the auction.

Tips on planning retirement offered to those over 50

By DAVID SMOTHERS
UPI Senior Editor

CHICAGO (UPI) — If you are over 50, you should start thinking about retiring.

Now.

To some, retirement may seem happiness island, a life in the sun, a chance to spread their chest and do what they've always wanted to.

For others, it is a barren prospect of idleness, uselessness, loneliness and trying to make Social Security and a pension check add up to a livelihood.

Retirement is for the tough, the men and women who can face facts in time, prepare for them, and are not afraid to handle them.

This is the opinion of Del Larson, one of the many men and women trying to teach people what they should do in the times called, often euphemistically, "the golden years."

In 1975, Unity started a program to prepare middle-aged persons for the day when they might be left standing on the sidewalk outside their old place of employment with a pension check in their hands.

Universities, giant funds such as Carnegie and Rockefeller, and the federal government have been at the same task since as far back as 1945.

Their conclusions, in brief:

—Men and women in their mid-50s must recognize retirement will be staring at them in 10 or 15 years.

—Those who plan to retire must get ready. Get their finances into shape. Put vital documents in a safe deposit box. Know the full worth of what they have, what they will have, and what they will need. Decide, when they know where they stand, how they want to live and where they want to live.

—Beware of glowing vistas in Florida or promises of easy riches in Arizona land development. Before making a drastic change or a plunge, check it out — personally.

—The same goes for staking most of the bankroll on a business. "We really try to discourage people from buying a business," Larson said. "The mortality rate is incredible."

—Almost all retirement counselors speak glowingly of how quitting the old job can open a door to the true golden years. Hobbies, acquired skills and long-cherished ambitions can be turned into income, the brochures say.

But it does not always, or even often, happen that way. "Suddenly you see yourself by yourself watching television at 9 o'clock in the morning," Larson said.

—Those who do not want to quit what they are doing should try not to.

Many companies allow employees to keep on working as long as they can do their jobs. Many encourage older workers to take lower paid and less demanding positions or to work part-time.

Dr. James Kastys, director of Unity's pre-retirement counselling program, said, "At no other time in history was there exactly this phase where people could retire and would not work any longer ... just sit there, eat, drink and sleep and bore themselves to death and do absolutely nothing.

"We're returning to a time when retirement is not a withdrawal and cease to work. (We're) looking at alternatives. Alternatives can mean taking a career a step back, taking a lesser responsibility.

"Often a man has to leave his structure. If you've brought that structure along for 30 or so years you're not going to step back in that structure. There's a time when you generally have to leave it and do something else."

Robert A. Havighurst of the University of Chicago has been helping teach people how to retire since 1945. One of the first in his field, he is pushing 80 and still going strong.

"If they want to work, that's an option," he said. "I use the phrase again and again — maximizing the options. That's the best policy for the elderly.

"If the option is to retire, all right. We'll facilitate that. But if the option is to stay at work, we'll facilitate that."

Larson agreed with "retirement is for the tough."

"How can you make it pleasant?" he said.

Katsys said, "It can be the beginning. I will suggest that those people who can't make that transition simply, accurately, would die.

"This is the situation we have today. We have people who no longer can afford to live. They simply go down for the count."

All three emphasized getting ready — mentally and financially — can lick half the problem.

"A good many people put it off," Havighurst said. "They know they're going to retire. (But) they envision doing what they have been doing. Unconsciously, I guess, they put off what they think might be difficulties.

"We found that people who thought about retirement and planned were happier than the ones who had put it off."

Baked beans an outdoor favorite

Friends and neighbors are turning to covered-dish suppers to help fight the high cost of entertaining. One of the favorites for picnics and other outdoor eating is a casserole of homemade baked beans.

Most of us know the quick method of doctoring canned baked beans to our tastes by adding ketchup, mustard and brown sugar.

Still, nothing beats the special flavor of old-fashioned made-from-scratch baked beans. They do take some time to cook, but the results are worth it.

You can use any leftover baked beans in sandwiches. Try some, hot or cold, on rye or pumpernickel.

By the way, beans are an even more economical source of protein when you buy them in bulk. BAKED BEANS

1 "pound dried navy
"(pea) beans
2 "quarts water, divided
½ "pound salt pork
2 "teaspoons salt
1 "cup chopped onion
1 "cup dark corn syrup
½ "cup chili sauce
1 "teaspoon dry mustard
½ "teaspoon pepper

Rinse and pick over beans.

In large bowl, cover beans with 1 quart water. Soak 8 hours or overnight.

(Or use quick method of soaking: In 4-quart saucepan, place rinsed beans and 1 quart water. Bring to boil. Cover and boil 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Let stand 1 hour.)

Drain beans.

In 4-quart saucepan, place beans, remining 1 quart water, salt pork and salt. Cover. Boil 1 hour. Drain, reserving bean liquid.

In 3-quart bean pot or casserole, place beans and salt pork. Stir in onion, corn syrup, chili sauce, mustard, pepper and bean liquid to cover (about 1 cup).

Cover. Bake in 325-degree oven 3 hours. Uncover and continue baking 30 minutes or until beans are browned and tender.

This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 servings of 3+3/4 cup each.

Fashion from Paris

Basic black is back in fashion

By CAROLYN LESH

PARIS (UPI) — Nine years after her death, the "little black dress" invented by legendary fashion designer Gabrielle "Coco" Chanel is going strong.

At its showing Monday in the fall-winter Paris ready-to-wear collections, Chanel paraded a series of short, black cocktail dresses that moved into the new decade with bows, feathers and pancake-flat shoes.

The line designed by Philipe Guibourge piled black on black and trimmed it in gold in youthful styles that stopped at mid-knee or right below it.

There was so much black that one photographer quipped, "This is the fashion for young widows."

Some of the little dresses were not for the modest. One outfit in sheer black mousseline was saved from total nudity only by a pair of tiny black panties.

Bows were everywhere — around the waist, in the hair, on shoes and in prints.

In longer evening gowns, there were full opera-style skirts for a romantic and elegant look.

For the day, there were the classic Chanel suits with the little gold buttons and braid that have been copied around the world by lesser-know fashion houses.

The suits were set off with high-neck silk biouses with bows or — in a new touch — with pullover sweaters with low-slung gold chain belts.

Slightly puffed sleeves and black stockings — a feature seen in many of the shows this week — completed the outfits.

Whatever Chanel's house did, it did well and with a sense of elegance and class. While other designers strutted their wares to the taped tunes of loud music, Chanel provided a three-piece live orchestra for its background.

But class does not come cheap. An off-the-rack Chanel suit retails for about $1,500.

Chanel avoided the dropped waist that has been so popular with other designers in the collection, especially chez Christian Dior.

At its showing Monday, Dior showed elongated waists flirting around the hips with short, puckered skirts.

In suits, Dior had some very wearable styles. One typical outfit was a grey flannel pleated skirt just covering the knee worn with a long double-breasted jacket in pink and grey stripes.

Yves Saint Laurent, the recognized king of both high fashion and ready-to-wear lines, will show his line today. He will feature the wide range of hemlines that have been marking the collections — from ankle top to mid-thigh.

Government guide offers consumer tips

It isn't eligible for traditional best seller lists — they are based on bookstore sales — but a new government guide for consumers looks like a winner all the same.

The "Consumer's Resource Handbook" is published by The White House Office of the Special Assistant for Consumer Affairs.

Most such books cost anywhere from $2 to $10 or up. More and more good ones are available in retail stores and libraries.

Before investing in a bigger book for which you have to pay, try the free government handbook. If your problem can be solved by a local, state, regional or federal agency, you'll find out who to write or phone, and where. Some calls are toll-free 800 numbers.

For single copies of the 76-page publication, write the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 532 G, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

The handbook begins with a consumer checklist of questions to ask before you buy or sign a contract to buy goods or services.

Examples:

Have you checked the company's track record for reliability with your local consumer agency or Better Business Bureau?

If professional help is needed, have you asked about fees, services, qualifications and licenses?

What are the company's policies for handling complaints?"

The handbook also contains step-by-step suggestions for resolving complaints, a sample complaint letter, and many specific suggestions of where to go for help: not just state and local consumer protection offices but also occupational and professional licensing boards, Better Business Bureaus, media programs such as Call for Action; small claims courts; legal aid and legal services for people who cannot afford to hire private lawyers, as examples.

Dozens of organizations and government agencies are listed by name, address and telephone number in the handbook. In most cases the name of the appropriate individual to contact is also given.

If your problem involves a product or services from a privately or publicly owned company, good sources to turn to include "Help," an $8.95 Everest House paperback annual edited by Arthur E. Rowse of Consumer News Inc. in Washington, D.C., and the "Consumer Complaint Guide," a $5.95 Macmillan paperback now being published semiannually. Both are available wherever books are sold.

Rowse's book lives up to a line on the cover of the 1980 edition: it does tell you "where to get help on just about anything." Among other things, it lists companies that are required by law to give refunds for various products and services — and subject to government action if they do not comply with the law. It has up-to-date comparisons of national charities, moving companies, airlines and package delivery firms, a list of food colors whose safety has been questioned; treatments for 50 common stains on fabrics; and a chart showing complaint ratios of auto insurors.

It also describes some of the more widely used scams that survive, year after year, such as chain letters, work-at-home schemes that don't live up to their advertised promises and "miracle" diet products.

The 1979 edition of the Macmillan guide is currently available. A new edition is scheduled for 1981. It is largely a directory of governmental consumer protection agencies and private corporations who make and-or supply consumer goods. Thousands of products are listed and cross-referenced, so a reader who doesn't know a manfacturer's identity or address, for example, can find both bt by looking for the product's trade name.

Sausage making can be a family affair

NEW YORK (UPI) — A quality product is a sure-fire ingredient for a successful company, and so is attentiveness to detail.

They were for Hillshire Farm, a sausage producer located at New London, Wis.

The company, now a subsidiary of Consolidated Foods Co., is the outgrowth of a small meat market which started up right before the Great Depression and almost went under just after the hard times arrived.

Proprietors were Austrian-born Fritz Bernegger and Billy Schmidt. They split amicably during the 1950s — by that time it had grown to a couple of retail stores and a packinghouse — and Bernegger incorporated shortly thereafter.

Despite the company's growth — sales now run around $200 million a year and production a million pounds a week — Bernegger still preaches adherence to high quality and attention to the small things.

Hams and bacon, for instance, are in the smokehouse for days. "The longer a piece of meat smokes, the sweeter it is," Bernegger observes.

Only fresh meat is used, not frozen, although it would be cheaper and more convenient to use frozen meat.

As his son Gary, Hillshire's president, explains, "Frozen meat 'weeps' — you notice it when you take something from the home freezer — and this detracts from the taste."

The company also takes pride that no "filler" is used in sausage making. "Sometimes small chunks of meat make their way into a sausage with enough identity to locate the place on the carcass where they came from," the younger Bernegger explains, half seriously.

"Pressures of production at times are so great," he says, "that many sausage firms chop and grind and mash their meat to the point that the taste suffers."

At Hillshire, when production needs increase the company chooses expansion rather than a revision of the sausage making process. Consequently the company now has more than a dozen buildings covering some 200 acres.

The younger Bernegger still goes over the morning quality control reports, rather than have the production people do it, and he chooses to take care of the mail from consumers. "Listening to them is important to the business," he says.

Also a working member of the firm is the elder Bernegger's wife, Armella, a former school teacher he married in 1934. Gary was born a year later; a daughter, Brenda, five years later. Brenda's husband, David Wenberg, is the firm's executive vice president. There are eight grandchildren.

Mrs. Bernegger took over as bookkeeper and shortly thereafter was impressed into the job of reading the daily livestock market report on the local radio station. She also wrote the company's ads. She still gives the livestock reports, only now she phones them into the station.

She comes into the office four mornings a week to help answer the telephone. "I'm the complaint department," she says. "All dissatisfied customers are switched to me."

Mrs. Bernegger sometimes finds it a bit embarrassing when her husband accompanies her to the supermarket. "He always asks for our sausage and if the store manager doesn't stock it, Fritz lets him know it's the only kind we eat — and would he like to place an order for it."

New chapter forming to fight neurofibromatosis

There is a new Chapter of Neurofibromatosis (Von Recklinghausen's Disease) starting in Brookline.

N.F. is one of the commonest inherited neurologic disorders. Approximately 100,000 people in the United States are afflicted with N.F., which is as widespread as muscular dystrophy, yet there is very little research being done on the disease.

It affects people of all nationalities and races. Neurofibromatosis affects all areas of the nervous system and the skin. It usually begins in childhood or adolescence.

Multiple benign tumors appear in the brain, spinal cord and skin. The nerves controlling vision and hearing are often affected. In addition, multiple dark patches of skin, called "cafe au lait" spots, are usually present.

Tumors of the skin, called neurofibromas, can develop superficially or just under the surface of the skin. As many as 10,000 neurofibromas of the skin have appeared in one person. Most people with N.F. have a predominance of growths involving the skin or the brain.

This new non-profit organization is in need of membership and contributions. The first open meeting will be held Wednesday, April 9. The guest speaker will be Walter Bradley, M.D., director of neuromuscular research laboratories at New England Medical Center Hospital.

For more information, call Mrs. Patricia Krug at 326-4775.

DARE-Freeport House to serve local area youth

The Newton Board of Alderman recently accepted recommendations of the Land Use Committee and granted site-plan approval for the DARE-Freeport House Porgram, which will serve children from the local area.

Since then, support for the program has been growing. West suburban citizens, recognizing the need for an alternative home for local youth, have been cooperating enthusiastically.

Currently, there are about 40 children from Needham, Newton, Wellesley and Weston who are waiting for places in programs such as DARE-Freeport, which is headquartered in Jamaica Plain.

The DARE-Freeport program will provide counseling, tutoring and a stable home for 10 local youths who cannot live with their families. Program director Linda Saleski of Wellesley is currently hiring staff and readying the house for the first youths.

Area church groups, clubs, students and merchants have volunteered time, money and supplies to get the program going. April and May have been targeted as house improvement months.

During the weekend of March 15, students from Boston College, members of the Episcopal Parish of the Good Shepherd in Newton and other local teenagers helped clean and paint.

Many of the workers returned the weekend of March 22 and were joined by the Senior Youth Group of the First Baptist Church of Newton.

Many area merchants have donated supplies for the house. The Coca Cola Bottling Company in Needham donated soda and merchandise was contributed by Beacon Brush Corp., Chandler-Levy's Hardware Co., Chestnut Hill Food Shop, Hannah's Bakery, Moore and Moore Paint Co., Provizer's Delicatessen and the Star Market, all Newton businesses.

Several local area families who were doing spring cleaning also donated home furnishings, including a television, rug, throw pillows, curtains, dishes and a stove.

Additional donations of home furnishings and skilled labor are needed before the house opens on May 15.

Anyone who would like to volunteer can call Jeanne Canina or Joan Guberman at 969-3874 or leave a message for them at 524-7070.

Donations of funds can be mailed to the DARE-Freeport Program, 361 Commonwealth Ave., Newton, MA., 02167.

Holy Week events at area churches

Second Baptist

An Easter Service will be held at sunrise on top of the Echo Bridge, Newton Upper Falls. Speaker will be Jack Gerry, director of Crossroads in Sudbury. Trumpeter Tim Ensworth will play. All faiths are welcome. There will be 10 local churches participating in the services.

Pastor Francis Crisci of Second Baptist Church, as host, invites all interested to come to Echo Bridge, rain or shine on April 6 at 6 a.m. Second Baptist opens its doors after the service for coffee, cocoa and donuts and pleasant fellowship.

Union Church

Union Church, 14 Collins Rd., Waban, will have a Communion service Thursday, April 3, at 8 p.m.

On Good Friday "The Seven Last Words of Christ" will be the theme of the noon to 3 p.m. service, which is a joint service with six Newton churches participating.

On Easter Sunday, the church will have a Sunrise Service on the banks of the Charles River at the foot of Annawan Road at 7 a.m.

At 7:30 a.m., Easter breakfast will be served in the church vestry.

A morning worship service will be held at 9:30 a.m. featuring the Junior, Youth and Handbell choirs.

The 11 a.m. service will feature the music of Handel and Haydn.

The Rev. Boyd Johnson Jr. will preach at both services.

Unitarian Society

"Heroes Don't Die" will be the sermon topic of the Rev. Dr. Geral Krick on Easter Sunday, April 6, at 10:30 a.m. at The First Unitarian Church in West Newton Square.

The service will begin at 10:15 a.m. with special Prelude Music presented by trumpet players Julian Blake and James Dolham accompanied by organist Karin Gustafson.

Myrtle Baptist

"The Seven Last Words of Christ," by Theodore DuBois, will be presented by the Senior Choir of Myrtle Baptist Church of West Newton and the Concord Baptist Church of Boston on Friday, April 4, at 7:30 p.m. at Myrtle Baptist Church, 21 Curve St., West Newton.

The soloists are: Donna DeVaughn, soprano; Beatrice E. Stubbs, soprano; Douglas Clay, tenor; and Roy McKinnon, baritone.

The pianist is Blanche C. Thompson; organist, Percy Johnson; violinists, Kathy Kelsh and Adriane Phillips; and cellist, Shirley M. Fountain. The conductor is James E. Prout, organist for both choirs. Admission is free, however a freewill offering will be taken.

The public is invited.

'A Time for Freedom' sung at Temple Israel

BOSTON -- Cantor Murray E. Simon announced that Temple Israel, Boston, will present the New England premiere of " A Time for Freedom," an oratorio based on the trial of Anatoly Shcharansky, during its Annual Jewish Music Sabbath, Friday, April 4, at 8:30 p.m., to which the public is invited.

Congressman Robert Drinan (D-Newton) will introduce the work, which Temple Israel co-commissioned.

While no admission will be charged, all attending will be asked to wear a paper "Badge of Conscience" bearing the name of a Soviet refusenik or prisoner of conscience. Afterwards, everyone will have the opportunity to sign letters in support of Shcharansky in conjunction with an on-going project of the Temple Israel Task Force on Soviet Jewry of the Social Action Committee.

National Educational Television will be filming the oratorio at a later date for national broadcast. Voice of America has already recorded it for overseas broadcast.

The music was composed by Cantor Charles Davidson. The libretto by Cantor Samuel Rosenbaum is based on Anatoly Shcharansky's rebuke to the Moscow court on July 10, 1978.

Another feature of the evening will be the honoring of Herbert Fromm, musical director emeritus of Temple Israel, on the occasion of his 75th birthday.

A census worker may be contacting you

By TERRY GOGGIN
Staff Writer

If someone should tap you on the shoulder in an all-night movie theater during April, do not be alarmed. It is probably not a policeman but a federal census taker.

The federal census got underway April 1 and people living in colleges, nursing homes, rooming houses, motels and even those attending all night movies may be interviewed by a census taker.

This year, the U.S. Census Bureau is making a special effort to count people not living at a normal street address, according to Steve Crowley, a recruiting manager at the Norfolk County Census Bureau.

The Norfolk County Census Bureau expects to hire between 600 and 700 people from the county to fill temporary census taking and clerical positions between April and July.

Tricia DeLuca, director of recruiting at the Norfolk County office, said recently census workers were usually assigned to their home towns because they were familiar with the area.

She said that applicants must pass a general clerical test to qualify. Clerical workers will be paid $3.55 an hour and census takers between $4 and $4.55 an hour. All those hired will be asked to work 40 hours a week.

The reason for this is that in 1970, roughly 4,500,000 people weren't counted. This accounted for a 2.5 percent national undercount, Crowley said. This resulted because many census takers quit after having difficulty interviewing people in prisons, houses of correction and nursing homes.

However, this year, the census bureau hopes to rectify the situation. It has hired a group of people trained to work in special places who have the personality to suit the job. Crowley said that young men between the ages of 25 and 30 with criminology degrees seemed best suited.

Census questionnaires were sent out last week. Ninety percent of the census taking is being done by mail. The rest will be done by census takers. The total undertaking will cost $1 billion.

One reason for the census is to provide data for Congress to apportion an anticipated $50 billion in federal funds. The census will also serve its original purpose of providing a population count to determine the number of seats needed in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Massachusetts could lose one of its 12 seats in the U.S. House as a result of an expected population decline. However, it is still unclear which areas will be affected, according to William Fleming, the director of the Norfolk County Census Bureau.

The census will play an especially important role this year in federal funding because of anticipated cutbacks. Local officials in the towns of Dedham, Needham, Norwood and Westwood said it was too early to estimate the actual revenue those town would recive.

However, Dedham Executive Secretary Robert Hanson and Norwood Assistant Town Manager Bernard Cooper think federal funding in their towns will be tight.

"We'll probably be shortchanged. I think revenue sharing as a federal program is going to vanish," said Hanson.

Cooper agreed, pointing to "President Carter's anti-inflation program."

Neither Hanson nor Cooper expect to have an undercount in their towns because in the past, people in Dedham and Norwood have been cooperative in answering the census.

Hanson pointed to the importance of avoiding a high undercount. "The funding is set up on a scale directly related to population. If you have a serious undercount, you stand to lose money."

In some federal programs, the population count is "the determining factor" in deciding whether a town receives the program, said Cooper.

The revenue sharing formula is determined by income and population data, he said.

To determine a town or city's need for federal funding, demographic data and personal questions seeking information on income, transportation and housing will be asked. Three quarters of the people will receive a short form, consisting of 19 questions. One in five households will receive a long form consisting of 320 questions for a family of four.

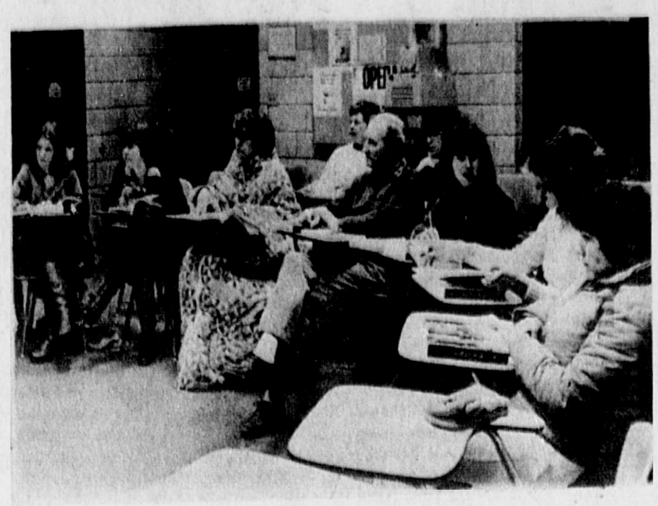

Among other topics, census questions ask about occupation, number of toilets, travel time to work, heating equipment and sewage disposal. This information is used to determine the need for such public expenditures as grants and welfare.

Fleming said that if a person failed to mail in his census queationnaire during the first few weeks in April, an enumerator would be sent out. By law, people are subject to a $100 fine if they refuse to answer the census.

He said that specific information about a person's income, as well as other personal information, was "strictly confidential."

Federal law prohibits the census bureau from releasing personal information to any other government agency, even to the IRS or the FBI.

If a census worker releases information, he is subject to a $5,000 fine and/or a five-year prison term.

New magazine explains ways to save on air fares

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the confusing world of discount air fares, a one-way coach ticket from Miami to San Francisco can cost anywhere from $129 to $338, depending on when you fly and when you buy the ticket.

The situation is so complex it has spawned a new magazine devoted to discount ticket prices. Changes occur so rapidly the magazine has to be published twice a month just to keep up with revised fares.

The first issue of Domestic FareSaver — 92 pages of computer generated copy — came out in March.

Publisher Mark Winston says the magazine is aimed not so much at the casual once-a-year traveler as at the 15 million Americans who — for business, government or other purposes — fly often. Even so, infrequent travelers could theoretically recoup the subscription price, $35 for six months, after one trip if they were tipped off to a cheap ticket.

In an interview, Winston said the magazine is also aimed at the nation's 15,000 travel agents. Eventually, he said, 8,000 to 10,000 public libraries around the country might buy it as a reference book for consumer use.

There are no street sales currently, he said, but the possibility exists that it could be placed on airport newsstands on a single copy basis.

Winston said the magazine is designed to be a "reference quality book," although it lists only "normal" discount fares, not such exotic arrangements as groups, charters and the like.

He said he tries to verify, before publication, that all routes listed are actually being served.

Winston said he has noticed two trends since he started to put the magazine together more than one year ago.

First, he said, "Fares are going to continue going up," partly because the cost of jet fuel is rising at a rate of one to two cents per gallon per week. In addition, the Civil Aeronautics Board in its congressionally ordered deregulation now allows many fare changes to occur with only one-day notice instead of weeks as in the past.

The second trend, Winston said, is availability of many discount fares "for the asking ... no advance purchase or minimum stay. And for those that do, the requirements are less and less and less."

For more information about the magazine, write FareSaver, Box 40944, Washington, D.C. 20016.

French Library to sponsor "April in Paris" at the Ritz

BOSTON—"April in Paris 1980", a French fashion show, painting exhibition and champagne buffet, will be sponsored at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel on Monday, April 14, by the French Library in Boston. The celebration will be held under the patronage of the Consul General and Madame Roger Establie in the French and Adam Rooms of the Ritz, from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the French Library in Boston, a non-profit organization embarking on a three year development program, in charge of Dr. Vernon R. Alden. Gen. Georges F. Doriot is president of the library.

Mrs. Doris Yaffe and Mrs. C. Charles Marran of Waban are members of the "April in Paris" committee. Highlights of the benefit will be spring and sumner fashions by Chanel, Pauline Trigere, Richard Carrier, Richiline, Jean Louis, Pallas and Titkiner, courtesy of the Sara Fredericks Salon at Bonwit Teller; paintings from the Rolly-Michaux Galerie, and a champagne buffet and French cheese-tasting.

Donations for "April in Paris" are $50, per person, tax deductible. Reservations, limited to 100 guests, will be accepted in order of receipt by Mrs. Gerald W. Blakeley, Jr., Chairman of "April in Paris", 70 Codman Rd., Brookline 02146.

Anne Maher wins career award

FALMOUTH—Anne Camille Maher of Newtonville has been selected as"Young Career Woman of the Year" by the Falmouth Business and Professional Women's Club. The 25 year old public relations director of the Marine Biological Laboratory in Woods Hole is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius C. Maher, Jr., of Calvin Rd.

Miss Maher was selected from a field of eight candidates who were judged on their accomplishments in career and education, their presence before an audience while delivering a speech, and their handling of an extemporaneous question. She will go on to compete for the state title.

She attended Our Lady Help of Christians (now Newton Catholic) Schools and received a bachelor's degree in biology at Boston College in 1975. She is now a part time MBA student at Boston College.

Mount Holyoke singers will give choral concert in Cambridge

NEWTON—Elizabeth Jewett of Newton, an officer in the Mount Holyoke Club of Boston, announces that the singing groups of Mount Holyoke College will give a choral concert on Sunday evening, April 13, at 8 p.m. at Sanders Theater, Harvard University.

The theme of the concert is "Harmony of Morning," based on a work by Elliott Carter. Other texts of similar theme will be presented by 180 members of the Mount Holyoke College Glee Club, the CORO Society, the Freshman Choir and accompanied the Freshman Singers, by an instrumental group.

Newton alumnae, parents and friends of Mount Holyoke College are invited to attend. The general public is welcome. Tickets will be sold at the door at $2 general admission, and $1 student admission with I.D.

Tennis Permits on Sale

The Recreation Department has announced that 1980 outdoor tennis permits will be on sale at the Recreation office, 70 Crescent Street, Auburndale as of Monday, April 7th.

Newton residents may purchase these permits between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Thesepermits allow holders to reserve court time at Burr, Newton Centre, Newton North and Newton South High Schools.

The courts at these four locations will open on Saturday, April 19th, weather permitting. Burr and Newton Centre will be supervised Saturdays and Sundays from 9 a.m to 5 p.m. and week days from 5 p.m. to dusk. The courts at Newton North and South will be supervised Saturday and Sundays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and weekdays from 5 to 10 p.m. The cost of permits is $10. for adults, $5 for students and $20 for families.

Applicants must show proof of residency when buying permits. Reservations will be taken at courtside only by the attendant on duty. A permit holder is allowed one reservation in each 7 day period. Reserved doubles play requires 2 names. Reservations may be made on a daily basis up to 7 days in advance. Those having reservations, but who are not present at the reserved time forfeit the court immediately to those on the waiting list.

In addition to the reserved courts, nets have been installed in the nearly 40 hard surface courts located throughout the city. There are two hard surface courts at Albemarle Playground, 3 at the Angier School, one at the Boyd Playground, 2 at Burr School, 2 at the Cabot Park, 2 at Hamilton Playground and 2 at Auburndale Playground. Also, 2 at Memorial School, 2 at Newton Highlands Playground, 2 at Stearns Playground 2 at Upper Falls Playground, 2 at Ward School, 7 at Warren Jr High, 4 at Weeks Jr. High and 1 at Wellington Playground.

No tennis playing is allowed before 9 a.m. on any Newton courts with the following exceptions: tennis maybe played from 7:30 a.m. at Albemarle, Cabot, Newton North High, Newton South High and Warren Jr. High on the Commonwealth Avenue side. Approved tennis shoes must be worn and socially accepted attire must be worn by players at all times. Men must wear shirts. Tennis permits may also be obtained at the Hull Street entrance of North High School beginning April 7th, Monday thru Friday, 7 to 9:30 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Between May 12 and May 23, permits may be purchased at North High Monday through Friday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Harvard Frosh top North lacrosse

Newton North was unable to stop the attack of the Harvard Freshman , dropping a 7-1 decision at Cambridge.

Newton's only score was a pass attempt by Karl Hatton that was deflected into the goal.

At 14:23 of the first quarter, Harvard drew first blood. Dave Williams rushed the length of the 8 field and attempted to unload a shot on Newton's goalie Rich Yerardi.

Bobby Bryson made a leaping stick check that knocked William's stick as he began his shot. The ball was thrown to the ground as Williams followed thru and the ball rolled untouched into the goal.

Harvard scored again in the second quarter on a play the Tigers wish they could have back. After making a save, Yerardi spun around looking for a pass and ended up depositing the ball in his own net.

Harvard added two in the third Quarter and three in the fourth to put the game away.

John O'Brien and John Gardner made some fine defensive plays to break up scoring attempts by Harvard.

Yerardi made 12 saves,8 while Harvard's Tom Pendergast had 10.

Newton's record now stands at 1-1. Newton will be at Boston College to play Framinghan North on Thursday at 4:00 p.m.

Meanwhile, Newton South had its hands full with a powerful Peabody, losing its opener 6-1.

Coach Paul Murphy praised the defensive work of goalie Bill Kaye and Mark Sullivan.

"It's early in the season and we had trouble working out the early season blues," said Murphy. "We missed the net a lot," added Murphy.

South's next contest will be today at home against Beverly starting at 3:30 p.m.. The summary:

PeeWee Travel Team pressed by All-Stars

Surviving a last-minute goal and continued pressure down to the wire, the Newton PeeWee A Travel Team held on for a 3-2 verdict over the Newton PeeWee All-Stars in a postseason challenge game Thursday at the Fessenden Rink.

The Travel Team had a very successful season, winning its division in the Middlesex League and reaching the finals in the State PeeWee Tournament before bowing o to Natick.

The All-Stars were selected from among the five teams in the Newton Intra-mural PeeWee League and were directed by coaches Dave Brigham and Tom McGary of the Bruins and Tom Charbonnier of the Clippers.

After a scoreless first period, the Travel Team's John Jewett opened the scoring at 3:47 of the second stanza with Shawn McMillan and Kenny Castriotta assisting on the goal. Jewett followed with another goal seven minutes later, assisted by Dana Onanian.

The All-Stars struck back with 7:10 remaining as Chris Stephans lit the red lamp. Mike Mackay and Brian Charbonnier picked upassists.

But, the game was far from over. The All-Stars pulled their goalie in the closing minutes and Charbonnier scored with 35 seconds showing on the clock. Stephans and Ray Gladu were credited with assists.

Controlling the final faceoff, the All-Stars kept their goalie out and swarmed around the Travel Team until time ran out. The squads:

Newton Travel Team—J. Biotti, J. Burke, K. Castriotta, T. Conboy, S. Goldberg, J. Jewett, S. McMillan, C. Mulkern, D. Onanian, S. Queler, J. Resnick, P. Shea, G. Stocklan, E. Sullivan, T. Weaver.

Newton All-Stars—R. Arone, J. Boudreau, A. Brigham, T. Casey, B. Charbonnier, M. Driscoll, D. Frawley, R. Gladu, M. Mackay, S. McClellan, T. McGary, P. Moradian, E. Short, M. Schultz, G. Stephans, A. Whiting.

Newton Bantams topple Lowell and Billerica

Newton Bantam A wound up its Middlesex League Youth Hockey season with a flourish over the weekend by posting a pair of impressive victories.

On Saturday, the Newton sextet edged Billerica, current State champion, 4-3, on a goal by Tim Frechette at the 3:20 mark of the third period. John Drew, Bob Gannon and Peter Alphas struck for the other Garden City goals.

On Sunday, Newton whitewashed Lowell, 7-0, at the Burlington Ice Palace with Hans Brigham and J.R. Golden tallying twice apiece. The other goal-getters were Peter Larson, Glenn Legault and Drew. Goalie Doug Stocklan stopped only six shots.

The Newton Bantams wound up with an overall record of 30-13-4 and a 15-9 league record.

Unbeaten Celtics NAA playoff champs

In the NAA B League championship game for nine to 10 -year-olds, the undefeated Celtics beat the Bullets, 49-25.

The Celtics, the only undefeated team in the league, were led by Dan Freeman's 20 points and Richie Freeman's 18. Hustling defensive work by Richard Ward and Andrew Harmon on the Bullets' high scorer, Jeff Swett, complemented the Celtics offensive performance to win the game. Swett, who averaged 15 points a game during the regular season, was held to six points in the championship match.

The Celtics looked impressive from the free throw line, hitting seven of nine attempts. The Celts averaged 51 points in the playoffs while holding their opponents to an average of 26 points.

The Celtics' season high scorer, Richie Freeman, and the Bullets' leading scorer, Swett, were co-winners of the Andrew Navoni Award for sportsmanship and team play through the season. It was the first time the award has been won by more than one player.

In the earlier rounds, the Warriors, led by Donny Tulchinsky's and John Kosf's seven points each, defeated the Knicks, Knicks' 30-21. The Mike Drucker had 10 points. The Warriors were 10 for 14 from the free throw line while the Knicks could only convert five out of 20 free throw attempts.

The Warriors also defeated the Sonics by a score of 44-32. Kosf had 19 for the Warriors while Lawrence Bailen led the Sonics with 13.

The Summary:

BULLETS (25) — Swett, 2-2-6; Sibley, 5-3-13; Skolar, 2-2-6; Ablov, 0-0-0; J. Levin, 0-0-0; Totals, 9-7-25.

The golfers' prayer this season: More rain may help the game

by PETE TAUSSIG
Staff Writer

"We're keeping our fingers crossed and hoping for the best." —Ron Kirkman

Mr. Kirkman has been the greens superintendent at Needham Golf Club for 19 years now, so he knows of what he speaks. And if golf is your game, you would be well advised to pray for rain and no extreme temperature variations over the next couple of weeks. Be content to practice your putting on the living room carpet for a while longer.

Due to the ridiculous paucity of snow that fell on the Greater Boston area this past alleged winter, local golf course superintendents and greenskeepers are battling a problem they haven't faced in a decade. So far, the superintendents are winning, but Mother Nature hasn't raised the white flag in defeat just yet. As Mark Twain once said of New England's weather, "The weather is always doing something there; always attending strictly to business; always getting up new designs and trying them on people to see how they will go. But it gets through more business in spring than in any other season."

"Our number-one worry right now is desiccation," explains Kirkman, who is also the current President of the New England Golf Course Superintendents Association. Desiccation is a severe drying out of the grass. Due to the lack of snow cover (snow being an excellent insulator) and frequently-raw high winds, Kirkman says that the unusual winter exposure made some area courses quite vulnerable. "We were worrying," he said, having noted that the Needham course permits winter play, "that play someone might accidentally drop a match on the course and start a fire. That's how dry it was."

"The root system just can't 'uptake' enough water to combat the exposure when the ground is frozen," says Don Hearn, in his eighth year as the course superintendent at Weston Golf Club . Hearn and other area green thunbs have taken several plug samples and placed then in 'hot houses' to see if the grass will grow.

"So two weeks ago," Hearn says, "I knew that what grass was out there is definitely alive. But it will take awhile until we really know the overall picture." He has traded information with other area supers, but, he concedes, "We're guessing among ourselves. Things haven't warmed enough yet."

"The turf is 'toasty' looking," notes Steve Kristof, the man in charge at Charles River County Country Club in Newton. "The turf isn't that strong right now, but as long as we get a gradual warming trend, we should be in great shape. Two nice rains have helped us in the last couple of weeks and have checked any possible damage. Most of my plug samples were all right when I grew them in pots. Periodic rain will help us from now on."

What would hurt Kristof and others would be "any extreme temperature changes — hot or cold — or a prolonged dry spell with high winds."

"We'd be in trouble with a deep freeze followed by a quick thaw," contends Norm Mucciarone, the superintendent at Newton's Woodland Golf Club. "We'd have trouble with the root system. Right now, everything. seems all right, but the next week-and-a-half is a critical period."

Bob Mucciarone, the golf superintendent of 21 years at the Dedham Country & Polo Club, agrees with his brother's assessment, adding, "It looks good right now, but I won't say anything 'til the grass starts growing. We could have gotten a lot of windburn and dried-out roots, but it appears we've been lucky. The frost isn't out of the ground yet, but things look good. I think we're pretty well safe, but all that would have to happen would be for us to get a rainstorm followed by freezing weather and we'd be in trouble."

One method many of the superintendents attempting resorted to in to combat the exceptionally-dry months of January and February was to water their courses. Normally, snow cover would render such action unnecessary. "We went out and watered the course a couple of times during the , winter to keep it moist," noted Dave Mucciarone, assistant superintendent under his father at Woodland.

As fickle as the weather may be, however, the biqgest problem for the area superintendents will probably ' be the plavers themselves.

"A lot of fellows are getting itchy feet already and want to go out and play," says Kirkman, who has been forced to deal with the 'problem' all winter. "There was a lot of damage done to many tees here from winter play. The greens are okay, because we've been regulating play on them. When conditions weren't so good, we'd make temporary greens and place holes in front of the existing greens.

"Now we're trying to discourage golfers from going out too early. Otherwise, lots of damage could start showinq up around June."

"There is still frost in the ground and we have heaves," says Norm Mucciarone. "If the players start playing now, it can create uneven spots and bumps on the greens. When that happens, the players get mad."

Mucciarone doesn't ask whose fault it is, but stresses that patience on the parts of everybody involved is a virtue. But, he says, "The public courses will open as soon as possible because they're looking for the dollar. Private clubs will be able to wait longer."

Kirkman keeps his fingers crossed and doesn't make any promises. "If we say we're in good shape now and then some problems so come up in the future, we have no recourse. We're simply at the whims of Mother Nature.

"Can I give you a progress report in April?"

Yellow Cab captures A; Verts commands B

Wilfred Morrison was the best of the pack in a run-and-gun matchup by dropping in 28 points to give Yellow Cab a 68-63 win over Selei Club in the final of the Newton American A League basketball playoffs Thursday night at Day Junior High.

Morrison led the way in the first half with 16 markers to give the winners a 36-30 halftime lead. Bernie Hinteregger kept Selei in the game with 14 points in the opening half.

In the second half, the teams traded baskets and free throws. Selei threatened in the last four minutes but clutch hoops from the line by Mike Bowie and Floyd Thames iced the contest for Yellow Cab.

Morrison was the games top scorer with 28 and Thames chipped in with 18 for the winners. Hinteregger lead Selei with 22 and Ed Beckler added 15 points.

In the B League championship game, Rick Bove and Paul Colantonio each flipped in nine points to give Verts a 30-23 lead at the half and the team held on to down George's Cafe, 50-48.

With four minutes remaining, George's grabbed the lead but the winners rallied to notch the victory. Bob Laughlin was top man for Verts in the second half with eight points.

Both teams used a disciplined offense and went to the zone on defense. Bove was top scorer for Verts with 16 and Laughlin added 14.

Brian Gorman finished with 16 markers and Dave Walker and Gino Dressler notched eight each in a losing effort.

Mr. Bill's drops finale

In the final regular season games of the Newton Men's Volleyball League first place Mr. Bills was defeated by Newton Pop Warner, 15-8, 17-15, and 15-13, Monday night at the Hawthorne Gym in Newton.

The high scorer for Pop Warner was Nick Valaes with 14 points, while Mike McNeice had nine for Mr. Bills

In other action the Troubadors beat Lillys 15-7, 15-10. John Kryder had 11 for the Troubadors, while Mitch Lasker had nine points for Lillys.

Lancer coach expects a lot of fireworks

Newton Catholic baseball Coach Chuck Enos expect a lot of fireworks this year at Cabot Park.

The fireworks won't actually be the kind that you see on July 4th, but they'll be more in the form of lots of offensive outpourings by his Lancer diamondeers. The Purple and White has five starters back from last year's 13-7 team, but pitching will be a real question mark.

Newton Catholic has no real experienced moundsmen returning, but does have a lot of potential power at the plate. Looking at the combination of these two factors of the game Enos said, "We won't get a lot of shutouts, but I do expect a lot of runs to be scored by us. We should win a lot of fairly high-scoring games."

Leading the returnees for the Lancers will be center fielder Steve Caliguri, who was named to the All-Catholic suburban League team a year ago. Enos expects Caliguri to repeat on the atellar team and noted that his center fielder has been hittlng the ball with even more authority than last spring.

The fastest player on the team, Caliguri covers a lot of ground in center, has a good glove and always seems to get wood on the ball, having struck out just four times last year.

Playing to Caliguri's left will be fellow senior Bob Luchette, who could equal, or even surpass, Caliguri if he puts his mind on it and concentrates entirely on baseball.

Luchette hits for power and has an excellent arm, making him a potential all-league pick.

Big John Boyle (6-3, 190) is expected to get the nod again at first base, but is on the sidelines now with a severely sprained ankle. He is expected to be out at least two more weeks.

Boyle is another power hitter. However, he has to work on his fielding and also to try to cut down on his strikeouts.

Paul Smith will be back for another year at shortstop, but could also be the number one pitcher. Smith does everything well. He, too, has the potential to be a strong hitter, if he cuts down on his swing.

On the mound, the junior righthander is a control pitcher, who throws mainly curve balls. At 5-10, 160, he could surprise a few teams around the league.

Dan Conboy, a 12th grader, was a sometimes starter a year ago at third base, but is really going to have his hands full this season. Freshmen Mark Paglia and Scott McAdam and sophomore Gary Geoffrion have all shown a lot and the four-way battle could result in more than one infield spot being decided from this tough-looking group.

"I'm the eternal optinist. I know it, but I really think we could have a pretty strong year," said Coach Enos as he prepares for his sixth year behind the bench. "I think every position is fairly solid in the field, especially when Boyle gets back. Pitching will be our main concern."

Both Murphy and Kling, however, need work on control.

Tim O'Connor, an 11th grader, will fill in at first until Boyle gets back and then could get a shot somewhere else in the infield. Joe Connolly, who nissed most of last year with a separated finger, is battling for a shot at second with the two freshmen.

Jim Gallagher, a junior transfer student from Don Bosco, has looked good at the plate and is a better-than-average probably start in right. Dan Daley, a fielder and will junior, has looked very impressive behind the plate and at 6-1, 190, is the other power hitter in the lineup.

The Lancers open the season on Tuesday, Apr. 8, against St. Patrick's of Watertown, at Victory Field. The squad:

Road race set for May

Chestnut Hill School will mark another milestone on Sunday afternoon, May 4, when the Speed of Light" road race gets under way at 1 p.m.

The 5.5 mile run to benefit the Scholarship Fund is being organized by Headmaster F. Joseph Allison and Mrs. Donald Schreiber of the Parent Teacher Association, a resident of Chestnut Hill both of whom are inveterate runners.

The Pre-entry Deadline is April 21. the Application Fee is $3, and there are no age limits.

Chestnut Hill expects to assemble a field of several hundred and hopes to make the race an annual event. Mr. Allison notes that several families plan to participate, and both he and Mrs. Schreiber stress that the pleasure, good health and well being to be derived from running are as important as the challenge of competition. To obtain "Speed of Light" Entry Blanks contact CHS at 566-0445 or write to the school at 428 Hammond Street, Chestnut Hill, MA 02167.

That 2½ year A.M. Certificate gives you more security...

When you invest in a 2½ year certificate of deposit from Mutual Bank For Savings, you get more than a great rate of interest. You also get the guaranteed security that money market funds just can't offer.

Think about it: money market funds can tell you yesterday's yield, and today's, but not tomorrow's. At Mutual Bank, your high rate of interest is fixed on the date of deposit and guaranteed for the entire term.

Just $250 is all it takes to invest in our certificates of deposit. And all investments, whether small or large, are fully insured at Mutual Bank.

Stop by any office of Mutual Bank for a 2½ year certificate today. And be a bit more secure tomorrow.

Today's Art

The line between arts and crafts

By VONI WEAVER

The symposium called "Fine Arts-Crafts — Where is the Line Drawn?" sponsored by Arts in the Parks and held at the Newton Arts Center March 26 opened with a show of unidentified slides, apparently of work by some of the panelists, and went on to brief remarks by Linda Plaut, director of Arts in the Parks, and Kathryn Miles, a CETA worker there.

In response to a question from a teacher, Ms. Plaut told her audience, she had asked Ms. Miles to find out if anybody wanted to talk about the differences between arts and crafts. Ms. Miles was pleased and surprised by the vigorous response to her calls for panelists.

Moderator Dan Corrigan, who directs the Artists Foundation, asked the panelists to address themselves to a statement on the agenda from much quoted gallery owner Holly Soloman: "All art is decoration...It's the icing on the cake."

Nobody hit the ceiling, to my surprise.

In their opening remarks, some panelists spoke to (or at) the statement, notably Stephen Prokopoff, director of the Institute of Contemporary Art: "If it's good, it's art; if it isn't, it doesn't matter."

Gallery owner Svetlana Rockwell strove toward a definition of art, beginning with the maker's intention, and said later that she educated herself and many executives when she agreed to buy art for a new building and began exploring crafts.

There is a great difference in price between an ambitious picture and an equally ambitious craftwork and much of the evening's discussion centered there. Daisy Brand, a teacher and potter, said the crucial difference is in "how the public see us."

John Heller, jeweler, potter, and Mass. Association of Craftsmen director, said he likes calling himself a jeweler or potter unless doors shut on his work.

Fiber artist Bernie Toale bore out Brand and Heller—when a gallery in New York sent the usual ad into the N.Y. Times, but with a picture of his work, the Times refused to print the picture, evidently because it showed a craft piece.

Judy McKee, who makes furniture, some of it on view at the Museum of Fine Arts, said she goes through a process called "craft" and one called "art" and feels unclear about a difference, if any.

According to Margaret Johnson, director of Career Planning, Mass. College of Art, glass blowers, for example, regard themselves as artists and register in the Fine Arts department. "They work for expression, not utilitarianism..."

Earl Powell, a painter, former dean at the Rhode Island School of Design and now administrator of the Artisanry Program at Boston University, remarked that students at RISD were forever trying to limit themselves—photographers, for instance, complained about drawing courses. "But it helps them see..."

The MFA's Jonathan Fairbanks, curator, American Decorative Arts, makes a distinction between "manufacts," machine made objects, and or handmade work. He spoke of the poetic content of handcrafted work, implied deep respect, and wished he had more money to buy contemporaries.

Sculptor Mags Harries reminded fellow craftsmen of the current interest in Art Fund legislation, advising her listeners to take advantage of what's increasingly available. "We have to promote ourselves—nobody's going to help us."

In response to remarks about changing times, tastes, and prices, John Heller pointed out that the Brockton Museum experiences its highest attendance for shows of contemporary crafts. Later, he observed that women have been the root of the American crafts movement and felt baffled agreement with a questioner that men seem to dominate the field.

The upshot, if any, is that crafts, whatever else they are, are still a bargain, although works by major craftsmen are increasingly expensive.

The next evening at the swearing-in reception of the Mass. Arts Lottery Council, nobody seemed definition-minded, which may be as well, considering how busy the bartender was.

And the Society of Arts and Crafts (175 Newbury St., Boston) opened its "Dressing Up In Art" show, which runs through May 3.

Lisa Neustadt

Sing-along with Lisa at the Underwood School

NEWTON — All families are welcome to join the Underwood Community School's "Family Sing-Along," a special event to be held Friday, April 11, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., at the Bigelow Jr. High.

Performer Lisa Neustadt, a well-known singer and teacher at the Underwood School, will lead this event. Lisa has recently returned from a singing tour of Scotland, where she performed on BBC-Scotland, at folk clubs, in concert, and at the Edinburgh Festival.

Lisa has been playing music and getting children and adults to sing with her since she was a kid herself. Her greatest satisfaction comes from actively involving her audience in the music. To this end, she sings gospel, sea chanteys, work songs, and ballads with easy-to-follow chorus lines.

Lisa performs all manner of traditional American music, including songs of the Victorian era pop music of the 40's. Her singing was strongly influenced by Black church music through her friendship with Bessie Bullock of Creedmoor, N.C. She also learned much source material from the family of old-time Oklahoma circuit-rider, Davis Hammel.

Lisa works in Newton and in other Eastern schools coordinating music and social studies. She has done consulting as well as performing for the Massachusetts Council for the Arts.

Lisa Neustadt has been recorded on two anthologies, and with Jean Redpath and the Angel Band on an album entitled "Angels Hovering Round." She has performed in concert and at coffee houses, colleges, schools and festivals.

Registration for Newton Community Schools members is $2 per family. For more information, please call 527-6455 or the Newton Community Schools office at 552-7118.

Senior Drop-in center opens soon

NEWTON — The official grand opening celebration of the Newton Corner Senior Citizen Drop-In Center will be held on April 8 at 1:30 p.m. The center, located at the Lincoln— Eliot School, 191 Pearl Street, corner of Jackson Street, will be open all day. The center is operated by the Newton Department of Human Services in cooperation with the Newton Council on Aging.

Mayor Mann, members of the Board of Aldermen, the School Committee, and other state and federal officials have been invited to participate in the grand opening celebration.

Stephen P. Holmes, chairman, Council on Aging, noted "The Council on Aging has looked forward with great anticipation to the opening of the Newton Corner Center. The official opening of this center is the culmination of efforts of the Newton Corner Neighborhood Association, Department of Human Services, the Council on Aging, the Planning Department and most importantly the many seniors from the Newton Corner area. We look forward to the opening day as the initiation of many exciting programs and activities for Newton Corner seniors in the weeks and months ahead."

Howard Lipton, director of the Department of Human Services, added, "The center, with easy entry and exit on Pearl Street to the left of the main entrance to the school as marked by signs, will be open Monday through Friday, 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Staffing of the center will be directed by Barbara Burns, who formerly worked with senior citizens in the Recreation Department. Volunteer support will be available from senior citizens in the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) who continue to devote thousands of hours of volunteer time to the city. Other city participating at the center include Community Schools, the Health Department, and the Recreation Department.

Burns welcomes all Newton Corner Senior Citizens to visit her at the center. A full range of diversified programs will be offered. Activities already scheduled include ceramics, knitting, free legal information, a health clinic, and information on Social Security and Medicare. Many other interesting programs will be available in the future.

All senior citizens in the Newton Corner area have been invited to the grand opening on April 8 and to stop by and visit the center any day during the week.

For more information on the Newton Corner Senior Drop-In Center, contact the Newton Department of Human Services at 552-7170 or Barbara Burns at the Newton Corner Center at 969-8030.

Clocks and kitchens are special events

NEWTON — Among the special events being planned by the Auburndale Community School will be courses on antique clocks and kitchen layout and design.

"Antique Clocks" will be held Thursday, April 10, 7:30-9:30 p.m., in an Auburndale home. "Timekeepers" John Freitas and Arnold Almquist will be viewing and discussing with participants many types of antique clocks, how they work and their value. Free appraisals will be given.

"Kitchen Layout & Design," will be held Tuesday, April 8, 7:30-9:00 p.m., at 319 Waverley Oaks Road, Waltham. Instructor David Ingram will be sharing his creative ideas. Participants are requested to bring a folding chair to sit on.

Pre-registration for both courses is required. Registration for Newton Community Schools members is $1. For non-members, membership fees are $5 for family, $2 for individuals, and 50 cents for senior adults. Please send registration and membership fees under separate checks, along with your name, address and phone number, to Auburndale Community School, 59 Grove Street, Auburndale 02166.

For more information, please call the Newton Community Schools office at 552-7118.

Business of art is focus of workshop series

BOSTON — The Artists Foundation is sponsoring a spring series of workshops for artists and craftspeople. The workshops will focus on legal, business and marketing issues. They are designed to help artists develop or improve their basic business skills, explore new ways to market their work, deal with commonly encountered legal problems, and generally enhance their position in the marketplace. Topics include marketing, artists cooperatives, portfolio preparation, grant-seeking, career counseling, promotional strategies, public art, contracts, copyright, insurance, bookkeeping, budgeting and taxes. The program will begin May 5 and continues through June 5. A limited number of scholarships are available.

The Artists Foundation is a private, non— profit organization that administers a variety of financial and technical assistance services for artists. The foundation's programs are supported by individual artists, the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, and the National Endowment for the Arts.

For "Taking Care of Business" registration forms and additional information, call write "Taking Care of Business," The Artists Foundation, Inc., 100 Boylston Street, Boston, MA 02116, (617-482-8100).

A committee consisting of, l. to r., Rabbi Murray I. Rothman of Temple Shalom in Newton, Harry Rosen, Sylvia Phillips, Isabel Make, and Nancy Lightman is now at work planning a series of meetings to assist those persons searching for their identity as Jews. The gatherings, the first of which is scheduled for April 13, will enable nonaffiliated and non-observant Jews in the Greater Boston area to discuss their feelings and their needs with Rabbi Rothman in a friendly and informal atmosphere.

Cancer checks given at NWH

UPPER FALLS — Successfully dealing with cancer almost always calls for the earliest possible detection of the disease. In line with this philosophy, a free cancer screening to detect skin cancer is being given by the American Cancer Society's Newton-Wellesley Unit.

The public education committee of the Newton-Wellesley Unit has arranged for skin cancer screenings to be given by a physician at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital outpatient department from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, April 8, and from 9 to 11 a.m. on Wednesday, April 9.

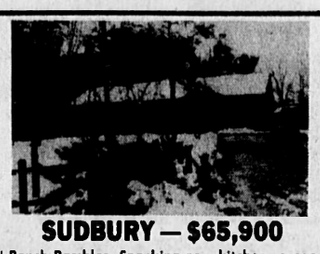

Anyone interested can call 552-7058 for an appointment, and that number or the Boston office of the American Cancer Society at 267-2650 for more information.

Travel Talk

By Josephine Arria

Today's roomy, large windowed, air-conditioned buses make getting around in a strange land about as easy and inpensive as possible. On the other hand, some feel that bus tours can be confining and much too "prearranged". However, by comparison, they are cheap and really worthwhile if one is traveling with limited means. In central Europe, for example, one can see highlights of four or five countries for under $25 per day, everything included. Arrangements are best made in advance through a travel agent. It is smart to be sure to make precise reservations and to investigae the itinerary carefully. Whatever your preferences of destination or mode of travel, when it comes to "getting around" it's time to "get around" to BARCLAY INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL SERVICE, INC., 305 A Washington St., Newton Corner. Our business is catering to the desires and preferences of travelers so that they may go where they want, when they want, and how they want in the most pleasurable and desirable manner. Come in and see us today for all your plans and reservations. We always have "room reserved" or our clients. Open 9-5:30 Mon.-Fri., til 8 Thurs. and 9-1 Sat. Tel. 244-9400. All standard credit cards accepted.

TRAVEL TIP: Renting a tent abroad is less expensive than overweight baggage charges throughout a trip.

Maps a must for travelers

Campers and other travelers rely heavily on road maps to reach unfamiliar destinations and will not leave home without them.

There was a time when gasoline stations cheerfully handed motorists free copies of state maps on request but now most of the folders cost $1 each, if they are available.

Seasoned travelers, therefore, carry books of maps in their les or recreation vehicles and refer to them until they are dog-eared or no longer readable.

Rand McNally, the pioneer in the field, has been making road maps since 1924 when most of the United States, Canada and Mexico was covered by dirt or graveled roads. Over a 36-year period, ending in 1960, Rand McNally published five new editions, updating each year.

Now there is a new edition, the 56th annual "Rand McNally Road Atlas," the first in 20 years.

Campus Notes

REAL ESTATE NEWS

REALTORS in 17 cities and towns in southwestern Norfolk County have launched an anti-vandalism campaign as this year's "Make America Better" project, enlisting the support of fifth and sixth grade students in their area.

As part of the program, the REALTORS are showing a film on vandalism at the more than 40 schools participating in the project. After viewing the film, distributed by the National Association of Realtors, the fifth and sixth graders are asked to create anti-vandalism posters, expressing their feelings on the subject.

A winning poster will be selected at each school to be displayed in a public place, and the winning students will be presented awards during the REALTORS' "Private Property Week", April 15-21.

The program is being conducted by members of Council I & M, a regional organization of the Brokers Institute, a division of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

Edward F. Smith of the Audrey C. Fields office and Karen Glaser of the Florence Kates office in Canton are coordinating the project as co-chairpersons of the council's Make America Better Committee.

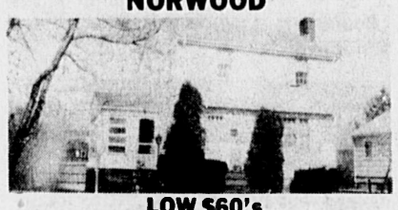

Council I & M represents REALTORS in Bellingham, Canton, Dedham, East Milton, Foxboro, Franklin, Mansfield, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Milton, Norfolk, Norwood, Sharon, Walpole, Westwood, and Wrentham.

Analog Devices is one of the fastest-growing electronics manufacturers in the industry. Our tremendous growth means tremendous opportunities for you:

Computer Operator
(Second Shift)

Your major duties in this position will be on line: you will monitor and operate central console, set up peripherals, monitor online systems and take action where required. Orderly management of work area and other responsibilities may be assigned. You will need 6 months experience with DOS/VS 360/370. A knowledge of JCL, EPAT, VSAM or CICS is a definite plus.

Publications Artist

This position offers an excellent opportunity for a fast, accurate artist to enter the world of Analog Devices. You will lay out and paste up mechanicals for a spectrum of publications, including data sheets, brochures, catalogs, technical manuals and direct mailings. You will create and paste up ink technical drawings, and operate photostat and headline machines. You should be familiar with inking procedures, and should show experience in electrical drafting and circuit schematic sketching.

Change Order Analyst
Permanent part-time (9am-3pm)

We are seeking an organized, perceptive individual to complete necessary documentation in translatng change order information to our Data Processing group. You will also assist and fill in for the Change Order Clerk and Change Order Analyst as needed. This detailed office clerical function requires accuracy and attention to detail.

Data Control Clerk
Tuesday-Saturday

You will receive and log input and output data, spot-checking for obvious errors. You will prepare job control for computer runs, distribute reports, and perform control work on output data. You will interact with many of our departments for CIS services. It would be helpful if your background included 6-12 months data control work.

If you are interested in one of these positions, drop by the Personnel Department to fill out an application, or send your resume to the attention of Monroe A. Moseley, Human Resources Representative, Analog Devices, Inc., One Industrial Center, P.O. Boxxx80, Norwood, MA 02062.

OFFICE/ CLERICAL

There's A Lot To Love At LEVITZ!

Part or full-time, we have positions available for people who enjoy people—and don't enjoy being bored.

Your varied and interesting responsibilities will include a good amount of public contact in our front office and EDP department, telephone communications, some typing, and even the chance to use a 10-key CRT board as you work with our computerized records system. To join one of the country's most dynamic retail organizations, you'll need accurate typing skill, enthusiasm, and a friendly attitude. For part-time people, hours can be arranged. For everyone, the atmosphere is congenial, the compensation good, and the work involving.

Apply in person Monday-Friday.

GIVE TO MARCH OF DIMES

Mr. Merchant,

You've been in business for 5, 10, 20, 40 or maybe 100 years

SO WHY ADVERTISE?

Very simply, you should advertise to get business.

But why advertise when business is good? And, how can you afford to advertise when business is slow?

You should advertise when business is good to keep it that way; to keep ahead of the competion; to expand your product lines or sales area; add another location. Remember in business you can't stand still. If you try to stand still your competition is moving ahead and you are then actually slipping behind.

You should advertise when business is slow to attract new customers, to keep your old customers, to maintain your volume and momentum.

Newspaper advertising is a mighty salesman that takes your message right into your customers' homes . . . where buying decisions are made. In a very real sense, advertising helps keep you in business.

YOUR BUSINESS IS OUR BUSINESS . . .

Mofenson works to expedite payments

BOSTON — Many severely handicapped people and their personal care attendants (PCAs) are suffering hardships from delays in processing payments due them from the Welfare Department, according to Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton), House chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs.

Mofenson noted that the seriousness of the problem was made strikingly clear at a Human Services Committee public hearing. Disabled persons, PCAs, and representatives of independent living programs testified they are experiencing 10- to 17-week delays in receiving money due them. Until a year ago, PCAs were paid directly by the commonwealth, through the Department of Public Welfare's Westborough office. Several people testified under the old system there was an acceptable 3-4-week delay between the time claims were submitted and payment was received.

In January 1979, Pilgrim Health Applications, a subsidiary of the Arthur D. Little Co., took over as claims processor. Since then, turn around time for payments has deteriorated to the point that some disabled persons are faced with the dismaying prospect of being forced to return to or enter institutions.

Since mid-February, Rep. Mofenson has been trying to arrange a meeting with Welfare Commissioner John Pratt to discuss ways to solve this problem. However, Commissioner Pratt has cancelled three meetings, thereby stalling these efforts for an entire month. "I am distressed by these repeated cancellations," said Rep. Mofenson. "They seem to indicate insensitivity to a pressing human problem."

Mofenson pointed out that to the Human Services Committee, the very serious problem of re-institutionalization exists.

"Disabled people currently living independent, productive lives may be forced back into institutions if their PCAs are not paid within a reasonable length of time. Not only would this be unfair to the handicapped persons themselves, it would be a loss to the commonwealth, which will be deprived of their talents and energies," Rep. Mofenson stated.

In an attempt to deal constructively with this payments problem, the Newton lawmaker, along with many other legislators, supports a bill presently pending before the legislature which guarantees timely payments for participants in independent living programs.

This legislation provides that the Welfare Department contract with independent living centers on a pre-payment basis and, at the close of the fiscal year, conduct an audit to insure that all funds expended for this purpose have been returned to the Commonwealth.

"I hopw swift, positive action will be taken on this important bill. I am committed to the effort to carry forward the humane, economical policy of de-institutionalization. Modification or abandonment of this policy and its motivating vision would be tragic for significant numbers of disabled persons," Mofenson said.

Drinan to discuss small businesses with Chamber

NEWTON — Congressman Robert F. Drinan will address the April 10 Breakfast Club meeting of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce at 7:45 a.m. at Valle's. He will discuss the 15 most important issues considered by the White House Conference on Small Business in January. A continental breakfast will be served.

Rep. Drinan, in his fifth term as Representative of the Fourth District, was elected to his first term in 1970, following 14 years as dean of the Boston College Law School.

The White House Conference on Small Business selected the 15 issues from a total of 60 "major objectives" divided into three categories. The 2100 representatives concentrated on capital formation, an economic policy for small business to be formed by the White House and a nationwide effort to bring women and minorities into the mainstream of the small business economy.

Arthur Levitt, Jr., chairman of the American Stock Exchange and head of the Presidential commission that organized the White House conference, described the four-day event as "the first time the firms that create 66 percent of the economy's new jobs have defined their needs and used their political clout."

Rep. Drinan will also answer questions from Chamber of Commerce members and guests at the breakfast. Reservations are available by calling the Chamber at 244-5300.

Catering manager

AUBURNDALE — Beverly Sinnett of Acton has been named catering sales manager for the Newton Marriott Hotel, Auburndale.

Ms. Sinnett comes to the Marriott from the Sheraton Lincoln in Worcester where she had been for four years. Prior to that she was with the Holiday Inn in Leominster.

Ms. Sinnett holds a bachelor of arts degree from Fitchburg State College.

Vice president

BOSTON — Robert Charles Davis of Newton has been elected vice president in the banking division of Shawmut Bank of Boston, N.A., it was announced by D. Thomas Trigg, chairman.

Davis joined Shawmut in January after eight years service with Chase Manhattan Bank. A 1969 graduate of Boston University with a BS in Business Administration, he earned his MBA at the Wharton School of Business in 1971.

$83.5m to run city

NEWTON — Mayor Theodore Mann presented his recommended $83.5 million budget for fiscal year 1981 to the Board of Aldermen last week, and its budget review is already under way.

In his address to the Board of Aldermen, Mann said, "Given the compounded effects of double-digit inflation, soaring energy costs, tax-cap compliance and a highly uncertain state and federal aid picture, it has been a true test of our management capabilities to present to you a budget capable of maintaining the level of quality services this community has come to expect."

"I must sadly acknowledge, however," the mayor continued, "that due to such locally uncontrollable factors as the increasingly obvious lack of leadership at the state and federal levels of government, the wholly unrealistic fiscal demands of an archaic approach to county government, and the enormous burden placed upon this city by the MBTA, we will not be able to avoid serious tax increases and-or service reductions in future years."

The mayor said the three main policy thrusts of his administration in FY81 will be a program of expanded management and inspection services in the Building Department, major equipment replacement in the Fire and Recreation departments and municipal insurance advisory services in the Accounting Department.

The total budget recommendation is under the state-imposed tax cap, the mayor said, and if it were not for collective bargaining increases anticipated for FY81, escalation of energy costs and state-mandated but not state-funded costs, the "resource requirements" could have been reduced.

Mann cautioned the Board of Aldermen not to cut "too fine," reminding them of his desire last year to keep more money in surplus in case of sudden inflation of fuel costs.

After the presentation, Comptroller Lawrence Marino estimated that property taxes will rise by $7-9 per thousand assessed valuation next fall.

That figure appears to him to be a minimum, he said, assuming that state aid stays at last year's level. It is generally thought that state aid will decrease drastically, however.

There will be at least $3 million appropriated over the coming fiscal year for various unforeseen expenses and for settlement of collective bargaining agreements being negotiated.

Cuts don't diminish services

NEWTON — The public will hardly notice the cuts in various departments' budgets in the coming fiscal year' according to several department heads queried about the effect of the tight FY81 city budget.

The department heads will notice, though.

The FY81 budgeted amount of $82.8 million shows an increase of only slightly more than $1 million over what is expected to be spent by the end of FY80 at the end of June by the various departments..

The total budget request, including $1.1 million for budget reserve and not earmarked, and less $464,000 for a technical error in School Committee appropriation, will amount to $83.5 million.

Several departments experienced

Spend more to get more

NEWTON — The more the city spends before the end of the fiscal year, the more it can spend next year.

This paradox comes about from the state tax cap that bases the appropriation limit for FY81 on a 4 percent increase over the nonexempt appropriations for FY80.

Newton is currently under the appropriation limit for FY80. A month ago there was more than $1 million leeway under the tax cap.

If the city spends that amount between now and June 30, the cap for FY81 appropriations will go up. After subtracting excluded items such as retirement and debt service, the appropriation limit for FY81 could be as high as $72 million. If all the money is not spent, the appropriations limit for nonexcluded items could be $70.6 million' according to material prepared by Comptroller Lawrence Marino.

It appears that if Newton doesn't spend fast, it may end up with only a $387,000 leeway for all of FY81, and spending beyond that point after the budget is approved would take a two-thirds vote of the Board of Aldermen.

If the city spends right up to the limit for FY80, there will be $1.5 million spendable during FY81 beyond the budget.

Department head salaries up 9%

NEWTON — Salaries for department haeds, as shown in the budget for fiscal year 1981, have been increased between 2 percent and 15 percent, with the average at slightly more than 9 percent for those who got raises.

Mayor Theodore Mann did not show raises for firefighters, police officers and the city labor force, all of whom are covered by contracts being negotiated now.

Not calculated into the average is the increase for Police Chief William Quinn, whose current $33,761 is shown increased to $34,761. His salary is dependent on the salary negotiated by the police union; Quinn gets double the three-year patrolman's pay.

The biggest increase by percentage goes to Howard Lipton, director of the Human Services Department. His salary is up 14.9 percent, from $19,319 to $22,204.

Close behind is the city clerk of the Board of Aldermen, Edward English, whose salary increased from $25,000 to $28,500. But because he is now responsible for the dual job, which used to be filled by two people, his salary is under negotiation in the Board of Aldermen and will probably go higher.

A 5.5 percent raise for Treasurer Theodore Scafidi and Comptroller Lawrence Marino, both of whom went from $27,043 to $28,548, is sure to set off another battle over their salaries with the mayor.

Both asked for $32,000.

The Board of Aldermen "elects" these two officers, under terms of the charter, and has always felt it can set their salaries, but the board lost the last battle with the mayor on this point.

The mayor's chief administrative officer, James Hickey, who came here last year, was given the same

'More' for the mile when taxi fares go up

NEWTON — Taxi fares in this city will up 60 percent for the first mile this month.

The Board of Aldermen approved the rate increase Monday night.

The fare will go from $1 for getting into the cab and riding up to one mile to $1 for the first five-eighths of a mile. Each additional one-eighth mile will be 20 cents, instead of 20 cents for one-seventh of a mile.

Waiting time has been increased from $9 an hour to $11 an hour.

The fare increase was necessitated by the tremendous increase in gasoline price, according to Newton Taxi Association statements, as well as the increase in cost of automobiles.

Brookline is the most expensive community in which to ride a cab, according to the taxi association' with a "drop" of $1 for the first sixth of a mile, and 20 cents for each additional one-sixth of a mile, for a total of $2 for the first mile. The "drop" is the minimum charge for getting into a cab.

Other representative communities are Arlington at $1.80 for the first mile, Belmont at $1.40, Wellesley at $1.80, and Needham at $1, waiting to see what Newton's new taxi fare is, according to the taxi association.

Taxis will continue to offer books of fare tickets to senior citizens that will give them a 10 percent discount on taxi fares.

New plans considered to preserve golf course

NEWTON — Two new plans for preserving the former Chestnut Hill Country Club golf course have been presented to the aldermanic Land Use Committee.

At a special meeting this week to consider the proposal to develop 10 acres of the land with 60 townhouses as a means of financing the retention of the golf course under city ownership, the committee agreed that the objective is to keep as much open space as possible.

But the committee could not agree on whether the city needs or should have a golf course. The decision on the housing depends, at this moment, on whether the golf course is retained.

The two new proposals presented at the meeting are both aimed at keeping the golf course with fewer townhouses to be built.

The 60-unit development — 40 units on Algonquin Rd. and 20 on Kenrick St. — has not been well-received by Algonquin Road residents, who have said it would double the density on their street and cut off their view of the open space.

According to the developer, Barkan Properties, that number of housing units, in the location as proposed, is necessary to recoup the $1.2 million Barkan will pay to the Newton Commonwealth Improvement Corp. for the 10 acres of land. The NCIC is a group of 21 neighbors who own the country club land and are trying to preserve the rest as open space.

Ward 7 Alderman Lisle Baker presented a plan to reinstitute his betterment-district proposal so that neighbors in the area could be assessed by the city over a 20-year period to come up with about $400,000 of the $1.2 million NCIC members need to break even on their investment to save the land from total development and get it into city ownership.

Last year, before he was an alderman, Baker worked out a plan to use betterments to provide the difference between funding expected from the state and the total cost of the property so the city could acquire the land. State funding fell far short of the needed amount of money, and the development plan, until then only a contingency plan, went into effect.

The betterment assessments could mean that at least 16 fewer housing

. . . and all that jazz!

Michael Ullman

By STEPHANIE GIBIAN
Staff Writer

If the most famous jazz musicians have to worry about retaining control of their music or about guarding their gifts against the fitful adulation they may receive, the others have to deal with the extensive disregard of the public. Rock musicians have more money and classical musicians have more status. It is no wonder that jazz players are not even happy about the name "jazz," a term with obscene origins, a label that implies to many people a harsh, uncompromising music that will not sell. Jazz, it is argued, is a music of a minority of listeners, black and white, heard rarely on the radio and almost never seen on television.

—Michael Ullman in "Jazz Lives"

Despite the small numbers of jazz fans (at least in comparison to fans of other types of music) as well as the fact that jazz has not permeated our lives the way pop and classical music have, Ullman says that there was so much to say about this type of music that it was impossible to put it all in one book. "Jazz Lives," which was published by New Republic Books in March, is Ullman's first book. With the exception of a very informative introduction, the book is really a series of essays on various people involved in the making of jazz music, be they musicians, agents, composers, or lawyers. Some of the essays had previously appeared as articles in New Republic Magazine, others have never been published.

"I try to talk about all different kinds of people in the book," said Ullman recently in his Newton Highlands home. "It's impossible to include everything. The impetus behind writing this book was the desire to attack many of the superstitions about jazz, and to show the variety in people's lives. The ones that I talk about have very impressive credentials, they are remarkable as people. Many of them are not well known, so I wanted to introduce them to the public."

One of the essays is about Maxwell Cohen, a lawyer who helped fight the cabaret card system in New York. The system was set up to license performers in bars and clubs, preventing those with police records from performing in New York. During its existence the system became corrupt, and Cohen fought the system in the New York courts until it was abolished.

Ullman also introduces Maxine Gregg, who runs a jazz artist management business called MsManagement, saxaphonist Sonny Rollins, bassist Charles Mingus, and several others, known and unknown. Some of the essays, especially of the more well-known artists, are critical, others are based mostly on interviews. They all, however, give an idea of the diversity of people involved in the jazz world, and it is apparent, even after reading only a few essays, that making it as a jazz musician is a long and difficult task.

"In the record industry, jazz musicians don't get the publicity that rock musicians get, and they don't get the status that classical musicians get," said Ullman. "Jazz is essentially an American product. Many of us feel it should be respected."

"Jazz depends on innovative players doing different things all the time. Since early times, this form of music has gotten very different," he continued.

It is this very quality of jazz, the innovative and experimental quality, that could be the reason why jazz music can't seem to hold onto a steady, solid group of fans. People hear a certain jazz form that they like and they stick to it. Soon, the same artist who introduced the new form is trying something else, something that may pick him up a new group of followers, but which may leave the old fans cold. Thus, jazz itself really seems to be composed of many different branches, each one representing different styles, and each one with its own small group of fans.

"I have a friend who is a very astute listener, and I took him home to listen to a record by Cannonball Adderly, who at this point, I thought, was playing very straightforward, very funky music. Well, my friend listened to it and said that it was 'abstract.' Being totally unfamiliar with the genre, he thought that there was something wrong with it," recalled Ullman. "Many people feel this way about jazz. They don't understand it, or else they don't like its origins with the black people. We all go through a period when we are very rigid, because in a way, it's more comfortable that way. For example, the people who grew up in the Swing Era say that Swing is it."

Ullman, 34, feels that he was "lucky to have grown up in a time when many of the great jazz artists were still alive."

He recalled that he was 12 years old when he first heard Louis Armstrong, one of the few jazz artists to achieve the kind of status that

Fessenden students help special needs kids learn skating

NEWTON — Every year, from October to March, the Fessenden School provides an hour of ice time every Saturday for a skating program for Newton's physically and mentally handicapped children, run by Fessenden students and faculty.

The student "coaches" work individually with the handicapped children, teaching them to skate. At first, the special needs child sits on a chair, wearing skates, and is pushed around the rink by the coach to get the feel of the ice. Eventually, the special needs child learns to stand behind the chair and push it. The final step comes when the child can skate without the help of the chair.

Fessenden teacher Ned Douglas said there is a pool of about 35 students who volunteer one hour on Saturday to help children less fortunate than themselves.

"It's one way we can really help the community," he said.

The Fessenden students say they really enjoy the program and learn from it. Most of them have had little or no contact with the handicapped, and they express great satisfaction at seeing the special needs children making progress learning to skate.

"At the beginning they don't want to get on the ice," said ninth grader Matt Basinet. "At the end they don't want to get off."

Seventh grader Andy Donnelly said he was surprised at the progress the handicapped children made during the program.

"I thought it wouldn't be fun," he said. "I didn't think they could skate. I didn't think I could help them because I was so young and they were older than I was. I thought they couldn't do anything. I thought they sat at home and didn't do anything. I found out they could really learn to skate. One person knew even more about hockey than I do."

Ninth grader Howdy Lapsley said one of the nice things about the program is that it involves "kids helping kids."

"Instead of learning with someone older than yourself, you can have fun with someone your own age," he said.

Gary Hofstetter, who directs special needs programs for the Newton Recreation Department, said that many of the handicapped children in the program have no verbal skills and others have difficulty communicating, but this does not seem to pose a real problem for the student coaches.

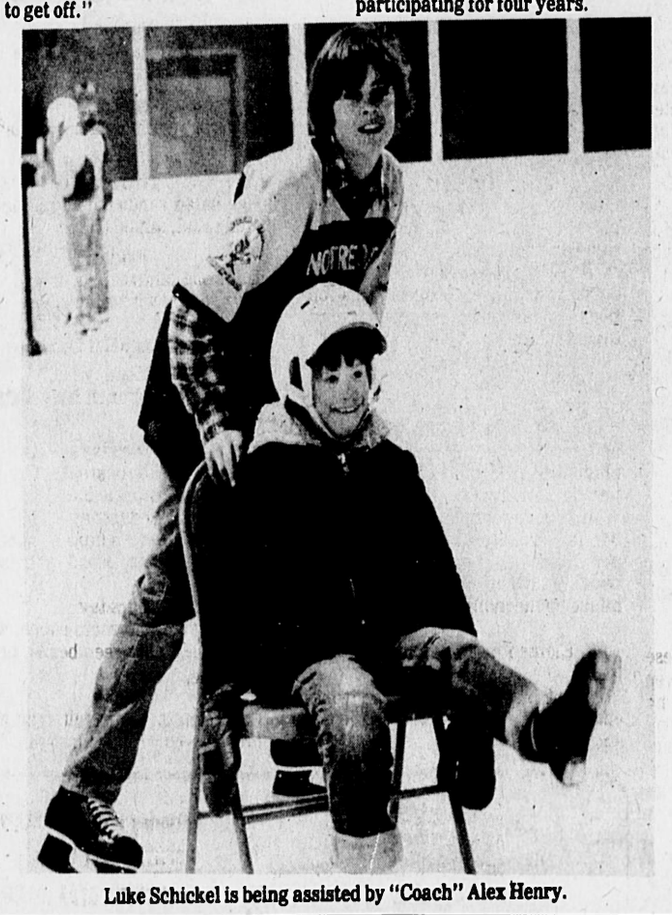

The program started five years ago through the work of members of the Newton Special Needs PTA. Some of the Fessenden students have been participating for four years.

Many checks for violations never cashed

NEWTON — There are thousands of dollars in uncashed checks for parking fines stored in cardboard boxes at Newton District Court.

There may be as much as $100,000 in uncashed checks, one alderman estimates, although city Comptroller Lawrence Marino doubted that figure Monday.

"I can't tell," Marino said. "There are cartons of unpaid things." He added the processing of overdue parking tickets is plagued by "gross inefficiency."

This newspaper has learned a report on the situation has been requested by Mayor Theodore D. Mann, and that the report is expected to recommend the city assume responsibility for the parking ticket system that is now, legally, the responsibility of the state.

In fact, the city has been unwillingly involved in the processing of summonses for about three years, and the city computer is used.

Although not a city responsibility, the money for postage to mail summonses has been periodically appropriated, with city officials reasoning that although the expense is unjustified, it does result in revenue that would otherwise go uncollected.

Rumors of bottlenecks at the courthouse in the processing of summonses, and unconfirmed reports that the state has plans of its own for the parking ticket revenue prompted aldermen on the Administration and Planning Committee this week to earmark the next postage appropriation for a holding account.

The mayor has requested $13,000 for postage for the next fiscal year. The committee will recommend the money be placed in "budget reserve," an account requiring a vote of the Board of Aldermen before the funds can be used.

The report to the mayor is being prepared by Marino, Treasurer Theodore Scafidi and Data Processing Director Richard Walsh. The report is expected to confirm what many city residents probably know; that if they do not pay their parking fines nothing will happen.

Summonses cannot be mailed as they are received because the court reportedly cannot handle the workload.

If summonses are mailed and returned because of an improper address, they are reportedly ignored' as are fines that are not paid.

Fines that are paid pile up in boxes and are slowly processed. Marino said Monday the court is probably two or three months behind at this point.

Scafidi said the situation is "really a crime." By not processing checks quickly, he said, the city loses revenue, and citizens have to wait months for checks to clear.

The report , sources say, will not only show that the state has abrogated its responsibility for the tickets, but that there are few internal controls and that there is an opportunity for theft.

For the city to take responsibility for the system, an act of the state Legislature would be required. In practice, the city has already taken responsibility for the operation from the point a parking ticket becomes delinquent to the mailing of the summons.

Mayor Mann said Monday he might support a change in state law if that is the only way to ensure the city will receive the revenue from parking violations.

Mann estimates the city has spent $35,000 during the past three years to collect parking fines' and before the court system was taken over by the state, he attempted to get reimbursement from the Middlesex County Commissioners without success.

The mayor is obviously uncomfortable with the present arrangement and he has discussed the problem with city officials and with Chief Administrative Judge Samuel Zoll. He is also attempting to arrange additional CETA help at the courthouse.

But unless the city steps in and picks up costs of the operation such as postage, the city will lose the revenue, and the interest that revenue can earn once it is in city accounts, Mann said.

Judges want a more efficient system, Mann said, but the Legislature has been unable to provide the necessary funding.

Newton is not the only community that has had to make arrangements for processing tickets because of a lack of state funding, and Mann called the situation "a financial time bomb fraught with all kinds of complications."

Players present diabolical 'Monique'

HIGHLANDS— The Newton Country Players is offering live theater with followed by a dinner out at Cantin' Abruzzi on Friday, April 11, starting at 8 p.m., when the group will perform the diabolical thriller, "Monique."

The play will be presented at the Congregational Church in Newton Highlands. On Friday, April 11, following the performance, the cast and audience will meet at Cantin' Abruzzi for dining and camaraderie.

Guests will have a menu from which to select an entree. The cost is $10.95 per person, and reservations may be made by calling 244-9538.

Translated from the French play by Dorothy and Michael Blankfort, "Monique" is full of spine-tingling suspense and eerie supernatural occurrences. It is the story of a country doctor, Monique Rigaud, who convinces her lover, Fernand Ravinel, that they must kill Fernand's wife, Lucienne, if they are ever to have a life together. How she does this, and the surprising results, will intrigue all members of the audience.

Cast members include: Lynn Rainin (Monique), John Deming (Fernand), Jennifer McConathy (Lucienne), Larry Morris (Inspector Merlin), Ditta Lowy (Henriette), Stephanie Gibian (Lisette), Walker Smith (Gouttez), Gary Jones (Andre), Cathy Porter (Suzanne), Vivienne Kimball (telephone operator), and Andy Myers (messenger).

The play is directed by Susan Martin Nussbaum and is produced by Ron Bocage. Others involved are: Dwight Walsh, set designer; Vivienne Kimball, stage manager; Sandy Deming, costumes; Adrienne Lowenthal and Michael Sturgeon, set construction; Richard Comfort, lighting; Rich Williams, sound; David Moore, production assistant; and Marcia Golden. tickets.

"Monique" is being presented on April 10, 11, 12, 17, 18, and 19 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $4.50 for adults and $3.50 for students and senior citizens. The play will be performed "in the round," so seating is limited. Call 244-9538 for reservations.

Opinion coming on gifts by cable firms

NEWTON — An official opinion on gifts to the city offered by applicants for Newton's cable television license may be forthcoming by the end of the week.

The special inducements offered by four cable companies, three of which have been selected by the Newton Cable Advisory Commission as the three finalists, have been challenged by James Salter of Newton MetroVision, which offered nothing in the way of additional inducement except lower-cost service.

The advisory commission, whose report was to be ready for Mayor Theodore Mann April 4, has not completed the final report, according to Roger Lewenberg, Planning Dpeartment Department liaison for the commission.

Lewenberg would not release a copy of the "draft," which is still being circulated to commission members, he said, before final submission to the mayor. He said the final report will be available April 11.

In the past, so-called draft reports of the commission have differed little if at all from the final version. In this case, it is difficult to see how the final report cannot agree with the recommendations of Warner Amex, Continental and Teleprompter as the top three, made in open session of the commission March 27, since the commission has not met since then.

The special inducements — amounting in each instance to $800,000-$1 million over the life of the 15-year license — were termed "inappropriate, unethical and illegal" by Salter.

Salter said as soon as the mayor awards the license to one of the three top-selected firms, his firm will be an "aggrieved party" and will file for an advisory opinion from the Massachusetts Cable Commission.

He feels that the delay in the issuing of the report is for the purpose of "justifying the decision they made."

Jeffrey Forbes, head of the state cable commission, has been reported to have already given an opinion of sorts to the mayor — that inducements directed toward "third parties," not City Hall directly, are not objectionable. The inducements .save been offered te help the library and communications in the city. more

Salter feels that the commission may be awaiting an opinion by Forbes before releasing its final report.

The refusal to make public the draft report may constitute a violation of the public records law. The law allows the exclusion from public scrutiny certain information that pertains to the development of policy, but excludes very little else. There seems to be no exemption stated in the law that would keep the draft report secret.

The mayor has unlimited time in which to make his final decision on the licensee. But he has often spoken of his desire to get the cable TV operative in Newton quickly. He was recently quoted as wanting to have it in Newton during 1981; the previous target date was March 1981, and before that was a 1980 date.

The advisory commission did not act as expeditiously as was first thought it would.

He has studied computer programming at Boston University. He is married to the former Margaret Mczgillicuddy of Roxbury and they have five children.

South conversion meeting April 15

NEWTON CENTRE — A discussion on coverting Newton South to a four-year high school will be held at the school Tuesday, April 15' at 8 p.m.

Principal Ernest Van Seasholes will present the plans to date and review anticipated changes. Department heads will attend and the public will be invited to ask them questions.

Holocaust to be commemorated April 13-19

NEWTON — In cooperation with an executive order of the President of the United States establishing a United States Holocaust Memorial Council, Mayor Theodore D. Mann joined the United States House of Representatives in declaring April 13-19 as "Days of Remembrance of the Victims of the Holocaust."

The mayor calls upon institutions of learning, religious organizations and civic groups to encourage individuals and groups to seek ways by which the memory of the Holocaust can serve as a warning to beware of those who preach religious and racial intolerance and bigotry.

Birthday plans for Earth Day starting

NEWTON -- The City of Newton and various civic organizations are planning a week-long birthday celebration for the 10th anniversary of Earth Day, a yearly festival of grassroots environmental activities.

Mayor Theodore Mann has declared Tuesday, April 22, Earth Day, and the entire school vacation period Earth Week.

Earth Day's birthday begins Saturday, April 19, with a volunteer clean-up of the Dolan Park conservation area, and continues throughout the week with a nature walk, an Earth Jog, solar displays, recycling and resource conservation exhibits, films, gardening programs, and a tree-planting ceremony, among dozens of community-sponsored activities.

Barbara Herson, Birthday coordinator and chairwoman of the Natural Resources Committee of the League of Women Voters of Newton, said that the city will be "going all out" this year to celebrate the beginning of a new environmental decade.

"We have proved during the last 10 years that individual people can make a difference in the environmental quality of their communities. Earth Day's birthday in Newton will recognize that contribution," she said.

Organizations participating in Earth Week festivities include the Environmental Protection Agency, the Massachusetts Audubon Society, the Charles River Watershed Association, Girl and Boy Scouts, Brownies and Cub Scouts, garden clubs, school groups, local libraries, and other neighborhood and community groups. For more information, call Barbara Herson at 964-7463.

B.C. larceny draws 1 year in Billerica

NEWTON — A 23-year-old Boston man convicted of larceny in Newton District Court Tuesday was sentenced to one year in the Billerica House of Correction.

Angelo Crawford, 23, was accused of walking into a room in a Boston College dormitory and trying to steal a wallet.

Four Boston College students testified that they found Crawford in their suite of rooms and held him until campus police arrived. One student said he noticed Crawford in one of the bedrooms going through what appeared to be a pair of pants. Since another student testified that the door to the suite was open, Crawford was acquitted on a burglary charge.

Judge Monte Basbas found Crawford guilty of attempted larceny and, citing the defendant's "long, long, long record," Judge Basbas sentenced him to one year in the House of Correction. Crawford will appeal.

Answers awaited on Fernald death

By STEPHEN HARTSHORNE
Staff Writer

WALTHAM — The special state Senate committee investigating patient deaths at state-supported institutions and the U.S. District Court monitor of the Fernald School consent decree are both awaiting a final report by the Department of Mental Health on the Jan. 24 death of a resident of the Fernald School.

The resident, 25-year-old Richard DiBerto, was pronounced dead at Fernald's Thom Hospital after he was taken there by car from a Waltham restaurant. According to three informed sources, DiBerto choked on solid food which he was given at the restaurant by a member of the Fernald staff. DiBerto had been on a puree diet since Jan. 2, according to Fernald medical records.

DiBerto's death, and two other deaths at Fernald in December and January, have prompted Fernald Superintendent Joseph Wert to form a task force to equipment "review the status of existing medical supplies and at the school."

According to Fernald Communications Director William Gorski, that review will be carried out by the staff of the Eunice Kennedy Shriver Center, which has a contract to supply medical services to the school. The task force from the Shriver Center, Gorski said, will cordinate its efforts with Deputy Superintendent Paul Gendron and Director of Health Services Carolyn Lawless, who have been asked by Wert to "expand internal emergency procedures to include emergencies which occur when residents are out in the community."

Gorski also said that the institution's death and dying committee is also "developing procedures to which the staff must adhere upon a death in the facility."

The sister and legal guardian of the deceased, Maryanne DiBerto of Acton said the report by Fernald on her brother's death "raises more questions than it answers." She and her brother William have been investigating the death on their own.

"My brother and I have always insisted on a separate and parallel investigation and we never got it," she said. "We are not satisfied with the Fernald investigation. There are still many unanswered questions."

Ms. DiBerto raised several of these unanswered questions to Steven Horowitz, who has been appointed by U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Tauro to monitor Fernald's compliance with a consent decree which calls for building improvements and increased staffing at the school.

In a letter to Wert Feb. 5, Horowitz listed these questions and said that his office would initiate "further inquiries" if they remained unanswered.

DiBerto said that she received "conflicting reports" about her brother's death from the staff at Fernald. One doctor reportedly told her that Richard was dead on arrival at Thom Hospital, while another said he was still alive when he arrived there.

Another question raised by Ms. DiBerto, and mentioned in Horowitz' letter to Wert, was why an ambulance was not summoned to the restaurant.

According to the same three informed sources, the night manager at the restaurant has stated that DiBerto was "having trouble breathing." The manager was reportedly told to summon another staff member at the school, who arrived later to take DiBerto by car to Thom Hospital

A member of a Fernald parents' group, The Fernald League, went to Thom Hospital the night after the tragedy and found it "locked up tight."

The manager reportedly stated that she was not asked to call an ambulance, but was asked to make a second call to Fernald to find out whether DiBerto was supposed to be taking medication. There was no answer to the second call.

One informed source within the Department of Mental Health stated categorically that the staff of Thom Hospital was not notified that a choking victim was on the way.

Maryanne DiBerto, and Horowitz, want to know why the staff took DiBerto to the restaurant when he had had a temperature of 101 degrees the day before and had been on a puree diet since Jan. 2.

Horowitz declined to comment on the case and according to his staff, he is expecting a final report on DiBerto's death later this week.

Also awaiting that report is the special state Senate committee investigating seclusion, restraint and death in state-supported institutions.

An aide to that committee, Michael Giampietro, said the Department of Mental Health reports on patient deaths made to the committee have been "incomplete, inconsistent with regulations and have failed to address important issues in each case."

He said that of four cases on which the committee heard testimony in November and December, three have been reopened by DMH and of those three, two have been referred to the Attorney General's office for further investigation.

One of these cases was that of a female patient who disappeared from Metropolitan State Hospital in 1978. Giampetro said that DMH investigators found that the woman had been frequenting a hut on the grounds with a male patient who has since been transferred to MCI Bridgewater.

Giampietro said that no interview with the male patient was ever included in the DMH report on the disappearance.

Investigators later found seven of the woman's teeth in the possession of the male patient and forensic analysis determined that they had been extracted post mortem. The woman's body was never found and she was never declared legally dead.

The chairman of the special committee, Sen. Jack Backman, said that the committee discovered that records had been falsified regarding the death of 19-year-old Scott Surette at the Solomon Mental Health Center in Lowell.

Backman said that a doctor made false statements about the death to the committee, but came back and finally told the truth because "his conscience bothered him."

Backman said his committee "does not have the horses to do an appropriate investigation of these deaths." He said he will ask the legislature to approve "full investigative powers" for the committee, including subpoena power and a larger budget.

Citing the $1.1 million appropriated for the commission investigating state building contracts, Backman said, "The human beings of the commonwealth deserve as much protection as the building contracts."

He said a full investigation of patient deaths at mental health facilities would uncover a situation "far more terrible and tragic" than graft in the awarding of building contracts.

"What is going on is a state tragedy," he said, adding that he will try to have a fully-empowered commission on patient deaths included in this year's budget.

Carter's arbitrary Olympics stance

More and more President Carter's insistence that American athletes boycott the Moscow Olympics appears to be a stubborn, arbitrary stance.

A broadly based group representing those athletes presented a reasonable compromise to the White House reently and it was rejected by the president out of hand. They proposed that they not take part in the opening or closing ceremonies, that they merely show up for their events and leave immediately afterward. They wouldn't even appear publicly to accept their awards, nor would they do any sightseeing in Russia or appear anywhere in public.

They made the point that their protest would be much more visible under such circumstances than making no appearance at all. President Carter didn't even od them the justice of studying the proposal. He merely said that his previous decision was irrevocable.

Meanwhile the National Broadcasting Company continues to advertise that it will be televising the summer games back to the United States. And the president has had no comment about that.

Flagging down the taxpayers

The controversial Cabinet level Department of Education is supposed to save money by combining educational projects and activities now handled by dozens of agencies and bureaus.

Maybe it will, although such cost-cutting procedures are not generally the habit of new organization.

For instance, why does the department need a flag?

It isn't just an American flag that is being prepared to be unveiled in May when the Department of Education becomes a full-fledged member of the Cabinet. The banner is currently being designed by no less an authority on the matter than U.S. Army's Institute of Heraldry. There is speculation that there may be a little red schoolhouse or an apple for the teacher on the pennant.

We'd be more concerned if the banner's emblems included argent dexter hands and in sinister, or eagle dormant. Roughly translated that's open hands of silver and sleeping illegitimate golden national bird of prey.

My Turn

The differences of equality

By STEPHANIE GIBIAN

I was watching one of the those ubiquitous evening magazine shows with my roommate recently, when a segment came on about the women's ice hockey team at Boston University, which, we were informed, was doing quite nicely.

The girls had to field the usual questions from the reporters about being female in a traditionally all-male sport. One of the team members gave a reply that I thought was very nice and straightforward.

"When I'm not playing, I like to go home and put on nice clothes and just be soft and feminine," said she.

The derisive snort coming from my roommate was a clue that she didn't think that it was as good (or as honest) an answer as I thought it was. She obviously did not think that vows of femininity was something that should not be spoken loudly, let alone over the public airwaves. And it is this kind of attitude that is becoming more and more common, and one which I find particularly disturbing.

The idea that women cannot have the same rights as men and remain feminine is ludicrous, because it implies that womanhood is inferior to manhood.

I first became aware of this paradox when Gloria Steinem and the women's liberation movement began to gain momentum around the country.

I saw the man-tailored suits that Steinem and her followers wore, and the brisk, masculine ways that they had adopted. As I took all of this in, I wondered, why are these women trying so hard to be like the members of the very group that they so much time raking over the coals? Don't they feel that they are worth enough in their own right to show they are superior in their own ways?

Although the cause of women's liberation has been beneficial in several ways, it seems as though many people have lost track of (or never had a hold of to start with) one very important fact: that women are women and men are men, and, although they are all entitled to the same rights, they will never be the same.

Remember the grade school teacher who spent so much time trying to teach us all how to add and subtract? She always had to remind us that two apples plus three pears did not equal five of either' the reason being that apples and pears are different. One is just as good as the other, but they are different.

I think that the same rule applies to men and women. I have always taken it for granted that women should have the same rights as men, I have never thought that but being a woman was degrading. If I did, I might go around wearing men's suits, hoping to become as much like a man as I could.

Of course, because of the differences between men and women, there are things that men can do that women can't, and vice-versa. Men, because they are biologically different (and not biologically superior) can lift heavier objects than women can, and they have a tendency to play rougher sports, although the B.U. women's ice hockey team is testimony tochanges in this area.

Women, because they are biologically different, are able to have babies. Now, who out there has ever heard aman screaming about the unfairness of his inability to equal a woman in this area?

The ERA still has a long way to go before it is passed, and although it is simply repetitive of the rights granted to all people by the United States Constitution, it will at least symbolize the existence of the equality of men and women. Back in the Dark Ages (remnants of which still remain, to hear some people talk) there were those who honestly did not believe in such equality.

Nowadays, we know that the legal equality is here, although there are those who still insist on bending the rules a bit. But it is taking quite awhile for people to realize that all the legal rights in the world won't erase the inherent differences between men and women.

Real and more important strides will be made when women will not have to compromise femininity in order to get ahead, and when men can accept the femininity in a woman without thinking she is weak or inferior in any way.

Only when all people can accept the differences in each other without thinking in terms of inferiority or superiority can true liberation exist.

Sadat to the rescue

Commentary by Joseph Kraft

CAIRO, Egypt — Sadat to the rescue emerges once again as the theme of the drama. The action turns on progress towards peace in the Near East. In the process Jimmy Carter receives political help, and history saves a place for Menahem Begin. That at least is the scenario brought to my mind after a long session with Sadat on the eve of the Washington talks he and Begin will be having separately with Carter this week and next.

The Egyptian president received me at his villa adjoining the dam across the Nile just outside Cairo. He seemed fit and in good spirits, and he was, as usual, elegantly dressed in a dark blue double-breasted suit. We sat outdoors under a tree. "I'm just a villager," Sadat said in the tone of the country boy who has fooled every city slicker in the world.

I asked Sadat whether, as I had heard in Washington, he had pushed for the invitations that are bringing him and Begin to visit Carter. "Carter phoned me and extended the invitation," Sadat replied. That suggested a political motive, and I asked the Egyptian president his feelings about the coming election in the U.S.

His reply was formal. "I am very happy and satisfied to work with Carter. But it is the decision of the American people. I have nothing to do with this."

Begin, Sadat said, had been "scrupulous" in meeting Israel's obligations to Egypt under the peace treaty worked out at the Camp David talks. But he had hung back when it came to fulfilling the Camp David agreement on "autonomy" for the Palestinian Arabs residing in the Gaza Strip and on the west side of the Jordan River. Sadat cited various obstacles put in the way by Begin, including the insistence on the right to build new Jewish settlements. He said:

"All the signs confirm that the man wants his role to end here. He wants to stop in the middle of the road. He wants it stated in history that he is the man who achieved peace with Egypt. But he will be very wrong, because (the man) who comes after him will have the whole credit."

As to exactly how the difference between Israel and the Palestinians might be settled, Sadat showed the kind of pleasant vagueness that is probably appropriate to heads of state on matters of such fine detail. He spoke of a "political directive" that would be issued by himself, Begin and Carter to their ministers.

The "political directive" would "define" the content of autonomy. It would require concurrence by the Palestinian Arabs for new Jewish settlements — thus in effect freezing the settlement issue. It would reserve Arab rights to East Jerusalem. It would define in detail Israel's security needs. The Israelis would be allowed to station troops in certain stipulated areas. They would be guaranteed against Arab Palestine becoming an independent state for at least five years. But they would not be able to use "security" as an excuse to prevent the passing into Palestinian hands of such matters as health and sanitation and water rights and land tenure.

The prospect that the Palestinians would refuse even such a formula does not seem to bother Sadat. "I shall never speak for the Palestinians," he said. "My job and I think Carter's job and Begin's is to put them on the right approach. We have to do our job."

As to whether Begin will eventually accept something that can be called autonomy for the Palestinians, Sadat seems to be genuinely unsure. "I have heard people say he was against it. But I don't know. I wonder. I really wonder."

If Begin is tempted, Sadat will undoubtedly make it easier for him. The Egyptian president is flexible about details and about timing. He has kept the subject matter purposely vague. If the Carter-Begin sessions which follow the Carter-Sadat meetings bear fruit, there is already scheduled, for April 21, a meeting in Washington of the principal negotiators — Ambassador Sol Linowitz, Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil and Interior Minister Josef Burg. If that session succeeds, presumably there would be a replay of the Camp David Summit that all three leaders could claim as a triumph.

For Israel, the vagueness of the Sadat approach presents grave risks. The larger considerations of geography and population require that Israel live dangerously. It is far better to face the perils one at a time now, than later when they may all converge, and when that most courageous and farsighted of leaders, Anwar Sadat, is no longer in position to ride to the rescue.

What doesn't cause cancer!

Commentary by Paul Harvey

Don't breathe; the air is toxic! And it's worse indoors than out.

Don't eat; the food is contaminated!

Don't drink water with chemicals in it.

And for goodness sake, don't drink water WITHOUT chemicals in it!

If Americans don't die of cancer they may worry themselves to death!

Again, if Americans don't die of cancer they may worry themselves to death.

There is much more evidence against "stress" in the news than there is against nitrosamines in beer.

There is much evidence of anxiety-related heart disease; almost none against nuclear power plants.

The pickets are picketing the wrong places.

The National Center for Health Statistics recently compiled all available statistical evidence on cancer incidence, cancer varieties and probable cancer causes.

Wait'll you hear!

Much of the cancerphobia results from one pair of numbers. Cancer deaths in the United States increased from 351,000 in 1973 to 396,000 in 1978.

But the major reason for the increase in the number of cancer deaths is "old age." Americans are living longer, long enough to become more likely candidates for cancer.

So the National Center for Health Statistics has adjusted its mortality tables to allow for this longevity factor.

And now the numbers take on new meaning.

Now the cancer death rate, instead of increasing 12 percent in this past decade has increased only 2.5 percent.

These newest statistics, which I am about to review, will tell us what our odds are for getting cancer — and what kind — and (ital) how we might improve those odds in our own favor (unital).

Over the past 50 years the incidence of stomach cancer has DECLINED — dramatically.

The rate-per-thousand population of colon and rectal cancer has declined fractionally.

The incidence of prostate cancer is about what it was 50 years ago.

Also the chance of anybody dying from cancer of the pancreas, the esophagus and the bladder is essentially unchanged.

Odds on dying of leukemia are about what they were.

This would seem to indicate that we've been worrying about the wrong things. There is here no evidence that increased radiation exposure is a significant factor.

But one kind of cancer makes all cancer statistics look bad.

Lung cancer has multiplied itself 5,000 in 50 years! And ironically, this is the one cancer we can prevent.

Opinions

Preferable use

To the Editor:

This week I received a telephone call from Alan Green informing me that his four-story Belmont-Harwich condominiums in Harwich, were built from the ground up and not on the shell of the two-story addition to the old Belmont Hotel as I had stated before the Land Use Committee Feb. 11.

He also informed me that his proposed condominiums on the Murley Farm land would be in clusters of 4-6 units and not 6-8 units as I had stated in my letter of March 27 in the Newton Graphic. I thank Mr. Green for this information.

My contention that the low-density, controlled development of single-family unattached houses on Old Mill Road which adjoins the Belmont-Harwich property is a more preferable development than the Belmont-Harwich high-density condominium development still remains.

Furthermore, I maintain that the Zone A low-density development of 38 unattached houses on the Murley Farm land is preferable to the Private Residence district, high-density development of 66 attached condominium units.

Iranian dilemma

To the Editor:

I'm in complete sympathy with President Carter's problem of how to gain the release of the American hostages held by the fanatic Iranian militants.

I have no suggestions for a solution to the problem.

However, I find completely inexusable the decision at the top level of the Carter administration or the State Department, to refuse to give refuge to the estimated 100 Iranian Jews who are seeking to escape from persecution by the Ayatollah Khomeini.

These citizens, now homeless, fled Tehran and have arrived in Europe, but by edict of President Carter's Special Iranian Crisis Team, they have been consigned to hanging in 'limbo' in Paris or London, waiting desperately to come to the United States as political exiles.

While I was not in disfavor of Carter's opening the door to the Shah, I see an unhappy parallel here.

The State Department officials who have been questioned admit to the facts above. I understand a State Department official has commented, "Human rights interest — yes, but to let in is not part of our national interest."

According to a direct quote of Jack Anderson, the noted new columnist, "This is like Germany in the 1930's when immigration red tape prevented hundreds of thousands of Jews from escaping the Holocaust."

While I'm certain that the State Department feels that allowing these Jews into the United States could conceivably antagonize Khomeini, doesn't it seem that we should take a stand on these human rights?

Academic freedom

To the Editor:

The Social Studies faculty at North High School, with the support of the superintendent of schools and four members of the School Committee, has won an impressive victory for academic freedom. They have staunchly held to their right to use a certain film on Africa the way they see fit.

The fact that the black studies coordinator found the film objectionable, the fact that many members of the black community find the film offensive, and the fact that the tends to reinforce offensive stereotyping about black Africa apparently just isn't that important.

Even though the film was purchased by the School Department 25 years ago, before Birmingham and Selma and the Civil Rights Acts, before METCO, and before virtually everything that contributes to our present view of race and ethnicity, the superintendent and the North faculty have steadfastly refused to "censor" this film. (After a tie vote in the School Committee, the Social Studies chairman graciously offered to withhold it temporarily).

I do have a couple of questions though: I would like to know who purchased that film; what process of screening and review took place before the film was purchased; and whether the School Department has ever, under any circumstances, determined that a piece of purchased curriculum was ever inappropriate.

I ask because I know someone who's peddling a new film which extolls the Aryan culture and another one that demonstrates clearly that for little Italian children a life in the Mafia isn't half bad. This person figures that if the School Department would just purchase these films, the North social studies faculty and the superintendent would once again uphold academic freedom and make sure the films were shown uncut and unexpurgated, if that's what the teachers wanted.

Sarcasm aside, I urge the four committee members who voted against the motion to shelve "The Hunters" to reconsider when the issue comes up again.

If the appropriately designated school official and a large segment of an ethnic minority believe that a film is offensive, why isn't that sufficient? Why shouldn't every situation like this be dealt with on its merits?

Relying on catch phrases like "academic freedom" rather than dealing with the substance of a complaint is provocative and divisive.

Cruel hoax

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, April 1, Channel 7 resorted to a cruel joke on the public. Channel 7 showed an erupting volcano supposedly the Blue Hill and if this was not enough, pictures of firefighters amid burning buildings.

The worst of this irresponsibleility was not as much hoax in itself, but the failure to immediately acknowledge the error once the phone lines became loaded with calls from people condemning such activities.

It was a miracle someone did not rush out of his house, jump in the car and head for the Blue Hill area where a loved one might have been.

If only one heart attack resulted in all this, it would have been one too many.

Snob zoning

To the Editor:

Being an abutter of the Murley land, I have sat through several interesting Land Use Committee meetings and have heard many people discuss the pros and the cons of this issue.

Some people say that there should be an end to snob zoning and that we should not stand in the way of progress. No one objects to those people in snob zoning carrying a disproportionate share of the city's expenses on their backs. These people who live in the snob zoning areas do not advocate any change from the "one man one vote" policy.

I constantly wonder why other people have chosen for one reason or another not to purchase homes that carry a higher tax price tag consistently attack these people for wanting some of the benefits which people who have purchased this type of real estate have a right to expect.

Outside of allowing the developer to make a sharp profit in developing land, I have heard no other reasonable argument for the change from single family zoning to a zoning which would permit condominiums or some other form of real estate in the Countryside area.

I believe that the Land Use Committee has done its job in examining all facets of this problem and has, it appears, achieved some compromises which have satisfied many of the abutters at the Countryside site.

Still, this does not change the fact that the purpose of the request for zoning change was based purely on the economic opportunity for a developer to make additonal profit dollars on this specific zoning change.

I doubt that this is a sufficient reason to grant a change in zoning.

Planting time

To the Editor:

It is spring fever in Cambodia. The land and its people must seed and cultivate now if massive tragedy is not to prevail come the fall.

In Cambodia life must prevail. Be preventative. Give seed money for food first, now.

Prayer vote

To the Editor:

I wish to take this opportunity to applaud the School Committee on its recent decision on school prayer.

Religion is in the heart, not in the curriculum. It is a separate experience from public education and should be treated as such.

While this dec'sion to challenge the state law was a difficult one, it certainly was justified; or need I discuss the history of separation of church and state?

Political decisions are never easy to make. We can rest assured that the present School Committee is aware of the ramifications of every vote, and is willing to substantiate their votes as being in the best interest of the City of Newton.

Social Security cards a must for summer jobs

NEWTON CENTRE — Young people planning to work for the first time this summer should not wait until the last minute to get a Social Security card.

Many employers refuse to hire a person who cannot show a Social Security card, according to Carleton Merrill, Newton veterans' agent. Some employers, he said, will accept a receipt showing that a card has been applied for, although many prefer to hire someone who already has a card.

Newton young people without a Social Security card may apply for one any Thursday between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. in the Department of Veterans' Service at Newton City Hall.

That is the day Newton has a Social Security field agent present to assist young people in making application.

Applicants must provide evidence of age, identity and U.S. citizenship or lawful entry into the United States in order to qualify for a card. It then takes about six weeks to receive it.

People over 18 must apply for the card in person. They must present an original or certified copy of a birth certificate or church record of birth or baptism recorded before age 5 as proof of age and place of birth. Current identification, such as drivers license or student ID card, is also required.

A-V gear stolen from high school

NEWTON — Electronic equipment valued at $4,300 was taken from Newton North High School, 360 Lowell Ave., sometime during the past five days, police said Monday.

The equipment, a cassette video recorder, a television monitor and a stereo system, were taken from an audio-visual room that was apparently opened with a key, according to police.

Inside the room, padlocks on equipment lockers were cut. In a separate report Monday, a scale and a projector lens were taken from the school during the past few weeks.

In other reports, a 19-year-old Somerville man was arrested and charged with burglary and operating after suspension of a license in connection with a break at 819 Commonwealth Ave. reported about 2:55 a.m. Monday.

Sgt. Marilyn T. Connell and Officer Harold J. Travers were first on the scene. They found the rear door of the home caved in, and saw a 1976 Pontiac leaving the area.

A short time later Officer John J. Bartinelli, Jr., stopped a similar car near the intersection of Commonwealth Avenue and Exeter Street.

The driver of the car was charged with operating after suspension and, after some investigation, was charged with burglary ' police said.

comes more easily to other musicians.

"He hit me immediately as a great artist," Ullman said. "He played a gripping blues that was immediately comprehensible to me. I knew I understood the blues because it is a very emotional style. Of course, I was very out of it because nobody else I knew was listening to jazz. I was very grateful to Ray Charles for making some of my favorites more popular. He was my only connection to the greater world!"

Now an English instructor at Tufts University, Ullman owns over 6,000 record albums, mostly jazz and classical, with some folk thrown in for good measure. He has lived in Newton Highlands with his wife Harriet for two years. His interest in jazz is purely as a fan, although he played the clarinet when he was younger, and he has recently started learning to play the piano, "mostly classical."

One of the reasons that he chose people with a variety of connections to jazz music for his book, explained Ullman, was to show the alternatives that many musicians have developed when they realized that they could not survive on jazz alone.

"The problem with being a musician is that you have to learn to survive people's whims. You can't just pick up jazz music. It is a long and difficult tradition. The tendency is to replace what is old with what is new, and the tragedy is that a lot of people drop out without having made a decent living at it," said Ullman.

"It is worse for rock stars, though, because when they don't make it they are dropped immediately. Jazz musicians, if they stay with it, can build good, solid careers for themselves, although they may never achieve the kind of stardom that other musicians do."

Golf

units would have to be built, Baker said, and the burden would be spread over the entire district.

Jane Pitt, former chief administrative officer to Mayor Theodore Mann and a resident of Algonquin Road, offered a novel approach that would have the city bond the $1.2 million and "turn the land over" to a community foundation that would act as its own developer.

The foundation, Pitt said, would be responsible for paying the interest and the principal on the bond, and the venture would cost the city nothing.

Pitt said the foundation could swing the deal by building 16-20 units for sale at $175,000 each, the same price proposed by Barkan Properties' because the foundation would be nonprofit. Presumably the foundation would realize some revenue from the lease of the golf course.

There are a number of unexplored questions surrounding Pitt's proposal, which are expected to be answered before the Land Use Committee takes up the subject again on April 28.

Both proposals go on the assumption that the golf course stays, and the Barkan development proposal is also put forward on that basis.

Barkan said some time ago that the presence of the golf course was part of the selling plan for the condominiums and would be necessary to get the price he said he needs.

Some members of the Land Use Committee are not convinced of the need or desirability of a golf course.

Baker referred to it as a "management vehicle," at times as an "18-hole management vehicle"' meaning a vehicle for preserving and maintaining the open space.

The golf course would be self-supporting, under lease to a nonprofit foundation set up by the city, if the current plan goes through.

Ald. Susan Schur is not so sure it would succeed as a public course, and asked, "If it fails, then what?"

That question was never answered, but according to Land Use Committee Chairman Terry Morris, the city would own a lot of open space it could not take care of.

Baker and Ken Campbell, who operated the course last summer for the NCIC, presented projections of income and expenses that show a $15,000 profit at the end of the golfing season in 1980.

Campbell projects increasing use of the golf club over the next few years, with a $21,000 profit in 1981.

Baker is optimistic about the success of the club. He has talked to professional golf people and state officials who say there is an unmet need for golf facilities in this area, he said.

French group at Park School

BROOKLINE — The Park School will host a group of 40 students from France this summer from July 5 to Aug. 5, in cooperation with the Centre de Tourisme Universitaire of Paris, an organization specializing in cultural exchanges and programs in foreign countries. The students, ages 15 to 20, will be offered an academic program at The Park School and a chance to experience living with an American family.

Mornings will be devoted to classes in English and courses in civilization. A number of afternoons will be spent sightseeing, exploring the Boston area, and learning about activities in this country through visits to factories, colleges, hospitals, TV stations, etc. A four day trip to New York city is also on the visitors' schedule.

Anyone who wants more information about the program, hosting a French student in your home, or making a contribution, please call Dana Monacelli or Bernard Planchon at The Park School, 277-2456.

Salaries

$28,548 salary, a 10.5 percent increase.

Personnel Director Edith Meisser's salary jumps from $23,111 to $26,260, a 13.6 percent hike.

City Solicitor Daniel Funk is not far behind, with a 13 percent raise to $30,160.

Library Director Virginia Tashjian is in for a 12.6 percent increase, to $28,548, while Recreation Director Russell Halloran reached the same level from $26,375, an 8.2 percent increase.

Building Commissioner Allan Fraser is going from $25,650 to $28548 $28,548, an 11.2 percent raise.

Planning Director Barry Canner will get a $2,548 increase to $28,548, for a 9.8 percent increase.

Data Processing Director Richard Walsh was given a 7 percent increase to $28,396, while Water Commissioner Verne Porter's 7 percent raise brings him to $25,846.

Fire Chief Edward Reilly also gets a 7 percent increase, for a $31,475 salary.

Public Works Director Charles Thomas's salary was raised 2.9 percent, giving him a salary approaching that of the mayor. Thomas will be making $36,380; the mayor's salary is $37,500. Thomas is the city's highest paid department head' but Police Chief William Quinn may end up ahead after collective bargaining is completed.

The executive director of Community Schools, William Slotnik, not technically a department head, was jumped from $15,488 to $21,580, and a note in the budget says this increase does not reflect a requested regrading of the position.

There is $26,551 in the budget for health commissioner, a position that will be vacated July 1 by Carolyn Zavarine, M.D.

Services

large cuts over last year's appropriations. The Planning Department was cut by 17 percent, the Building Department by 21 percent, and the Engineering Department by 40 percent.

Planning Director Barry Canner said the public will not find copies of reports and memorandums for the Land Use Committee so easily obtainable, since he has made up $56,000 cut by reducing paper supplies, overhead, dues and subscriptions, and printing and paper.

"There has been no staff reduction. I'm not happy but not depressed, but I am afraid of what happens next year — I can't do this again," Canner said. His budget is now $284,000.

Acting City Engineer Paul Giunta took a 40 percent cut in his departmental budget. Giunta said last year's budget was unusually high because of equipment purchases, so that the cut is not as severe as it might seem.

The Engineering Department budget is $292,760.

Part of the cut is attributable to the elimination of two positions that were funded last year but never filled. Despite that, Giunta said, he does not expect services to the public to be affected. "We just have to live with it," he said.

Building Commissioner Allan Fraser, who has been pleading for first eight, then five new positions to keep up with the increase in building and related inspections and zoning enforcement, was cut by 21 percent of his previous year's appropriations.

The mayor approved the five new positions, however.

Fraser said the cut was made principally in the account for maintenance of public buildings that are not school buildings.

He is already $20,000 overspent in that account, Fraser said, and will have to ask for transfers of funds. He will break that news to the Board of Aldermen next week.

The FY81 Building Department budget is $1.5 million.

There are 20 buildings that need new roofs, Fraser said. The cut in his budget means, he said, "I'll just put on fewer roofs."

He expects that a bond issue will be sought for roof replacement and repair.

The $10.2 million Public Works Department budget is $585,000 lower than the total appropriated for FY80, which in turn was $1.2 million more than was budgeted. for FY80.

Some departments were luckier. The Assessing Department got a 10 percent increase in its $195,000 budget. Data Processing was given an 8 percent increase, for a total budget of $268,000. Civil Defense got a 9 percent increase to the sum of $6800 per year for the department.

The Newton Free Library received a 1 percent increase, for a total recommended budget of $1,071,375.

The 28 percent increase in the Police Department budget will be offset down to 4 percent or less by the use of about $1.2 million in revenue sharing funds, which are always applied totally to police salaries and reduce the police department budget by that amount.

Ald. Mark White called the budget as submitted "unrealistic."

The amount put into budget reserve by Mayor Theodore Mann, $1.1 million, is not enough, White said, even though the mayor has indicated that he will come back to the Board of Aldermen for more money for collective bargaining and energy cost.

White says there will have to be at least another $2 million added to cover the salary increases.

Police Dept. salary accounts

New record keeping suggested

NEWTON — City Comptroller Lawrence Marino has recommended new record keeping procedures following an audit of Police Department salary accounts.

Marino inspected police payroll records for a six-month period after Alderman Richard McGrath gave him copies of court-time records of police officers that pointed to discrepancies.

The three court cards that prompted the audit were "honestly misdated," Marino found, but he also discovered that charging the time the officers worked to a court appearance account was not proper.

"Only a small portion of time was spent in court that day," Marino said. "In fact, some officers were not in court at all that day, but were writing reports in the station."

Marino said Police Chief William F. Quinn has already directed bureau commanders to carefully examine overtime and pay officers from the proper account.

Marino recommended there be a permanent court time log maintained in the police prosecutor's office and that the log contain sign-in and sign-out times for officers' district court appearances.

If an officer appears in another court, entries in the log should be made by the commanding officer, Marino recommended. The log, with the "court card" should be used to prepare the payroll, he said.

The comptroller also recommends developing a computer program to produce reports on daily and weekly overtime, court time and extra detail payments to officers. The computer print-out would replace the hand-typed forms that are used for payroll.

Marino said the computer program would be a valuable management tool and would minimize the possibility of clerical error.

In a memo from Quinn to Marino during the audit, the chief said that since the three court cards were brought to his attention, he had instructed bureau commanders to pay officers through the proper accounts as outlined by city ordinance and contract.

Quinn told his commanders to be particularly conscious of payments for investigations and stake-outs that ultimately lead to arrests and subsequent court appearances.

The payment of significant overtime to some officers, with less seniority than other officers, was also questioned at the time the court records surfaced.

In Quinn's memo to Marino the chief said the authorization for overtime is the responsibility of the bureau commander. In the Patrol Bureau the patrol captain gives lieutenants authority to hire officers on an overtime basis to fill vacancies.

It is difficult to ensure an equitable distribution of overtime because of last minute vacancies, Quinn said, but added lieutenants have tried to distribute overtime fairly.

Patrol lieutenants also distribute extra details, and it is sometimes difficult to fill those details on weekends or late at night, Quinn said.

During those periods, the chief said, officers who do not mind working weekends or late hours may have received more details than other officers.

Patrol lieutenants have notified all officers that if they feel they have been overlooked an adjustment will be made.

McGrath, who requested the audit, said Marino's recommendations will remove the potential for abuse. McGrath said he hopes the chief will implement the recommendations before the budget for next fiscal year is approved.

Trash Talk

Goodnews, badnews

By BETSY LEWENBERG

Newton's newspaper recycling program has some good news and some bad news to report.

First the good news. Newton is now receiving $17 per ton for newsprint. At this market price, the newspaper recycling program has the potential of bringing a net profit to Newton's treasury.

Now the bad news. Participation in the Newton Recycling Program has been dropping during the past six months, jeopardizing the chance of profitability for paper recycling.

If we recycle approximately 1900 tons of newsprint in 1980, the same tonnage as was recycled in 1979, we can earn a profit of $10,000 for our recycling program.

This estimate is based upon the present price of $17 per ton for our paper added to the savings incurred by not hauling our paper to the dump with refuse (over $17 per ton, and going up again on July 1,) the sum of which is subtracted from collection costs of approximately $55,000. If we can increase the tonnage we recycle, as we have done each year since 1975, our profit margin will be even greater.

The bad news — the drop in participation — is baffling, especially in light of the steady increase in tonnage recycled over the past five years.

A combination of several factors might account for the present situation. First of all, scavenging has been on the increase in recent months. Since our paper is valuable, some individuals have found it worthwhile to pick up the papers from curbside for their personal profit.

Not only is this costly to Newton, it is also blatantly illegal. If you see a scavenger pick up your paper — any truck or vehicle other than a city truck — or any vehicle collecting earlier than 7 a.m. or during evening hours, try to get a license number.

Report this number, or at least a description of the vehicle, to the police (552-7264).

Drop in participation may also be a result of some confusion regarding the collection schedule. Although glass and cans are no longer collected for recycling on a weekly basis, newspapers are still recycled each week on your regular trash day. The system is simple. Paper must be tied in bundles (paper bags will not be accepted by the company that buys our newsprint without a substantial drop in the price they pay us) and be at curbside by 7 a.m.

With a concerted effort to improve the tonnage of paper recycled — by reporting scavenging and putting out bundled newsprint regularly on trash day — we can improve on last year's 1932 tons of recycled newsprint and earn more than $10,000 for our city. Not only will this help our treasury, it will conserve trees, energy and dump space for our environment.

Spread the good word and help others to help our community by participating in the Newton Recycling Program.

For more information about the Newton Recycling Program, call 552-7221.

3 arrested in burglaries

NEWTON — Three men were arrested on burglary charges by Newton police this week. One was arrested after a neighbor reported an attempted break on Commonwealth Avenue early Monday morning and two others were apprehended after they surprised a woman in her home on Linwood Avenue Tuesday morning.

Police say Mark Febbi, 19, of Somerville was arrested after a reportof a burglary in progress on Commonwealth Avenue around 3 a.m. Monday. He was charged with burglary and driving after suspension.

Jeffrey Crosby, 29, of Acton and Robert Rodriguez, 25, of Jamaica Plain were arrested Tuesday morning after an attempted burglary on Linwood Avenue.

Police say a woman was upstairs in her house when two men kicked in the front door. She ran downstairs and said, "Dear God, what are you doing here?"

The woman saw the two men get into a dark green car and head toward California Street. Police located the two men, who were positively identified by the woman.

Crosby and Rodriguez were arraigned Tuesday in Newton District Court on burglary charges.

Thieves forced a cellar door at a Mt. Vernon Street home and stole jewelry between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Tuesday.

A burglary on Centre Street was reported Tuesday. Police say that sometime since April 2 a door was pried open at the house and $608 worth of household goods were stolen.

Dayan says U.S. is 'too weak'

NEWTON, Mass. (UPI) — Implementation of the Camp David accords may take longer than expected, but given time and flexibility a comprehensive peace can be achieved, former Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan says.

Dayan also said the United States needs to build up its "military option" because it has lost credibility and is in "too weak a position" in the Middle East.

"The credibility of the United States has suffered" because of the stalemated hostage situation in Iran and the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the retired supreme commander of Israel's armed forces said.

"You should have the facilities for a military option if and when you want to use it. Without it, it will be difficult for you to maintain your influence," he told reporters at a morning news conference.

Dayan, who has served in numerous military and ministerial positions since Israel attained independence in 1948, said he had "long discussions" on Palestinian autonomy with President Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance earlier this week in Washington.

But he refused to reveal the content of the discussions, which were in preparation for the upcoming visits of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

A United Nations Security Council resolution condemning Israeli settlement policies in occupied territories was "a scandal," Dyan said, although he declined to comment on the Carter adminstration's later reversal of its vote.

"I think it's a scandal, it's a shame, it's not going to work," Dyan said. "I don't think history will reward with its favor the decision of countries who supported it."

Dayan did say he was optimistic a settlement of the Palestinian issue could be reached, but added "it is up to them (Jordanians and Palestinians) to make some move to support our initiatives.

"Neither Jordan nor the Palestinians came to Camp David. Without them, it is doubtful anyone can impose autonomy on them. Israel is willing to end its military administration of occupied areas, but there has to be cooperation," he said.

Dayan said he believed an agreement on the autonomy issue would eventually be reached based on "many meetings" with Palestinian leaders.

"Knowing the feeling of the Palestinian Arabs, there are ways ... to achieve a settlement. But it's a matter of showing flexibility and giving time. It's now a matter of finding the right language to talk to one another.

"I don't think they would prefer to have the Israeli military administration [illegible] place of their own leadership," he sa[illegible] n their best interests to have autonomy."

Dayan said Israel would not dismantle its settlements on the West Bank. "They are there to stay. Israel is to stay in the West Bank."

He expressed confidence "the main elements and principles of the Camp David agreement will be carried out," although he hinted there might be "slight changes." He declined to say what those changes might entail.

Dayan called President Sadat's decision to allow the exiled Shah of Iran to live in Egypt a "political demonstration."

"He wanted to demonstrate he was independent, and that he would not give in to the pressure of Khomeini and the radical Arab countries," he said.

Dayan in Newton

Arriving on the dais at Temple Mishkin Tefilah in Newton Sunday is former Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan. Greeting him are Mayor Theodore D. Mann, center, and Temple President Leo Karas. Dayan was the featured speaker at the event, sponsored by the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston.

50's Night

NEWTONVILLE — A "50's Night" is planned Saturday, April 12, at 8 p.m., at Carr School, 225 Nevada St., Newtonville.

The evening of entertainment is part of an ongoing school effort to raise funds for a 6th grade trip to Washington, D.C.

At the "50's Night," music will be provided by Ron Piselli and refreshments will be served. Admission is a donation of $3 per person.

The Williams School PTA will be sponsoring a Boston Children's Theater performance of "Winnie the Pooh" on Saturday, April 12 at 2:30 p.m. at the Day Junior High School in Newtonville. The adaptation is under the direction of Tracy Shoolman, who is also the narrator. Settings are by Kim Sammis and costumes are by Lynn Kessinger. Some members of the cast, chosen from the creative drama classes at the theater, are: Rachel Thornburn of Newton Centre; Michael Alper of Auburndale; Karyn Cohen, Michael Dorr, and Kim Nuttall, all of Newton.

A free CentralBank bunny ...just for openers.

CentralBank/Chestnut Hill and CentralBank/Needham are giving away gifts to depositors. Just deposit $250 or more into any new or existing savings account,* and we'll give you a free bunny.

If your sweet tooth wins out, you can have the Smucker's Sundae Twosome instead — two sundae dishes and three 6-oz. jars of Smucker's ice cream toppings. Or, you can choose a 72" x 90" blanket for those chilly end-of-winter evenings.

When you deposit $5,000 or more, you can walk away with one of the following: A man's or woman's Timex Watch. Hallmark's classic Chrome Felt-Tip Pen. A three-piece Corning Ware Wildflower set, for beautiful cooking and serving. Or, a complete sixteen piece set of Homer Laughlin Ironstone Dinnerware, which is both durable and attractive.

Visit our Chestnut Hill or Needham office today and take home one of our free gifts just for openers.

Assistance available for rent increases

People with low incomes who have been unable to pay their rent may now be eligible for some financial assistance with their rent through the federal and state fuel assistance programs. Most rent increases can be traced to the nearly doubled energy costs this year over last year.

As of April 1, Action for Boston Community Development, Inc. (ABCD), is taking applications from eligible people that may result in payment of 35 percent of a household's monthly rent. ABCD administers the fuel assistance program for the communities of Boston, Brookline, Dedham, Needham, Newton and Waltham.

Until now, an applicant had to present a fuel or utility bill in his or her name. Now, the program has been expanded to include households in which the heat and utilities are included in the rent.

To qualify, first, a household must have total annual income at or below the following levels: one person, $5100; two people, $6750; three people, $8400; and four people, $10,050. For each additional person, add $1650 to the total yearly income.

Next, a household that receives no subsidies for rent or utilities must show that its rent is in arrears. Rent is considered to be in arrears after it is three days late. The fuel assistance program covers rent in arrears back

Then, the head of the household should take proof of total household income to the local fuel assistance office and have an application filled out. He or she will be asked to sign a separate agreement, which will then be taken to the owner of the property, or the owner's agent, for his or her signature. Once the application is returned, and if approved by ABCD, the payment will be sent to the owner of the property, who will have agreed to apply the payment to the applicant's rent.

For households that received utility subsidies under certain housing subsidy programs, the fuel assistance program will pick up where the subsidy ends and pay the remainder of the utility bill if the applicant is otherwise eligible. The head of the household should bring in the unpaid utility bill.

The basic rules that govern the fuel assistance program still apply to these newly eligible groups. One is that a maximum of $600 may be paid per household and another is that the program ends June 30, 1980.

To date, more than 18,000 households have been served by ABCD's fuel assistance program. Interested potential applicants should go to the Newton Department of Human Services at City Hall (552-7170).

Mann: 'Let state assume transit tab'

NEWTON— The state of Massachusetts should assume full responsibility for mass transit, said Mayor Mann in a news conference Thursday.

Mann also said that he did not favor any alternate plans for easing the fiscal problems of the MBTA, including payroll taxes.

"We have come full circle in the area of mass transit. The state attempted to get out of its involvement with mass transit, but now they are in it fully," said Mann, who recently appeared at the State House before the Transportation Committee.

"House Bill 2154 would require the state to assume 100 percent of the cost of mass transit. We now assume 50 percent of the deficit," said Mayor Mann.

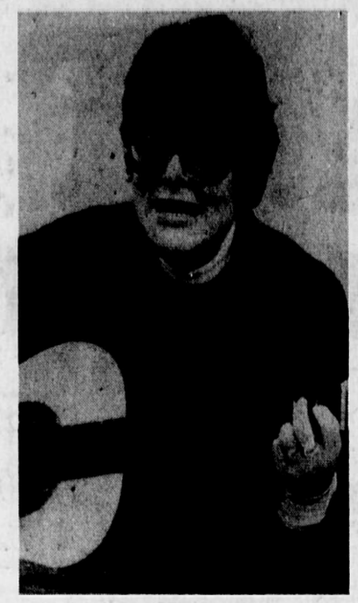

Mann said that there are three basic points to considerwhen determining financial responsibiltiy for the MBTA: that the inefficiencies and the high cost of the system are excessive, that MBTA Chairman Robert Foster cannot be blamed for all of the problems, since Governor King controls the management of the system; and that there is an inequity on the boarder charges, which "become a burden to communities like Newton" because of the riders from other towns who board in Newton.

Newton's past is examined in slide show

NEWTON CENTRE — In response to community interest, the Emerson Community School is offering a special event slide presentation on the history of Newton. This event, led by Kenneth Newcomb, will be held Monday, April 14, 7:30 p.m., at the Emerson Community Center. Join Newcomb as he takes you on a pleasant historic journey through Newton and its founding villages.

Registration for Newton Community Schools members is $2. For nonmembers, membership fees are $5 for family, $2 for individuals, and 50 cents for senior adults. Registration and membership fees will be accepted at the door.

For more information, please call 244-8453 or the Newton Community Schools office at 552-7118.

Lisa Neustadt

NEWTON — All families are welcome to join the Underwood Community School's "Family Sing-Along," a special event to be held Friday, April 11, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., at the Bigelow Jr. High.

Performer Lisa Neustadt, a well-known singer and teacher at the Underwood School, will lead this event. Lisa has recently returned from a singing tour of Scotland, where she performed on BBC-Scotland, at folk clubs, in concert, and at the Edinburgh Festival.

Lisa has been playing music and getting children and adults to sing with her since she was a kid herself. Her greatest satisfaction comes from actively involving her audience in the music. To this end, she sings gospel, sea chanteys, work songs, and ballads with easy-to-follow chorus lines.

Lisa performs all manner of traditional American music, including songs of the Victorian era pop music of the 40's. Her singing was strongly influenced by Black church music, through her friendship with Bessie Bullock of Creedmoor, N.C. She also learned much source material from the family of old-time Oklahoma circuit-rider, Davis Hammel.

Lisa works in Newton and in other Eastern schools coordinating music and social studies. She has done consulting as well as performing for the Massachusetts Council for the Arts.

Lisa Neustadt has been recorded on two anthologies, and with Jean Redpath and the Angel Band on an album entitled "Angels Hovering Round." She has performed in concert and at coffee houses, colleges, schools and festivals.

Registration for Newton Community Schools members is $2 per family. For more information, please call 527-6455 or the Newton Community Schools office at 552-7118.

Aldermen okay Fire equipment

NEWTON — The Public Safety Committee Thursday supported Fire Department requests for new communications equipment, but were not on the same wave length when it came to police requests.

Public Safety is one of three aldermanic committees examining a combined police-fire improvement package amounting to $2.5 million.

Included in the package is a $1.3 million request for a three-story addition at the rear of the police station and a rearranging of space in the existing building.

After some verbal fencing between Public Safety Chairman Mark White and Public Facilities Chairman Richard McGrath, the committee steered clear of the building proposal and stuck to equipment. McGrath claimed plans for the police station building renovations were his committee's turf.

Committee members agreed fire equipment is antiquated. Needed is a completely new radio system, and a new alarm system to replace equipment that was up-to-date 50 years ago. One alderman said comparing police and fire communication systems was like comparing Cadillacs and Model "T"s.

Still intact after committee scrutiny are police requests for closed circuit TV systems, a videotape system, telephone tape recording, back-up radio transmitters, and almost the entire request for expanded computer capacity.

Cut from the police proposal is a $35,000 request for a sophisticated electronic target range, an intercom system, and a $16,000 request for darkroom equipment.

The committee compromised on other police requests. White will recommend one videotape camera instead of the two requested, and instead of 20 "pagers" throughout the station, he will recommend 10. A computer printer-plotter that will graphically point to hot spots for crime or accidents is cut from the proposal.

Still to be considered is the request item on the police equipment shopping list: heating, ventilating and air conditioning improvements for $105,000. That, as well as building related items, will be held for comment by Building Commissioner Allen Fraser.

The only other police equipment item awaiting committee action is a cellblock closed circuit system. Eight cameras are planned, one for each cell, with camera angles alternating on a monitor in the control room and at two other locations.

Alderman have asked for more information : specifically whether a different type of camera could cover more than one cell, and whether there should be eight monitors in the control room.

Police Chief William F. Quinn and his consultant, Timothy Coogan, argued a camera that rotated and scanned a number of cells was inadequate because it left blind spots. Alderman Joseph DePasquale used the same argument against a monitor that scanned the eight cameras.

Police are seeking a videotape system near the booking cage as a way to discourage unruly arrestees. DePasquale suggested a dummy camera would serve the same purpose.

Fire Department requests ran into less resistance, although committee members spent some time on proposed fire alarm boxes that include telephones.

The advantage of the voice boxes that will replace both existing fire telegraph boxes and police call boxes is that dispatchers can determine exactly the type of equipment that is needed in a crisis. Chief Edward P. Reilly, Jr., said. He added the boxes have proven they can cut down on the number of false alarms.

One of the most important aspects of the proposal, for both departments, will be the ability to patch together transmissions from police and fire mobile and portable radios.

In an emergency, such as the Dec. 25 fire at Warren Junior High School, Chief Reilly was unable to communicate directly with Newton police or with fire apparatus from other communities that assisted.

Betty and Gerald Ford

Betty still outspoken on her 62nd birthday

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (UPI) — Her husband Gerry is not running for President. Her daughter Susan is having a first baby.

And, ah, the sky is blue. Liberty and the pups whoop on the carpet-green lawn under the three-story palm trees.

Mrs. Gerald Ford — a former First Lady perhaps better known in her land simply as Betty — walks in the sun and shakes her blonde hair in laughter. In one of the frankest voices in the American experience, she announces that on this, her 62nd birthday, "I have a great serenity."

"It comes from being so active, doing things I find interesting — helping somebody," she said.

And, since leaving the White House four Januaries ago, the serenity that fits so well with her red shoes, her white slacks and her blue blazer, stems most probably from Betty Ford having helped herself first.

She left the White House and in a year had recognized the grip that alcohol and prescription drugs had on her. She took treatment and won one of the more spectacular Ford family struggles. She remembers the testing of victory.

"It was July 1978 in New York. I felt free of the dependency on drugs and alcohol. Gerry and I had gone to New York and we were getting ready to meet some very important people.

"Gerry was still having his predinner martini." (The former president has since given up all alcohol, slimming to a collegiate fitness, aiding his golf and his nationwide speaking.)

"I was up tight.

"With the tension and pressure of meeting these bigwigs, I felt that ... Wow. If there was ever a time when I might be tempted to have a pill or a drink, this would be it.

"Fortunately, I had my head on straight and I knew better than to do it."

She smiled. "I had a great dependency. That was then. Now I can laugh and scratch with the best of them."

She laughed. She left the scratching to Liberty.

"Now, on any morning, I can remember what happened the night before."

Mrs. Ford said a "No, thank you" is automatic when the wine is poured. And if drinks are passed, a tonic and lime, a ginger ale or mineral water will do fine. Life is so much more enjoyable without a headache in the morning." ——

A measure of the help she is giving others is the Ford mailroom. Among the stacks are currently some 1,000 invitations for Mrs. Ford to come and speak. She picks and chooses. She is out for money; not her herself; the talk gold goes to the Eisenhower Medical Center in Rancho Mirage, for building facilities for treatment and education of alcohol and drug dependency.

"I'd like to spread the great serenity," she said.

She uses her voice for this and other causes. Unwasted is the clout of a woman who can, with the assurance of an English queen, begin a statement by saying, "My husband and I ... "

A sampling of the Betty Ford voice at 62;

— On her husband's decision not to seek the Republican presidential nomination: "I was very pleased I had not offered Gerry any advice. We talked at length on the pros and cons. I had faith in what would happen.

"And I prayed a lot over it, that he would make the right decision. Gerry searched hard for it; the decision did not come easily. And he knew I would be just as enthusiastic either way."

It was part of the great serenity.

— On women in politics: "A woman for president? Barbara Jordan, she'd get my vote. I just like her. She has a mind of her own, you know exactly where she stands. I don't like people who blow with the wind."

— On a magazine poll judging Mrs. Ford sto be one of the 10 most beautiful women: Laughter from under the blonde hair.

"I'd rather forget that," she smiled. "I hope they were looking at the beauty on the inside, not on the outside."

The great serenity again.

Hot dogs: as important to baseball as first base

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Hot dogs and scorecards are almost as much of a basball tradition as the national anthem and the umpire's call of "Play Ball."

They're about the first thing baseball fans pick up as they seek out their seats in the stadium.

Hot dogs — or frankfurters, as they were first called — originated in Germany. But the ingenuity of a London-born man who immigrated to America and settled in Niles, Ohio, gives us the hot dog — a German sausage in a roll — as we know it today. And also the scorecard.

Both were the ideas of Harry M. Stevens, founder of Harry M. Stevens Inc., now one of the nation's leading sports concessionaires with headquarters in New York.

Homer Rose Jr., a grandson of Stevens who works for the Stevens firm, remembers his grandfather "very well," pointing out he was a colorful man with a marvelous personality.

Stevens died in 1934, when Rose was 22 years old. Rose's mother Annie was the eldest of the five Stevens' children and the only girl.

Rose related in a telephone interview that his mother, her two younger brothers and their parents sailed to America from England in 1882 "when Mother was only five years old."

"Granddad was a very ambitious man," Rose said. "He didn't like the stratified life in England. He couldn't advance. He had heard about job opportunities in America, especially Niles and the steel industry. When he arrived in New York, he asked the ticket agent for a ticket to Niles and the ticket agent asked if he wanted to go to Niles, Ohio, or Niles, Mich.

"Granddad said, 'The Niles where the steel mills are' and got his tickets for Niles, Ohio." There, Stevens found a job as a steel puddler, a job now long gone in the steel industry, Rose said.

"About the time of the Haymarket Riot," he continued, "strikes hit the steel industry and the Mahoning Valley. Grandfather, with five children, couldn't afford being out of work, so he took to the road to peddle the autobiography of the Ohio politician, John A. Logan, the founder of the Grand Army of the Republic."

As Stevens traveled the state, selling the book, he telegraphed money home to his wife and family in Niles. Once, while in Columbus, he took in a baseball game, but he didn't know who was playing.

Rose explained that his grandfather approached the club owner and asked if he could sell programs to tell the fans who was playing.

"So he got some advertisers, and some advance money, and had scorecards printed," Rose said.

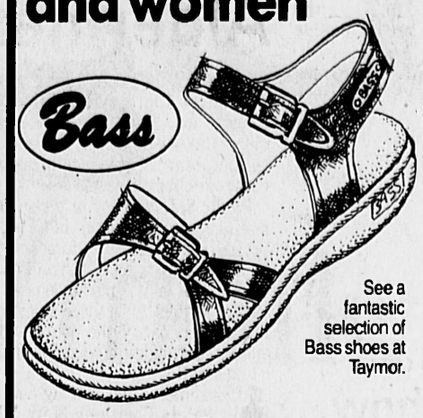

According to the Western Reserve Magazine, published in Garrettsville, Ohio, Stevens, dressed in a bright red coat and a tall hat, sold his new cards to fans as they entered the ball park. Those cards soon became as important to the fan as their ticket.

Paul Giunta appointed permanent city engineer

Paul W. Giunta

NEWTON — Paul W. Giunta of Waltham was appointed city engineer April 1 by Mayor Theodore Mann. Giunta has been acting city engineer since June 1978.

Giunta came to work for the city of Newton as water commissioner in September 1977.

He was appointed acting city engineer in June 1978 after the resignation of City Engineer Cynthia McCarthy. He continued as water commissioner also until April 1979. Verne Porter was appointed water commissioner at that time.

Giunta, 44, is a 17-year city councilor-at-large in the Waltham City Council. Giunta lives at 96 Main St., Waltham. He is married and the father of three children.

Giunta has a bachelor of science degree in engineering from Northeastern University and is a registered professional engineer. His professional affiliations include membership in the Massachusetts Society of Professional Engineers, the National Society of Professional Engineers and the Massachusetts Municipal Engineers Association.

Before coming to Newton, Giunta was city engineer for Marlborough and had held engineering positions with several large construction firms.

Giunta's appointment becomes permanent about June 1. The appointment does not require approval of the Board of Aldermen.

Anti-nukes plan Pentagon blockade

CAMBRIDGE — The Coalition for a Non-Nuclear World, sponsors of the April 26 March on Washington, confirmed recently that the group also plans to stage a non-violent blockade of roads and entrances to the Pentagon on April 28.

Geri Belle, of the New England Coalition office, stated that the action will begin with work slowdowns and leafletting at the Department of Energy.

"We want to dramatize the links between the Department of Energy and the Pentagon," Belle stated. "Nuclear power and nuclear weapons are developed and promoted by the same people — both the former Secretaries of Energy were previously with the Department of Defense."

"Also," Belle added, "the two technologies are interrelated. Nuclear weapons triggers are made out of spent fuel rods from commercial reactors, and 40 percent of the Department of Energy budget for 1980 goes toward nuclear weapons and submarines."

Organizers emphasize that only those who have had special nonviolence training and who belong to "affinity" groups will participate in the blockade itself. They are presently holding training sessions throughout the New England area.

Pentagon officials have not yet commented on the proposed blockade.

Carr, Davis okayed for other uses

NEWTON — The Land Use Committee gave the go-ahead the sale of Carr and Davis schools to be reused as another school and a commumity center, respectively.

The committee set a six-month time limit on a sale agreement for Carr School in Newtonville at the suggestion of Ald. Domenic Taglienti. If no school has committed itself to purchase of the school by that time, the process of determining reuse will start again.

Land Use Committee Chairman Terry Morris was concerned about the sale of the Davis School in West Newton to the Newton Community Service Centers Inc. without getting "something in return."

That should be the Pomroy House, a Newton Corner property owned by the NCSC, Morris believes.

But in order not to tie up the Davis disposition, the committee only made a recommendation to the Finance Committee, which now must determine the minimum sale price of the two properties, that in setting the price the value of the Pomroy House as a residential use should be taken into consideration.

As it is, the sale price of the Davis School will have to be low, because the NCSC has limited resources other than the Pomroy House and its Cherry Street building, both of which it plans to sell to have enough funds for renovation of the school for its purposes.

If the NCSC is forced to give the Pomroy House to the city in exchange for a low price for Davis School, its funds will be greatly diminished for renovation.

IN FOCUS

She creates American originals

By DOROTHY HINES
In Focus Editor

Patchwork quilts are American originals which conjure up visions of homesteaders' quilting bees and latter day rural cooperatives. Yet, a thoroughly contemporary young Newtonite is carving out a career in the traditional craftwork right from her home in Auburndale.

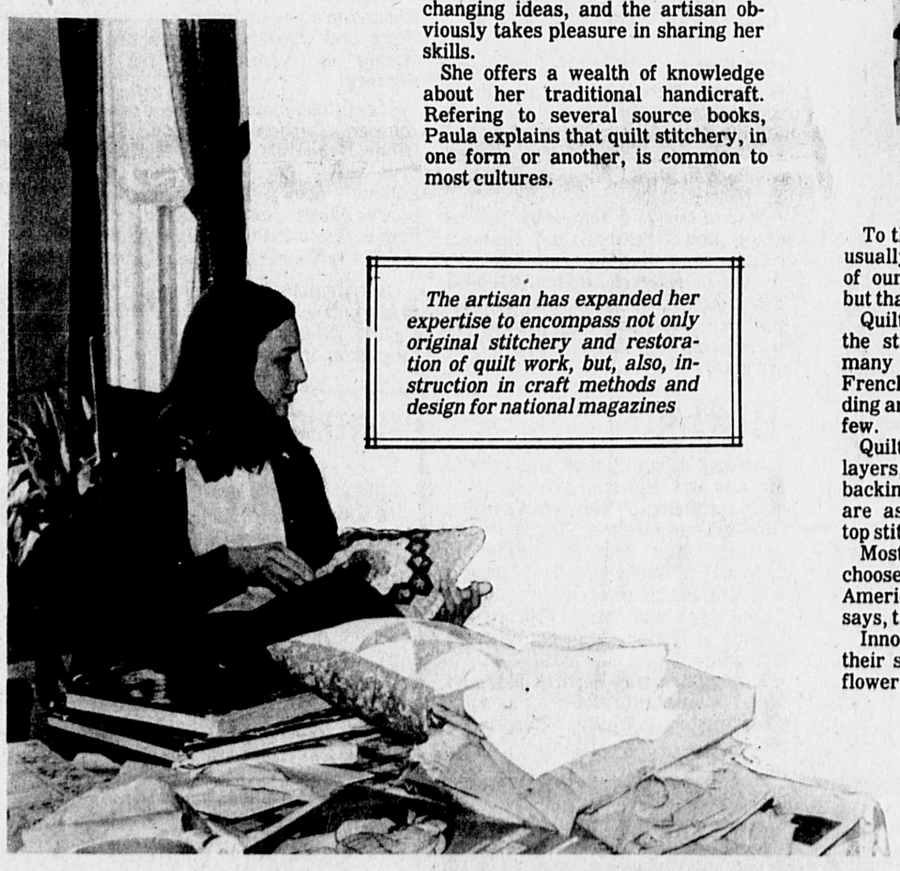

Paula Gulbicki was an art student at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, New York when she first became interested in quilting. Summers spent at the Brooklyn Museum picking out fabrics to restore antique coverlets sparked her imagination.

It was just about that time, in the early 70's,that the Whitney Museum, first-ever exhibition of quilts put the handiwork on the map.

Since then the artisan has expanded her expertise to encompass not only original stitchery and restoration of quilt work, but, also, instruction in the craft methods and design for national magazines.

While still in the New York area, Paula began craft design for "Good Housekeeping Needlecraft," "McCall's," and "Family Circle."

Since coming to Boston, after marrying Larry Carr of Dedham, she's expanded to full-time teaching of seven classes.

The artisan has expanded her expertise to encompass not only original stitchery and restoration of quilt work, but, also, instruction in craft methods and design for national magazines

The artist explains one of her many craft projects

The artisan acknowledges "it's been a struggle, she's had to hustle," but Ms. Gulbicki is dedicated to her modern day "cottage industry."

Although she works at home, the thoughtful young woman considers it a career and deplores the tendency to value craftwork only by the dollar sign, for then "it's hard for an artist to be an artist.

"Then it's difficult to justify what I'm doing on the economic scale, especially in an affluent suburb.

Paula is encouraged by the upsurge of interest in home sewing. A splashy ad in a recent edition of the New York Times hyped "Why you should sew."

And the times, also, dictate do-it-yourself projects. Recylcling clothing and leftover materials can be economically rewarding as well as psychically satisfying.

The Newton artist creates no mystique about quilt-making. She describes the sewing methods as similar to those of dressmaking or other needle projects. There's something for beginners as well as advanced stitchers.

In the dining room cum classroom of her attractively restored late 19th century home, surrounded by cherished, handcrafted furnishings, the teacher speaks warmly of her workshops.

It's an informal learning atmosphere, sewing, working with students of differing abilities, exchanging ideas, and the artisan obviously takes pleasure in sharing her skills.

She offers a wealth of knowledge about her traditional handicraft. Refering to several source books, Paula explains that quilt stitchery, in one form or another, is common to most cultures.

Newtonite Paula Gulbicki displays antique quilt

To the uninitiated the term quilting usually means the colorful piecework of our early American forefathers, but that's only one kind.

Quilting more correctly refers to the stitchery, itself, and comes in many forms. There's English and French style stitchery, Italian cording and Thai applique' to name just a few.

Quilted coverlets consist of three layers, the top, batting or fill, and backing. It's after the three sections are assembled, that the decorative top stitching takes place.

Most of Ms. Gulbicki's students choose to follow the traditional American patternings, and, the artist says, there are a zillon variations.

A few contemporary craftsmen, like Ms. Gulbicki, design their own things.

With a gleam in her eye, the Newton artist admits to being "far out," when she does things for herself. "I like to use textile techniques in unconventional ways.

"Especially in quilted clothing-it expresses another side of my art training.

And she keeps a hand in craft design too. Samples of decorative patchwork pillows and children's jackets are ready for a trip to New York magazine editors,as possible feature ideas for the fall holiday season.

The artist will offer another series of classes in quilting, trapunto and Italian cording beginning the weekend of April 12. For information call 965-1609.

KITCHEN CORNER

Chicken sports spring time flavor

Welcome Spring! Yes, it's finally here and the whole earth seems to take a new lease on life.

Even mealtime can be revived with sparkling new recipe ideas such as Lime Glazed Chicken. Familiar to all as a year-round favorite, chicken sports special springtime succulence when glazed with a mixture of pineapple juice, corn syrup and freshly squeezed lime juice.

Don't be fooled by the light, delicate taste of this chicken dish. Beneath the surface goodness lies a real nutrition heavyweight.

Chicken is an excellent source of complete protein: in fact, the same high quality protein found in red meats. It contains no carbohydrates and is low in fat — good news for the calorie conscious. Yet, it contributes valuable amounts of vitamins and minerals to the daily diet. Consider its easy digestibility, endless versatility and economical cost, and you'll agree that chicken is a hard bird to beat.

LIME GLAZED CHICKEN

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup vegetable oil
½ cup pineapple juice
½ cup light corn syrup
2 teaspoons grated lime peel
3 tablespoons lime juice
¼ teaspoon marjoram leaves

Sprinkle chicken with salt and pepper. In a skillet, heat oil; add chicken and brown on all sides. Drain off excess oil. Mix together pineapple juice, corn syrup, lime peel, lime juice and marjoram; pour over chicken. Cover and simmer for 45 minutes or until chicken is fork tender, basting several times with pan juices. Makes 4 servings.

Beef's still on top, but chicken's climbing

By United Press International

In 1973 a good meat department ranked fourth on a homemakers' list of 37 factors that influenced their choice of supermarkets.

By last year, the meat department had slipped to 11th place.

The surveys from which those figures are taken have been done annually since 1973 by Progressive Grocer, a trade monthly, and the Home Testing Institute, of Manhasset, N.Y. Each covers a representative sample of American homemakers.

Anong the factors shoppers now rank ahead of the meat department are: freshness dating on products; accurate, pleasant checkout clerks; well stocked shelves; convenient store location; good parking facilities; and good produce and dairy departments.

In 1973 meat accounted for 24.7 percent of store sales, according to the Food Marketing Institute, a trade association representing the American food industry. By 1978, the figure was down to 20.6 percent.

"The true growth product in the meat department is poultry," says executive editor Robert E. O'Neill, in a recent issue of the trade magazine, "sporting a 27 percent increase in consumption since 1970."

Poultry now accounts for 17 percent of supermarket meat sales. Even lamb and veal, which have for years been lumped in the catchall category of "other," now account for 2 percent each of the meat sales pie.

"It's sort of a long-term gain," O'Neill said in an interview. "When beef gets expensive, people turn to other things."

He also thinks the small growth in veal and pork consumption reflects greater sophistication on the part of consumers who travel more and are exposed to new food experiences.

People who get annoyed at the high cost of beef are apt to say, "At that price, I'm going to have veal," he added.

O'Neill said he was surprised at how well family packs are doing.

"People are laying out $18 or $23 for a package of pork chops. They're not going to eat it all at one meal. The assumption is they're freezing (the extra chops).

He said the popularity of such packages is "not necessarily in upscale supermarkets" whose customers have more money to spend.

"Family-size packages are the best thing to hit meat retailing in years," a Midwest manager told the polltakers. "We give customers a dime off (per pound) compared to the smaller packages, but we're getting sales of six to 10 pounds, meanwhile. It's not unusual to see a cart load of meat go out at $100 to $125."

Meat department managers are coping with high prices in other ways.

"A few are couponing fresh meats," O'Neill said.

One manager surveyed said he was planning to set up evening demonstrations to show customers how to cook meat in microwave ovens.

"Sizing and quality are important," he said. "You can't use a chuck roast and expect good results, for example."

Another said sampling and demonstrations paid off. Among these were in-store meetings for high school classes and low-income groups, to show them how to select and prepare low cost meals.

Nine in 10 meat departments surveyed still carry USDA graded choice beef — but one in three now carries ungraded.

"Not all beef grades out as choice at the plant," said Ed Mik, a Sacramento, Calif., supermarket meat director, "because it has minor defects. Yet it's too good to be graded good. So we get very close to choice beef without the (federal grading) stamp. It's a money saver."

As for the future, we're still a nation of beef eaters, in O'Neill's view.

When prices drop, he said, "It's an article of faith. Beef is Number One. That's not about to change."

Joe Santos: From Cops To Comedy

Joe Santos never plays it straight. Despite a string of cop roles, including a six-year stint as a detective on "The Rockford Files," the actor who now stars as a playboy bachelor father on NBC-TV's new comedy series, "Me and Maxx," Saturdays (9:30-10 p.m. NYT) says, "I think funny all the time. That's where my head's at, and everything I do reflects it."

Following the years on "Rockford," he wants to stretch his skills further. "I loved that series, and I'll miss working with my friend Jim Garner, but the best time to move on is on an 'up' note."

Shedding his cop image, the tough-looking ex-taxi driver, bartender and construction worker from Brooklyn feels grateful. "Hollywood is noted for putting people in a box, and I kind of got caught up in the cop syndrome by playing detectives often on series like 'Police Story,' 'The Blue Knight' and 'Shamus,' as well as weekly on 'Rockford.'"

A divorced father of two sons, who live with him, Santos brings his own perspective to the role of Norman Davis, whose swinging lifestyle in New York is cramped when 11-year-old Maxx (Melissa Michaelsen) moves into his pad in "Me and Maxx." Gradually the mismatched pair, locked to each other when Maxx's mother departs for parts unknown, learn to live, laugh and love together.

"I always find facets of myself that lend themselves to the material, and the part of Norman rang a resounding chord. One of the truest love affairs is between a father and child, whether that child be male or female. Every man from the Hunchback of Notre Dame to Don Juan can relate to the kind of love that comes across between Norman and Maxx."

Santos aims to bring zaniness, warmth and understanding to Norman Davis. "This is no cartoon character. Sometimes he's wise. Sometimes he's a fool. Basically he's loveable -- and I hope he bounces off the walls."

LOOKING ON THE LIGHT SIDE -- Joe Santos sheds his "Rockford Files" cop image to star as a free-spirited swinger adjusting to the new role of bachelor father on NBC-TV's "Me and Maxx," Saturdays (9:30-10 p.m. NYT starting March 22).

National homemaker service undergoes name change

NEWTON — The Intercommunity Homemaker Service was informed recently that the national nonprofit standard setting organization of which we are an accredited member has changed its name, by vote of its members, from the National Council for Homemaker-Home Health Aide Services, Inc. to the National HomeCaring Council, Inc.

The National HomeCaring Council, in collaboration with Intercommunity Homemaker Service, works together with agencies and service programs throughout the United States, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Canada to insure the delivery of good quality in-home care services and to monitor the continuing quality of those services.

The new name reflects in part the burgeoning interest in home care, one of the fastest growing social and health care services in the country. Homemaker-home health aide service helps families to remain together when they experience illness or tragedy. It provides an option for the aging to remain at home. It permits countless hospital patients to be released more quickly. Whether measured in terms of cost savings or in terms of human welfare, the value of this service cannot be overestimated.

The National HomeCaring Council works in conjunction with Intercommunity Homemaker Service to inform federal legislators of these advantages, to disseminate information on homemaker-home health aide services to consumers and other affected publics, to create training guides and programs for expanding present and older services, and to advocate for creation of new programs.

Fur further information, contact the National HomeCaring Council, 67 Irving Place, New York, New York 1003, or Intercommunity Homemaker Service.

Redstone-Korff

Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Redstone of Newton announce the engagement of their daughter, Shari Ellin, to Rabbi Ira A. Korff, son of Rabbi and Mrs. Nathan Korff of Milton.

Miss Redstone, a graduate of Newton South High School , received a BA from Tufts University in 1975 and a JD from Boston University Law School in 1978. She is now practising law in Boston and studying for an MA in taxation at Boston University Law School.

Rabbi Korff, received his BJE degree from Hebrew College and his BA from Columbia University. He was ordained at the age of 22, after training at the Rabbinical Academy of Israel and the Chaim Berlin Rabbinical Academy, both in New York, and the Beis Mordechai Seminary in Jerusalem. He was also a graduate resident at Harvard Divinity School.

He received a JD degree from Brooklyn Law School in 1972. He received masters' degrees in international relations and in international law and diplomacy, a Ph.D. degree in international law and politics at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy.

Korff is now practising law in Boston. . He has been the rabbi of Temple Aliyah of Needham since 1975.

A private wedding is planned for May 25.

NE Villages Women's Comm. to give show at Kennedy Library

PEMBROKE—Mark McIntire, writer, producer and actor, will present a one-man show, "J.F.K. Lives," at the Kennedy Library on Saturday, April 19, at 6 p.m. The performance marks the tenth anniversary of New England Villages in Pembroke, and is sponsored by the Women's Committee.

Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. David Shapiro at 444-8561. Tickets are $35 for a benefactor and $25 for a patron.

New England Villages in Pembroke provides an opportunity for mentally retarded adults to live and work in a supportive community environment, which includes social, vocational and recreational programs to prepare them to live full lives.

Tech-Voke programs are more popular

NEWTON — Technical-vocational enrollments are declining at a rate slower than the total Newton public school population.

Total technical-vocational enrollment this year is in excess of 2,500 students and school officials attribute the size of the program to increased recruiting, curricula improvements and to additional courses.

Occupational Education Director Daniel H. Malia believes the most significant development in technical-vocational education in Newton in the last decade was the consolidation of Newton Technical and the two high schools.

The consolidation allowed more attention for previously unserved students; an improved academic program for vocational students; broader programs; and service for South High School.

Similarly Malia believes the most significant development on the horizon is changing the senior high schools from three-year to four-year schools. South High is scheduled to go to four years next year; North High in 1983.

The School Department has just completed a five-year vocational education plan and it suggests there will be new offerings and special programs to meet the needs of particular groups.

Handicapped and disadvantaged students will require a different kind of program, Malia said. Girls and boys are still following traditional occupation patterns and minority students are not sufficiently represented in the program.

There has been a recent increase in Indo-Chinese students that will require special services in vocational education. The School Committee last month approved a daytime language program for parents of Southeast Asian students.

Advanced or gifted students interested in exploring technology are not sufficiently challenged in existing programs, according to the five-year report.

Labor market trends suggest employment opportunities emerging for which the Newton schools are not preparing students. Those fields include marketing and management, culinary arts, high technologies, commercial art and photography, paralegal, paramedical, performing arts and human services.

To meet those needs the plan outlines new programs in merchandising and instrument maintenance and repair, and upgraded programs in electronics, foods, small engine repair, manufacturing, graphic arts and business education.

New heating, ventilating and air conditioning and architectural drafting programs have attracted a new student population into the technical fields, according to the plan. Enrollments have also increased as a result of revamping electronics, graphic arts and carpentry courses.

Since trade and industrial training are the predominant areas in Newton vocational education, new emphasis over the five-year period will be in the areas of sales, advertising, marketing, management, small business and entrepreneurship, human services and food services.

This year the School Department is applying for $104,454 in federal vocational education funds. Proposals include advertising and commercial art at North High; special guidance for academically disadvantaged students at North; and a new half-time program in marketing and management at South High.

Other funds will be used to reduce sex role stereotyping in vocational education; provide special guidance for learning disabled students; and to assist new Indo-Chinese students.

The Newton school system has cooperative arrangements with local businesses and industries. There are 50 students in vocational cooperative placements and 350 to 400 students in cooperative work-study placements.

Benefit concert to be held for Caldicott project

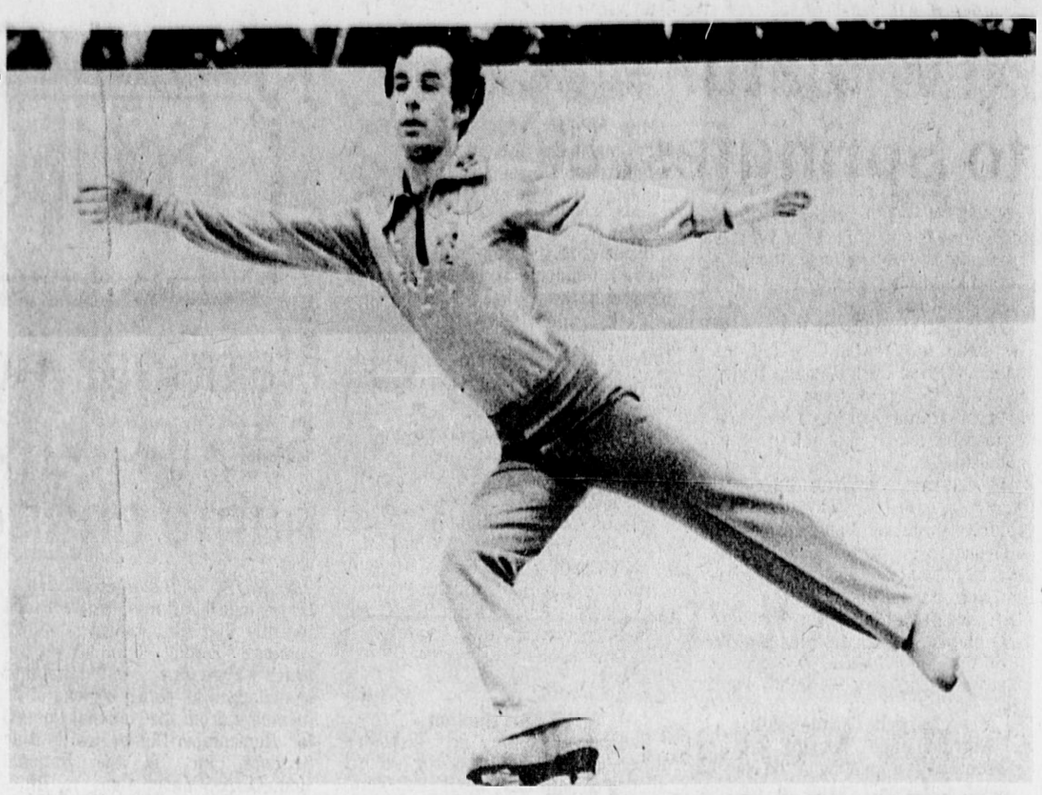

BOSTON — On Friday, April 18 at 7:45 p.m. at the Arlington Street Church in Boston, Joseph Silverstein will perform in a benefit concert to raise funds for completion of the film, "Eight Minutes to Midnight: A Portrait of Dr. Helen Caldicott."

The film is a presentation of the medical implications of nuclear power and weaponry, especially genetic damage and the effects of radiation. Dr. Caldicott will speak at the event, and highlights will be shown from the completed portion of the film.

Dr. Caldicott, also a resident of Newton, is an anti-nuclear crusader who has done much to crystallize anti-nuclear sentiment and coalesce various anti-nuclear groups in the New England area. She is a pediatrician at the Children's Hospital and has worked specifically in the area of genetic diseases. She is a native of Australia and played a major role in the three year moratorium on uranium mining in that country.

The producers of the documentary plan to have it reach a broad audience through public televison, social action and church groups, and selected theaters. The Newton Committee for the Caldicott Project, together with other local committees and many individuals and groups — most notably the Physicians for Social Responsibility — urge the support of this important endeavor by every citizen concerned with the dangers of nuclear power and weaponry.

Tickets, at $8 per person (tax deductible), are available by calling Anita Greenbaum at 332-9072. Tickets are also for sale at the Out-Of-Town News Agency and the Pangloss Bookstore in Harvard Square.

U.S. Olympic Bronze Medalist Charles Tickner will perform at the gala opening of "Ice Chips '80," sponsored by Friends of Deaconess Hospital, April 10 at 8 p.m. in the Walter Brown Rink at Boston University. Produced by the Skating Club of Boston, the event also features World and New England Champions. For ticket information call 732-8044

Irish eyes are smiling and singing in B.C. festivities

CHESTNUT HILL — "Irish Fortnight," a musical, artistic, historical look at Ireland, will be held at Boston College through April 15.

"The Irishness of Ireland" will be the theme nightly as poetry, song, drama and paintings from the Emerald Isle are presented at Gasson Hall on the Hill campus.

In the festival, sponsored by Boston College and the Irish American Institute, all the performers and speakers will hale from Ireland.

The public is invited and admission is free.

Starting at 8 p.m., except where otherwise noted, "Irish Fortnight" will feature:

April 10. Robert Ballagh, "The Irishness of Irish Art: A Personal View." Using slides of his own work and that of other prominent Irish painters as illustrations, Ballagh will discuss those traits which are distinctive to Irish art.

April 11. Anthony Quinn, "Ireland's Identity: Conflict and Resolution." A sprightly analysis based on the revelations of Ireland's mystique as found in the prose, poetry and drama of Ireland's writers.

April 12. Michael Herity, "The Voice from Past." Illustrated by slides, this lecture points to the evidence archaeology supplies about the nature of early Irish culture and, in particular, the evidence it finds for a continuing Irish national identity.

April 13. Anna Manahan, "Ireland Is a Woman" (8:30 p.m.). A one-woman dramatic pastiche of scenes from various plays with prose and poetry links that illustrate the inner nature of which, perhaps not surprisingly, reveals itself as essentially feminine.

April 14. Albert Fry, "The Heart and Soul of Ireland." Deeply steeped in the music and language of Ireland, Fry offers insights into the mind of the Irish nation, into those labyrinthine ways of thought and feeling which shaped an indigenous melodic and native linguistic idiom.

April 15. Michael Hartnett, "The Poet as Irishman." Reading from his own work and that of other poets, Hartnett will elaborate upon those qualities which proclaim the autochthanous nature of Irish poetry.

New features added to Springfest 80

NEWTON — This year, Springfest, the annual festival of arts and crafts sponsored by the Newton Cultural Affairs Commission, joins Boston in its 350 celebration.

On May 18, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the grounds at Newton City Hall, the public will find fresh elements added to the wide array of crafts, foods, music, drama and dance performances, and special activities for children.

Co-chairmen Charlotte Fine and Voni Weaver are happy to announce a sailing of small ships on the pond, the appearance of the MDC zoo trailer, thanks to Newton Recreation Department efforts, and contests, which will be conducted after Mayor Theodore D. Mann extends his welcome at noon.

Springfest 80-Boston 350 is free of charge and open to the public, with proceeds to benefit cultural activities in Newton.

Committee chairmen are Charlotte Fine and JoAnn Isaacson, food and craft booths; Linda Plaut of Arts in the Parks, music and recreation; Mikki Krassin and Sandy Deming, drama; CeCe Sloan, Elinor Persky, and Bea Barron, publicity; Phyllis Santis Stewart, dance; Marcia Massimo and Susan Nussbaum, contests; Adrienne Lowenthal and Kathryn Miles, posters; Yvonne Pepe and Jordan Kraus, decorations.

Contest sponsors include MacDonald's for French Fry Arranging; The New England Telephone Co., for A Dramatic Reading from the Phone Book; Cantin' Abruzzi, Find the Noodle in the Haystack; and Paulette's Dance Studio, the Tacky Tango. More of this later.

Rep. Vander Jagt to speak at dinner

NEWTON — Congressman Guy Vander Jagt, member of the U.S. House of Representatives from Michigan's Ninth District, and Chairm[illegible] the Republican Congressional C[illegible]e, will be the principal sp[illegible]t Newton's 20th Annual Lincoln Day Dinner to be held in the ballroom of Post 440, Tuesday April 22, it was announced by Alderman Robert L. Tennant, president of the Newton Republican Club.

Vander Jagt, now serving his eighth consecutive term in Congress, was reelected to the chairmanship of the National Republican Congressional Committee for the third straight term. He has captured nationwide attention as outstanding spokesman for the party and free enterprise. Several hundred guests are expected to hear him speak.

In announcing the dinner and its guest speaker, Alderman Tennant commented:

"Particularly at this time, in a presidential year, we are very fortunate that an outstanding Republican personality is taking the time to come to Newton to address us in the community. In Congressman Vander Jagt we find an articulate spokesman who is sure to have something worthwhile to say to us."

Tennant noted that Newton's Lincoln Day Dinner events have through the years presented a series of prominent leaders, among them George Bush and Philip Crane, both contenders in the presidential primaries.

Explaining the later than usual date for the dinner, Tennant observed that during the presidential primaries it was unusually difficult to plan and schedule a local political event in competition with the area's election activities. "We feel," he stated "that much has been gained by letting things settle down a bit. We are now able to focus attention on the event more effectively."

Congressman Vander Jagt has an interesting educational background, holding a Bachelor of Arts Degree from Hope College, a Divinity Degree from Yale University, and a Doctor of Law degree from the University of Michigan.

In Congress he serves on several committees, including the powerful tax-writing Ways and Means. His legislative accomplishments include credits for the Diabetes Act of 1974, establishment of the Sleepy Bear Dunes National Lakeshore, and waste recycling. He and his wife, Carol, and their daughter, Ginny, reside in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and Great Falls, Virginia.

As in previous years, a feature of the event will be the presentation of special awards to local Republicans in recognition of long term service to the GOP and the community.

Charlotte R. Thornbury is general chairman of the Committee on Arrangements.

The Newton Republican Club is principal sponsor of the event in cooperation with the Newton Republican City Committee and the Republican Women of Newton.

Rep. Guy Vander Jagt

Scuba course to be offered at YMCA

NEWTON — The Newton Y is now offering the chance for people to enjoy an underwater adventure by offering a Scuba Diving Course beginning Thursday, April 17. This course will supply the student with a thorough understanding of the techniques necessary to participate safely and successfully in the sport.

The 36-hour course will meet on Thursdays from 7 - 9:30 p.m. and Fridays from 7:30 - 10 p.m. At the first meeting all those who wish to participate must return the necessary forms and complete an eligibility water test.

The instructor for the course is Roy Chamberlain, a well known, qualified instructor. He plans to provide an in-depth experience, which he feels is necessary in order to insure that individuals obtain a complete knowledge of his course. Roy is well versed in all phases of scuba and scuba instruction.

Cost for the course includes all equipment used in pool sessions, text, log books, certification fees, patches and decompression cards.

For further information call the Newton Y at 244-6050.

Local girl assists in aiding mentally ill

WELLESLEY — There is nothing unusual about planning and hosting a party with plenty of good music, dancing, and food. But for 19 juniors and seniors at the Dana Hall School in Wellesley, Mass., the affair was very much out of the ordinary.

In addition to their classroom work in sociology, Elizabeth Mendelsohn of Newton and her classmates spent three hours a week assisting nurses and men from the Medfield— Norfolk Prison Rehabilitation Program in caring for and providing activities for patients at the nearby Medfield State Hospital.

For the girls, the combination of practical service along with weekly classes with the prison participants has enabled them to gain insight into the problems of institutional care for mental patients, as well as the complexities of preparing hard-core prisoners for reentry into society (the prison rehabilitation program is recognized as one of the most successful in the country).

Their teacher, John Spencer, has had a deep interest in prison reform for some time and began involving his classes seven years ago. He says, "The experiences the students have are an important adjunct to their classroom instruction. The awareness that they develop in responding to human needs has proven a valuable base for a realistic view of the practical and theoretical aspects of careers in social work or human services."

Elizabeth, who will graduate from Dana Hall this spring, admits that the prospect of being involved with mental patients and prisoners was frightening in the beginning. "Some of them looked upon a group of girls from a private school with suspicion first," she says. "But once they realized we were serious, we became friends. It has been an eye-opener to get to know both groups as real people with some pretty awful problems.

"It was especially interesting to find how the prisoners changed as they dealt with others who were incarcerated but whose problems were so much worse than theirs."

The party, which marked the end of the semester's course, was a swinging affair. "The patients love to dance," said Elizabeth. "They really let go. We had contests and everyone won a prize."

Elizabeth is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Mendelsohn of Newton.

CUT YOUR HEATING BILLS

ADD A CARRIER HEAT PUMP

Carrier's Year-round One heat pump is an efficient, economical heating and cooling system all by itself. It can replace any old, worn-out forced-air furnace.

But if your forced-air furnace (electric, gas, or oil) is in good shape, you can add a heat pump to it — and get really low heating costs! That's because your new combination furnace-heat pump system heats with either the furnace or heat pump. Depending on outside temperature, the system automatically chooses whichever heating method can save you the most money!

Let us tell you all about it. We'll be happy to give you an estimate and a free Heat-Saving Analysis of your home.

BONUS!
$100 FACTORY REBATE

SPECIAL PRE-SEASON OFFER: Buy a Carrier Round One Heat Pump now, and you'll receive a $100 rebate check direct from Carrier Rebate Headquarters when your installation is completed. This offer applies to homeowners only, on Round One units sold and installed between February 1 and April 30, 1980. It cannot be applied to units financed through FHA.

Needs of aging parents is focus of presentation

NEWTON CENTRE — A free program on "Older Adults and Their Aging Parents," sponsored by Newton's Council on Aging, its Advisory Board, and the Department of Human Services, will be held on Thursday, May 1, 7:30 p.m. at the Bigelow Junior High School, Vernon Street (between Park Street and Waverly Ave.) in Newton Corner.

After a brief presentation, the program will be informal in nature, giving those who attend plenty of opportunity to ask questions.

Presenters include James J. Callahan, Ph.D., former Secretary of Elder Affairs for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and presently director of the Levinson Policy Institute at the Heller Graduate School of Social Welfare, Brandeis University; Frances Portnoy, Ph.D., former consultant on aging to the Newton Health Department, and currently an associate professor at the School of Nursing, Boston State College; and Howard J. Lipton, director of the Department of Human Services in Newton.

Professionals from the various agencies and programs that serve Newton's elderly will also be present as additional resouces.

A very brief Council on Aging meeting will precede the program.

For more information, call the Department of Human Services at 552-7170.

CPR and First Aid courses offered by Red Cross in April

NEWTONVILLE — The Newton Branch of the West Suburban Chapter, American Red Cross will be offering a Standard First Aid and Personal Safety Course, and a CPR Module Course.

On April 14, 21, 28, and May 5 and 19 from 6:30 p.m. till 9:30 p.m., Standard First Aid and Personal Safety will be held at Mt. Ida Jr. College, 777 Dedham Street, Newton Centre.

This course is designed for the general public to prepare people to meet the needs of situations when emergency first aid is required and medical assistance is not excessively delayed. It incorporates personal safety and accident prevention information. Lecture, discussion, demonstration, and skill practice compose the teaching method used. There is a $4 charge for text and materials. For further information and registration, please call 527-6000.

A CPR Module course will be given two consecutive Tuesdays, April 22 and April 29, from 6-10 p.m., at the Chapter House, 21 Foster Street, Newtonville.

This is a self-paced course, and uses programmed workbooks, films, practice sessions, instructor check-outs, and a final written exam. The students will be taught the technique of combining mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external heart compression to restore breathing and heart beat in cardiac arrest victims. There is a $3 charge for text and materials. For further information and registration, please call 527-6000.

Open house held for dieters

NEWTON — The Diet Workshop will hold open house during the week of April 14 in which the Spring-Blitz-It-Off will be introduced. The visiting public will be welcome at no obligation to attend a class in Newton at the Diet Workshop Center, 274 Centre St. on Monday evening, April 14 and Tuesday — Thursday (April 14-17) mornings and evenings and Saturday, April 19 at 9:30 a.m. Classes will also be held at the Women's Club, 72 Columbus St. on Tuesday, April 15 at 9:30 a.m. and the Sacred Heart Church, 1130 Centre St. on Monday, April 14 at 7:30 p.m.

Every member will receive, as a free gift, an assortment of decorative placemats that contain inspiring low— calorie menus and utilize a new and different plan.

The Diet Workshop has helped thousands of people lose millions of pounds by the use of a balanced, medically approved diet. The program also encourages exercise, behavior modification and basic nutrition instruction.

Anyone wishing more information on the open house or Spring-Blitz-It-Off may contact The Diet Workshop toll free at 1-800-682-9216 or call Newton at 244-6511.

Assistant treasurer

WORCESTER — Cheryl W. Calvey, manager of Freedom Federal Savings and Loan Association's Newtonville branch, has been promoted to assistant treasurer.

Mrs. Calvey has been with Freedom Federal since 1968, starting as a part-time teller and receptionist at the Mt. Auburn branch. She was promoted to assistant manager of the Mt. Auburn branch in 1971. In 1975 she was transferred to the Newtonville branch as assistant manager and a year later was promoted to manager.

Is America ready for the chickenburger?

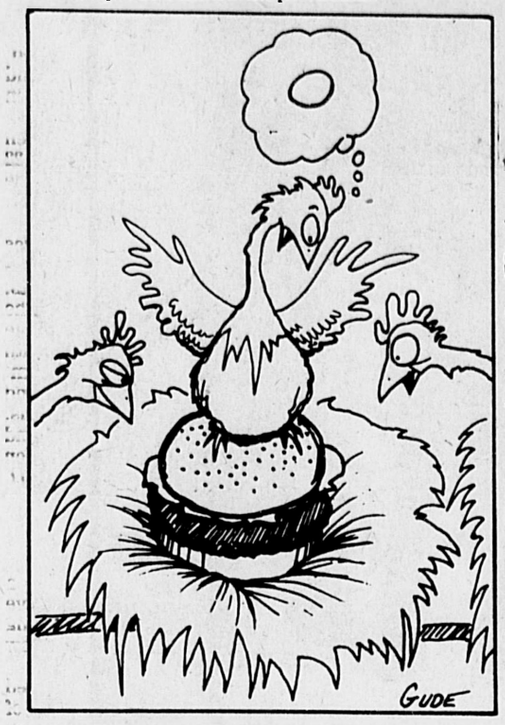

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — After a steady diet of Big Macs and Whoppers, are Americans ready for chicken burgers made with deboned Leghorn fowl?

The Cornell University food scientist who developed chicken hot dogs, chicken bologna and 37 other items thinks so.

"It always takes a while to break down psychological barriers and to get people used to a new food product," Prof. Robert Baker said. "The one that had the worst barrier was chicken hot dogs. But now the younger generation doesn't have any hangups about them.

"People will always eat hamburger but I think someday it (chicken burger) will be just as popular," said Baker, chairman of the department of poultry science in Cornell's state College of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

Based on recent highly successful test marketing in the Ithaca area, Baker said he's certain his latest product — frozen minced chicken — has potential for widespread commercial production.

Is this the Big Mac of the future?

"It sold well and we had practically no complaints," Baker said. "We feel if every grocery store does as well as we did without advertising, a major portion of the Leghorn fowl available now as an underused source of nutrititous food would be useful to consumers and more profitable to producers.

"With the experience we've had with chicken hot dogs, which are now made by 58 companies, we know there's a potential for it," Baker said. "It just takes about a year before you get food processors geared up."

Baker's newest product, which sold for 89 cents in one-pound packages, consists of 100 percent pure chicken meat, with no bones or skin.

The mechanically deboned chicken is high in protein and relatively low in fat. The minced chicken resembles finely ground hamburger and can be refrigerated at least five days.

"When people look at it, they're a little surprised," Baker said. "But it looks like a hamburg grind, except it's ground finer. The color is like hamburg."

In addition to chicken burgers, Baker said the product can be used in such dishes as chicken chili, chicken stroganoff and sloppy joes.

"A chicken burger might have an advantage over hamburger because it's much lower in fat," he said.

He acknowledged Americans are "big hamburger eaters, regardless of the price and will always be."

The chicken meat Baker has used for his new product comes from hens which have finished producing eggs. The supply of Leghorns is about 200 million annually. There is, however, little demand for them. The breed of scrawny white feathered chickens was developed in the Mediterranean region. They are bred mainly for their eggs, which are large in relation to the chickens' size. The breed's name is a folkloric variation on Livorno, a seaport in western Italy.

Commercial firms specializing in canned chicken soups are the major users of Leghorn. Most consumers prefer broilers or fryers since the meat is tough.

"Most food stores today don't even handle them," Baker said.

He feels minced chicken has potential.

"Anything that can be done to increase the demand for those hens will benefit both the producer and consumer," he said.

What's behind interest rates?

NEW YORK (UPI) — The interest-rate spiral is beginning to waver, but does it mean a break in inflation psychology or a crack in the Federal Reserve's tight rein on money?

"The Treasury bill market may be catching a whiff of recession and possible credit problems," said David M. Jones, economist for Aubrey G. Lanston & Co.

Although the prime rate continues higher — it hit 20 percent last week — other short-term rates have bounced around.

The average interest in the Treasury's auction of short-term bills declined sharply last week. Eurodollar rates were down a bit on some days. The federal funds rates, although a record for the latest reporting week, have been pushed up by the Fed when they tended to drop near the presumed 18-20 percent target level.

There are reasons for those lower rates on short-term government issues to be sure.

The recent crisis in the silver markets scared a lot of people and not only in commodities; the potential losses of several major brokerages in the huge margin calls on silver made investors jumpy. The silver turmoil, nervousness over the economy, the stock market and inflation, Jones said, has precipitated "a flight to safe money — U.S. governments."

"Along with the safety factor is the feeling that these rates are attractive in light of the view that the economy is heading into steeper recession," Jones said.

Also, the Fed's tight-money policy and credit restraints have taken a toll.

"The liquidity of financial intermediaries — most of which are highly leveraged — has generally dried up," said William N. Griggs, senior vice president of J. Henry Schroder Bank & Trust Co.

The commercial banks are the only institutions in the banking system that still have liquidity and much of that has been absorbed by the administration's March 14 changes in managed liability rules and growth targets, Griggs said.

Jones noted there has been "almost a complete cutoff of credit to consumers."

"Typically a bank would suffer the loss and keep the customer. It was afraid to cut off credit for fear its competitor wouldn't," Jones said. "But it appears now that the anti-inflation program has caused them to decide en masse to do so."

Area poets share works at library

NEWTON — Five Boston area poets will read selections from their works during a special National Library Week event Tuesday, April 15, 7:30 p.m. at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street.

Ruth Feldman, Karen Johnson, Margo Lockwood, George Murphy and Lloyd will participate in the Poetry Festival. Following the readings the poets will answer questions from the audience. There will also be a display of poetry books and magazines.

Virginia A. Tashjian, author of several books for children including "Juba This And Juba That" and "With A Deep Sea Smile," and the director of the Newton Free Library, will introduce the poets.

Lloyd Schwartz, an editor of "Ploughshares" and the classical music editor of the "Phoenix," is a professor of English at Boston State College. His poems have been published in many magazines including "The New Republic," "Partisan Review" and "The New York Times."

George Murphy, the founding editor of "Tendril" magazine, is the owner and director of Wampeter Press which publishes books of poetry and fiction. Four books of Murphy's poetry have been published including "Bicycle and Other Gifts" and "Encounters." His poems, interviews and critical articles have appeared in many literary journals.

Margo Lockwood, who owns and operates the "Horse In The Attic Bookshop" in Brookline has been writing poetry for seventeen years. Three books of her poetry, including "Bare Elegy" which was published by the James Press, are now in print. She has a book forthcoming in the spring, "Brookline Village Nocturnes."

Karen Johnson has published poems in "Tendril," "The Southern Review," "Prairie Schooner" and others. She was born, raised and educated in the midwest, has traveled extensively and now lives in Cambridge.

Ruth Feldman's poetry has appeared in many magazines. In 1979 her book, "The Ambition of Ghosts," was published by Green River Press. Feldman has published five books of translation of Italian poetry.

Poet Carole Oles and Elinor Persky, director of exhibits and public relations for the Newton Free Library, coordinated the evening of poetry readings. Oles, a free-lance poetry reviewer, is currently a writer-in-residence at Clark University. Last year her book, "The Loneliness Factor," was published by the Grolier Book Shop and Texas Tech Press. She is working on a new book of poetry. Her work has appeared in many magazines including "Ploughshares," "The Lyric," and "Poetry." The Friends of the Library, a group of library supporters, sponsor the Poetry Festival as well as other library events.

The celebration during National Library Week are designed to inform people of library activities. Libraries need public support and active use. Their varied programs and services are planned to serve the needs of diverse groups. With their almost limitless diversity of information, libraries can people's growth intellectually, emotionally and personally. At the Newton Free Library our goal is to make sure the public has easy access to information and to serve the public in many different ways.

'Appliqued Tapestries' combines basic shapes with vibrant colors

By ELINOR PERSKY

NEWTON —"Appliqued Tapestries" by Susan Woodman of Newton are on view in the Newton Free Library Gallery, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, April3-April 27.

Woodman uses bold basic shapes and bright primary colors to create large wall hangings that are strong and direct. Like paintings, her work is stretched on all four sides rather than suspended from a horizontal bar.

Working with velvet, canvas, corduroy, turkish towel, netting and a vast assortment of fabrics, Woodman creates vivid landscapes and still life arrangements. more

"Bowl of Fruit" is a work where velvet fruits, deep red cherries, pink peaches, purple grapes on a luscious purple plate are set on a table of deep brown corduroy. A brown chair by the table invites the viewer into the scene. Behind the fruit an open window, with curtains creates a marvelous airy feeling.

A large two panel "Beach Scene," where turkish towel and canvas are the primary materials, is very three dimensional. Its geometric sharp edged design conveys a natural scene. A man seated in a canvas chair studies a woman who doesn't realize the man is watching her. She is standing, looking out to the sea, her back to the seated figure. Woodman's tongue-in-cheek humor is evident here.

"Flower Basket," a 4' x 6' piece, where flowers on long curved stems, all reds and purples, stand jauntily in a curved red basket on a purple table. This work is a prime example of Woodman's dynamic use of voluptuous color and her interest in the effects of basic shapes.

Woodman studied at the Rhode Island School of Design, where she was a painting major. She also spent a year in Copenhagen working with the painter-weaver Franka Rasmussen.

During this period she painted a great deal. Ultimately she decided to turn her paintings into weavings.

Susan Woodman and her husband Stephen, an interior designer, are the principals in Woodman & Woodman Designs Inc. of Brookline, Mass. and Manhattan. They recently completed the renovation of an old house that was featured in the October 14 edition of the Boston Sunday Globe.

Main library hours are Monday-Thursday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 1 to 5 p.m. The library will be closed Monday, April 21, Patriots Day.

American League Basketball Champions

The Recreation Department's American Basketball League has concluded another successful year wit the crowning of the Divisional Champions. In the American A Division, Yellow Cab defeated the Sele Club two straight games to take the title for the second year in a row. In B Division, the Verts took two of three games from George's Cafe to win the flag. In the past 6 years, the Verts and George's Cafe have taken turns winning the Division championship. The C. Division winner was Buff's Pub by virtue of 2 out of 3 over Mr. Pups. The Tradewinds swept 2 straight from the Verts to win its first championship in the D Division.

Women's Twilight Softball League

Director, Fran Towle, reports that although the Newton Women's Twilight Softball League held its manager's organizational meeting last week. Women interested in playing this season should contact her at 552-7120. She will give them the names of managers who are looking for new players. League play will begin in mid-May with twilight games at Albermarle, Cabot, Hamilton and Lyons.

Min-bike Season to Open

The triple trail mini-bike facility operated by the Newton Recreation Department will open the 1980 season on Saturday, April 12th. Each Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the trails located at the site of the old City Infirmary on Winchester Street, Newton Highlands, will be open for Newton boys and girls with mini-bikes. This is the only public area in Newton where mini-bikes may be operated legally. Bikes cannot be ridden or pushed to the area, but must be transported in a registered vehicle. The program will be directed by Newton Police Sagety Officer, Paul Golden, and Steve Mazzola, of the Recreation Department. Safety is the key word in this program. Riders must waer helmets andhard-toed shoes. Bikes must be equipped with spark arresters, mufflers, good tires and brakes. The registration fee for each bikd is $5.00. There is a $1.00 fee for each additional rider of that bike. Bike operators may register at the facility. The tracks will be open through June and will be closed for July and August. They will reopen in September and continue in operation through the fall as long s the weather permits.

Lion quintet has bright picture

Following the lead of the coaching fraternity, Dick Walker is looking not into the past, but ahead...ahead to what he thinks could be a very successful 1980-81 campaign.

"The potential is definitely there," said the Newton South basketball coach recently. "We should be able to field a team with all six-footers, which means we'll be able to stay with anyone."

Mind you, Walker is not predicting league titles, but neither is he calling 1981 just another rebuilding year. He's only professing optimism, and with a trio of 6-2 forwards returning and a sophomore 6-5 center with unlimited potential looming on the horizon, who can blame him?

"This year we lacked consistency," said Walker. "We had a few good moments during the year, like the 50-49 win over Concord in the final seconds, but we won only when we worked the ball inside. Sometimes we did and sometimes we didn't."

, the Lions didn't more d and the result was a disappointing 7-11 record. Next year Walker expects his club to be the ones controlling the tempo.

despite Wayland, losing the magnificent Tim O'Shea, should still be the class of the league, Newton South's height will keep the Lions competitive.

Heading that list is 6-5 sophomore Mike Antonellis. Antonellis didn't see much action on the varsity this past year, scoring only 10 points all season, but Walker is looking for big things from him in '80.

"He's got all the tools to be one of the best in the league," said Dick. "He has the coordination a person his size needs. I see no reason why he won't develop into one of my better players."

Antonellis is hoping to fill the shoes of graduating all-star center Mark Hayden (13.2), who led the Lions in scoring this year.

The Lions also lose their second-leading scorer, Tim Hairston, but Walker can look to three 6-2 forwards, Mike Galvin, Peter Kanellias and Greg Wands to take up the slack.

Galvin is a strong offensive rebounder while Kanellias presents an imposing force on defense. Wands, up from the jayvees, will help provide the Lions with perhaps the largest frontcourt in the league.

Newton South loses three guards (Hairston, Mike Klein and Jeff Bobarnick) and one player (Mark Sullivan) who played both guard and forward. But with Mike Kasten and David Hill returning, the Lions should be set here as well.

"Mike (Kasten) is basically a point guard," said Walker. "He's like another coach out there for us. He's excellent defensively and just a very heady player."

Hill, only a sophomore this year, is strong at both ends of the court. He has good court sense with a strong ability to hit the open man.

Others who should help next year are forward Mark Buchsbaum ("Excellent shooter from 18-20 foot range"— Walker), guards Vic O'Tero and Donald Segal and swingman Steve Abrams.

"We should be able to play any type of game next year," noted Walker.

"We'll have the quickness to run with most teams and the height to play a set-em-up offense. This is something we had no way of doing this year."

Whatever happens, Newton South's added height and increased experience should lead the Lions well past their 7-11 record of 1979. Only time will tell how far.

Hatton trio triggers North win

Karl Hatton's hat trick combined with an all around strong Newton North attack, powered the Tigers' lacrosse team to a 7-3 victory over Brookline Tuesday at Lanz Anderson Field in Brookline.

Newton North started the game off with three unanswered goals in the first quarter as the Tigers' offense 8 peppered Brookline's goalie Peter Seibel continuously.

Brian Quinn scored an unassisted goal as he came from behind the net and beat Seibel to the far side just 38 seconds into the first period.

Karl Hatton scored the first of his three goals when Mike Iatritidis passed from behind the net to Hatton out front and he blew the ball past 8 Seibel.

Joe Deasy closed out the first quarter when he took a deep feed from Noel Foley and double pumped the goalie out of the net for the score.

The Tigers' offense was held in check for the second quarter. Howie Green put Brookline on the board with an assisted goal from Jim Corbett.

Newton North exploded for three more in the third quarter, while holng Brookline to one.

Bob Bryson opened the period with an unassisted goal as he dodged the goalie out front and threw the ball past Seibel.

Hatton scored his second with an unassisted goal when he blew past two defenseman and scored.

With 50 seconds left in the quarter Rich Yerardi made a save and rushed the ball to mid-field where he dumped the ball off to Rick Murphy who bounced it and beat Seibel low.

Brookline's Fergal O'Regan scored one in the third.

Hatton scored his third with three and a half minutes left in the game as he broke past two defenseman and went one-on-one with Seibel.

Yerardi had 18 saves for Newton North, while Seibel had 16 for Brookline.

The Tigers will play Boston State at Newton North High on Wednesday at 3:30 in a non-league game.

Newton North's next league game will be Monday against Lexington at Newton North. The summary:

Answering the bell

33 boxing bouts at St. Bernard's

The sixth Annual Boxing and Physical Fitness program,8 directed by Joe DeNucci, was concluded on Friday, March 23, with a sports night held at St. Bernard's Parish Hall in Newton.

There were 33 exhibition bouts put on by the youngsters who had completed a 10 week program of instruction.

The boxing bouts were refereed by former ring greats, Paul Penda, former Middle Weight Champion of the World; Sal Bartolo, former Featherweight Champion of the World; Tom McNealy, who fought Floyd Patterson for the World Championship; Tommy Collins, and Al "Red" Priest.

The bouts were preceeded by a Karate demonstration by Joe Espisito, from the Academy of Self Defense.

Bill Bryne, of the Newton Police Department, and Joe Espisito lead the Karate exhibition which was a big success.

Frechette, Pachus to co-captain Tiger nine

Newton North's varsity baseball coach Tom Rezzuti announced that seniors Gary Frechette and Greg Pachus have been selected as co-captains for the upcoming season.

Frechette, a five-11, 180-pound catcher, batted .280 for the Tigers last year, while calling the bulk of Newton North's games from behind the plate.

Frechette, a running back, was a tri-captain on the football team this year and was also a varsity hockey forward.

Pachus, a five-10, 170-pound left fielder, was the leading hitter for the Tigers last year as he batted .316.

Pachus was also a member of the varsity soccer and hockey teams this year.

Frechette, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Frechette, has been accepted at Bridgewater State College for the coming fall semester.

Pachus, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Pachus, has been accepted at Dartmouth College for the 1980 fall term.

Framingham South cages Lions, 13-3

Unable to stop the powerful attack of Framingham South, Newton South's lacrosse team fell Monday, 13-3, at Newton South High Field.

The Lions were held scoreless through the first quarter as Framingham South poured in four.

Newton South got on the board in the second quarter as the Lions' Tim Ives scored an unassisted goal.

Framingham South added three in the second to build up a 7-1 lead at halftime.

The Lions added one in the third when Dave Wiesner scored a goal with a man advantage for Newton South.

Framingham scored three more in the third to take a commanding 8 10-2 lead.

Things didn't get any better for the Lions as Framingham South added three more goals in the fourth to put the game away for good.

Mark Sullivan scored an unassisted goal in the fourth to give the Lions their last tally.

Newton South, now 1-3 for the year, will be at home against Hingham on Saturday morning. The summary:

Pop Warner faces Bills

With victories in the semi-finals, Newton Pop Warner will meet Mr. Bill's in the Newton Men's Volleyball League final championship round next at 7 p.m. Monday night at the Hawthorn Gym in Newton

In the best three out of five series, Pop Warner came back after losing the first two games of the series to sweep the last three, 15-11, 15-5, and 15-3.

High scorer for Pop Warner was Bob Procter with 13. Chuck Role scored 15 to lead Lilly's.

After losing the first game, Mr. Bill's came back to take the next three, 15-5, 15-9, and 15-4.

Mr. Bill's was led by Mike McNeice with 13, while the Bears' Steve Lasco was high man for his team with six.

Mr. Bill's finished the regular season in first place, while the Bears wound up in third place.

Stern heads NAA

The Newton Athletic Association recently elected new officers for 1980-81 with Frederic Stern being named president.

Stern, a 15-year resident of Newton, served as secretary of the NAA last year and has run the "A" League basketball program for the last three years.

Stern also manages in the Newton East Little League and is also presently involved in the newlyyformed Senior Youth Baseball League.

Stern and his Phyllis wife, , have three sons; Craig, a sophomore at Newton South, Todd, a freshman at Meadowbrook and Marc, a fifth-grader at Memorial Spaulding.

Also elected were Joe Connors, first vice-president; Jerry Sack, second vice-president; Don Boffo, treasurer; and Alan Vayle, secretary.

Newton Sr. Youth League debuts

By Terry Sack

Last Saturday, April 5, the long awaited opening of Newton Senior Youth baseball League finally came. The League, which was incorporated last June 28, was designed for the purpose of replacing Newton Junior High School Varsity baseball and to give many marginal ball players a chance to play ball. "It was long overdue," said one parent watching her son play.

The league is also using new, never-before-used field dimensions. They are halfway between Little League and Major League standards. The pitcher's mound is 54 feet away from homeplate, with the bases being seventy-five feet apart.

Everything went well, according to the league's hardworking commissioner Jerry Sack, which is what should have happened after nine months of hard work and preparation by Sack.

The day started off with photographer Bob Marcus coming to take team pictures of all tean teams, along with individual player photos.

At about 11:30, former Boston Celtic Steve Kuberski, came to throw out the first ball. You could tell that the 6'8" forward was keeping in shape, as he was wearing his Celtic-green running shoes, and a sweat-suit.

While signing autographs after the ceremonies, I asked him for his opinion on the league. "This is a great idea," Kuberski said. "I wish more towns had this type of a program where kids can get into a competitive situation."

As he was leaving, I asked him how he thought the Celtics would do in the playoffs. "I think they will do pretty well," he replied, "although they may have some trouble with Western Division teams."

Thanks to the excellent job that the Newton Recreation Department did on the field, the ground had absorbed all of the water from the previous day's rain by the start of the game.

The league's first game ever was between the Phillies and the Padres. Phillies pitcher Alan Mann had the distinction of pitching the first pitch ever pitched in the league. The Padres almost had a runaway victory, until the fifth inning, when the Phillies, down by twelve, burst out with a ten run rally led by Nick Ginnakis' two doubles. But, even that couldn't save the Phillies, who fell short by two runs, and the Padres, led by manager Jim Feeney took the victory. It was also a rather long game for only seven innings, the league standard, taking 2 hours and 45 minutes.

The second game, between the Twins and White Sox, was quite a bit closer. The Twins won 7-2, behind the strong pitching and batting of Gil Gross. Key singles by darkhourse Mark Siegel, and Mitch Doren, and a double by Jamie Klingsburg, were just too much for the White Sox, who were led by catcher Danny Pill, and sharp base running by Ricky Hurwitz.

The third and final game of the afternoon saw the underdog Cubs beat the Cardinals, 12-1. The Cubs, sparked by pitcher Alec Soreff, who struck out ten, with one inning striking out the side, and Mark Bilodeau, who hit the leagues first home rjn ever, were just too much for the Cardinals and pitcher Dean Goldberg to contain. Soreff allowed but five hits, and shortstop Jason Moscartolo handled the shortstop postion beautifully.

The season, which runs through June ninth, will see much warmer days then Saturday's upper 40°'s temperatures, and each team should have no trouble completing the 13 game schedule. Everyone enjoyed the first day, and the teams were complimented by parents for their hard work and enthusiasm. Many thanks to Commissioner Sack, who one parents called "a gem for making the league a success."

Abruzzi powers Lancer girls

Laurie Abruzzi cracked two doubles and a triple, highlighting an 18-hit attack, as Newton Catholic rolled past Ursuline Tuesday, 14-3, in softball action at Newton.

Abruzzi knocked home two runs in the first and one more in the second — both with doubles — as the Lancers chalked up all 14 runs in the opening three frames.

Joan Lynch (three for four) and Claire McNulty (two doubles) also aided the Lancer' attack.

Newton Catholic sent eight batters to the plate in the opening frame enroute to a five-run explosion. Abruzzi's double and singles by Susan Calabro, Lynch and Regina Canty were the key hits.

The Lancers came back with six more in the second, thanks largely to a two-run double by Natalie Brennan.

Now 3-1 overall and 2-1 in league play, the Lancers will be at St. Mary's (Brookline) Friday.

The St. Patrick's at Nazareth softball game was postponed Tuesday because of rain. It has been rescheduled for May 5. The Summary:

NEWTON CATHOLIC (14) — McNulty-ss 4-2; Brooks-2b 4-2; N. Brennan-1b 4-2; Abruzzi-3b 4-3; Calabro-p 4-2; Lynch-cf 4-3; Anselme-rf 4-2; Canty-lf 4-1 Totals 34-18.

Neil McPhee

McPhee Hall of Famer

by Frank Murphy

Newton South High hockey-baseball coach Neil McPhee will joined a select group when he is being inducted into the Northeastern University Hall of Fame on Thursday, Apr. 24, at Sidney Hill Country Club in Chestnut Hill.

McPehh a 1968 graduate at NU, was a two sport star for the Huskies. He excelled in both baseball and hockey, earning three letters in each.

His baseball days were spent as one of the best shortstop-second baseman in all of New England. During his three seasons in the Husky Red and Black, he was voted to the All-Greater Boston League and New England All-Star teams. McPhee's squads had a combined record of 38-18 and in 1964, the hard-hitting infielder led them into the NCAA District I playoffs.

After graduation, McPhee was drafted by the Minnesota Twins in the fourth round, and spent three solid years in the minor leagues. He was voted to the Class A Minor League All-Star Team in 1966 after being the RBI leader of the Midwest League and MVP of his team, the Wisconsin Rapids.

Neil was an outstanding hockey player for Northeastern as well. He was voted captain of the icemen his senior year, after a tremendous junior campaign. A pre-season injury shattered his right arm, and the high-flying winger was lost for the year. His 1964 squad won the Madison Square Garden Tournament, finished sixth in the ECAC and posted an 18-10 mark.

McPhee has been a physical education instructor at Billerica Memorial High School since 1968. In 1978 he received his Masters in Education from Boston State College.

He took over the head coaching duties of baseball and hockey at Newton South in 1968 and has enjoyed a distinguished career. His baseball team has won several Dual County League championships and has appeared in the Eastern Mass. Tournament several times.

A native of Waltham, he starred in both baseball and hockey, winning six letters and captaining the baseball team while at Waltham High.

Bantams advance

Newton's Bantam A team defeated Arlington, 3-2, in its first game in the single elimination Middlesex League youth hockey playoffs Saturday night at the Burlington Ice Palace.

Left wing Jon Brownstein opened the scoring for Newton when he redirected a pass from defenseman Paul Boudreau to the open side of the net.

Peter Larson scored for Newton in the second period on a breakaway when he deflected a pass from Glenn Legault to the far side of the net.

Boudreau scored for Newton with six seconds left in the second period when he took a wrist shot from the blue line.

Arlington scored twice in the third period but came up short.

Newton goalie Doug Stocklan had 10 saves.

Newton will play Waltham Green Thursday night at 6:40 p.m. at the Burlington Ice Palace.

NAA fives advance

Both the A league team and the Pony league team of the Newton Athletic Association, advanced to the semi-finals of the Wakefield Tournament Saturday as the A team dumped Andover, 62-42, and the Pony league team downed Wakefield, 63-53, at Wakefield High Gym.

The A league team jumped out to an early lead as Steve Altman pumped in eight first quarter points.

Newton maintained a lead of five to 14 points during the game.

Newton blew the game open in the fourth quarter as it outscored Andover 21-6.

Steve Altman was high scorer for Newton with 29. Greg Lee and Greg Weltz controlled the boards as Newton outrebounded Andover 31-9.

The A league team will face Lexington in the semi-finals at 7:00 p.m. next Saturday at Wakefield High.

In the Pony league game Newton, led by Scott Anglin's 11 first quarter points, jumped out to a 22-11 first quarter lead.

Scott Anglin was high man for Newton with 19. Meechie Russell added 17 for Newton.

Andy Dave Goose, and Anglin controlled the boards for Newton.

The Pony league team will square off with Cardello Brothers of Everett in the semi-finals Friday evening at 6p.m. at Wakefield High Gym. The summary:

NEWTON (63) — Stubblebine 4-0-8; Scott Anglin 9-1-19; Vayle 1-0-2; Russell 7-3-17; Marcus 1-0-2; Dixon 1-0-2; Goose 5-3-13; Totals 28-7-63.

Jays cut pitcher

TORONTO (UPI) — The Toronto Blue Jays outrighted the contract of pitcher Mark Lemongello to the Chicago Cubs' Wichita farm club in the American Association Monday, bringing the team to the 25-player limit.

Lemongello posted a 10.50 ERA in four outings during spring training.

Lancers overtake St. Pat's at end, 10-6

Newton Catholic roared from behind with six runs in the final two innings to defeat St. Patrick's Tuesday, 10-6, at Watertown in the season opener for both clubs.

The Lancers tallied two in the sixth and four in the seventh to overcome a 6-4 deficit. Paul Smith (three for five) and John Gallagher (two hits, including a key triple) led the way for coach Chuck Enos' troops.

"Mechanically it wasn't a great effort, but I have to pleased with our hitting," said Enos.

St. Patrick's lost the game thanks in large part to walks . The Lancers' big innings (sixth and seventh) saw Knight pitchers hand out six base-on-balls.

In the sixth, starter Joe Grillo loaded the bases with walks and then surrendered a two-run single to Dan Daley while in the seventh much the same happened.

Grillo walked Paglia to begin the frame. Gallagher tripled for one run and a 7-6 lead and, after Jim O'Connor walked, Steve Caliguri singled for another run. Paul Smith brought in the inning's third run with a double and with the bases full, Grillo hit Gary Luchette to force in the final tally.

Smith picked up the victory, going the distance , allowing six hits and fanning two.

"Paul actually pitched a decent game," said Enos. "He was just hurt by some very bad support in those two innings."

Those two innings were the third and the fifth when the Knights scored six runs.

Trailing 3-0 at the time (the Lancers scored two in the first and one in the third), St. Patrick's came back to tie with three in the third.

After consecutive walks to Dan Bloomer and Phil Barrett and a sacrifice bunt by Brian Deleskey, Jim Minelli brought home a pair of runs with a double to left. Grillo then followed with a single and scored on Paul Piselli's single, making it a 3-3 game.

The Lancers moved back out front in the fourth — two errors, a Caliguri single and a ground-out by Smith — before St. Patrick's rallied again.

Barrett opened the fifth with a single and a steal of Second. Next came a comedy of errors. With Deleskey attempting just a simple sacrifice, the Lancers converted his bunt into a run-producing three base error, bringing the Knights into a 5-4 lead.

Minelli moved to second on the error, stole third and then scored himself when the catcher threw the ball into leftfield.

Newton Catholic overcame those mistakes, however, with its final two-inning rally.

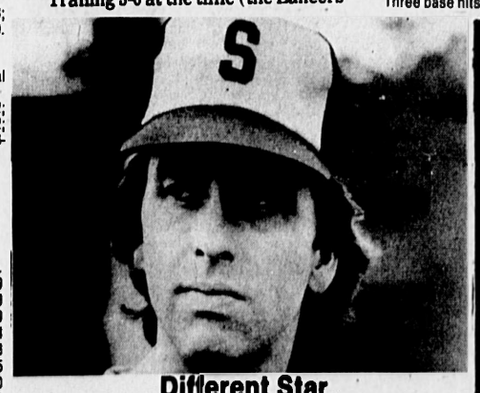

Now 1-0, the Lancers will play at North Cambridge Thursday while the 0-1 Knights are at St.Mary's (Cambridge) the same day. The Summary:

NEWTON CATHOLIC (10) — O'Connor 2-0; Caliguri 5-3; Smith 4-2; Daley 3-1; Luchette 3-0; Connelly 5-0; Paglia 2-0; Geoffrion 2-0; Gallagher Totals 29-7.

ST. PATRICK'S (6) — Deleskey 3-1; J. Minelli 4-1; Grillo 4-1; Piselli 4-2; Gulla 3-0; O'Connell 3-0; F. Minelli 3-0; Bloomer 2-0; Barrett 2-1; Donnelly 0-0. Totals 28-6.

Baptist Home administrator retires

NEWTON — A Newton resident for 32 years, the administrator of the Baptist Home of Massachusetts, on Commonwealth Avenue, Newton, has retired.

Selma S. Tarlow of Cabot Street, Newton, widely known in the nursing hone profession, has been associated with the Baptist facility for 17 years, and many as administrator.

The home, now marking its 89th year, has 130 residents and Tarlow has seen many Baptists and others of various denominations, some clergymen and some missionaries from the far corners of the earth, come and go.

"It is a great reminder that life moves on and we must move with it," said Tarlow recently..

Her long years of service have not gone unremembered. Tributes from the officers, members of the Board of Trustees, the Auxiliary, and most important from the residents, have been many.

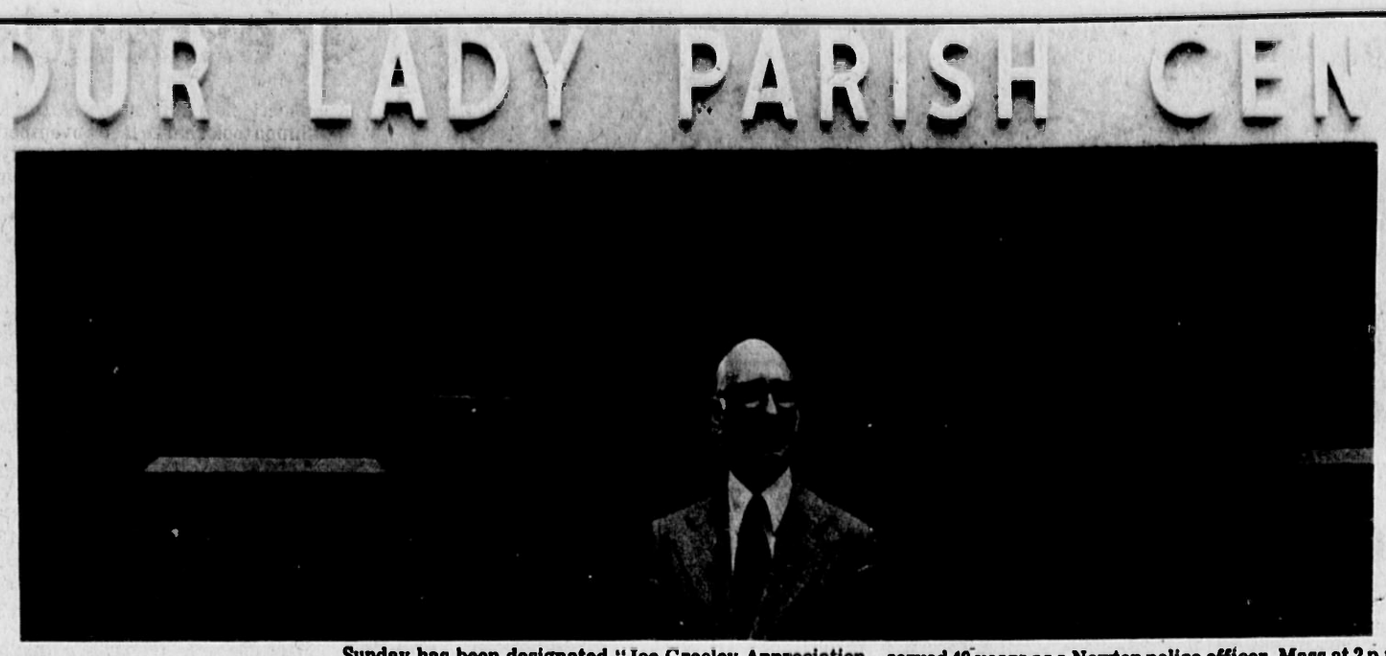

She does not intend to rest on her laurels. She intends to make her retirement fulfilling. She looks forward to travel, bridge playing, reading, enjoying her fivs grandchildren, and activities with the Brandeis Woman's group.

Tarlow received her B.A. degree in business administration from Hunter College in New York, and has done advanced work at Babson College, Northeastern University and the Massachusetts Bay Community College.

She is formerly president of the New England Chapter of the Hunter College Alumnae ▫ Neighborhood Chairman in the Newton Council of Girl Scouts, was active in Newton Boy Scout work, and Temple Emmanuel, Newton.

She has two daughters, Mrs. Tobie Geller of Newton, and Mrs. Barbara Zack of Lexington, and a son, Howard of Cambridge. Her husband is Bertram Langenthal, who is associated with an oil firm.

Tarlow has advice to the new generation entering careers in caring for the elderly and ill. "Never lose your sense of compassion for others," she stresses."The nursing home should not be just a business. Too many today see it that way. I hope I have brought a little spark of happiness into the world."

Appreciation Day

Church honors Joe Greely

Sunday has been designated "Joe Greeley Appreciation Day" at Our Lady's Parish. Greely, who is 78 years old, has been parish security officer for 15 years. Formally he served 40 years as a Newton police officer. Mass at 2 p.m. Reception at 3:30 p.m.

After years of saying, "Joe Greely has done a great deal for this parish and we owe him a salute," a committee was formed and Joe Greely Appreciation Day at Our Lady's Parish, Newton, will be observed Sunday.

Greely, who was born in Watertown, was the eldest of the five children of John and Mary Greely, who were married at Our Lady's Church Nov. 2, 1900. Born Jan. 9, 1902, he had three brothers. Francis, deceased, was a Newton police sergeant. J. Wallace is a retired lieutenant in the Newton Fire Department, and Thomas J. is an engineer for the city of Newton. He also has one sister, Ellen Marie Richards of Newton.

Two weeks after the birth of their son, Joseph, John and Mary Greely moved to Adams Street, Newton. Their cild attended the original Our Lady's grammar school on Adams Street and had one year in the original high school, now the gift and thrift shop, before going to Newton High School, from which he was graduated in 1918.

Joe's wife, Helen, also has an Our Lady's background. Even though she also was born in Watertown, her parents, Edward and Mary Anne Cavanaugh were married in Our Lady's in 1906. Helen attended grammar and high school at Our Lady's and was graduated from Our Lady's High in 1924.

Joe and Helen are the parents of nine children, five boys and four girls, Joe Jr., William, Elizabeth, Mary, Richard, John, Michael, Carol and Virginia. Eight children were graduated from Our Lady's and one from St. Mary's in Waltham. There are 29 grandchildren, but Joe and Helen said, "Don't ask me all their names."

In 1927, Joe started a 40 year career as a Newton Police Officer. A very active individual, he always was involved with many parish and work related organizations. He was a member of the Newton Police Memorial Society, the Newton Police Benefit Association and was a graduate of the State Police Academy in 1930. In his active police career he maintained an expert rating on 22, 38, and 45 caliber pistols and the Thompson Sub-Machine Gun.

In addition, Joe played semi pro football as a roving center for the Newton Town Team from 1920 to 1926 and attended Boston Teachers College from 1935 to 1937.

In 1965, he became the official security officer for the parish complex of five buildings. He retains this position.

However, one assignment has never been enough to keep Joe busy and happy-so in addition to his security responsibilities he works on many affairs for the elderly and administers the driver education program for the students, assists at the Beano parties and in every prish activity throughou the year.

The people who know best the great value of having Joe associated with school and parish activities are the priests and school supervisors.

Monsignor John J. MacManmon, pastor, said, "In a large complex like Our Lady's, it is wonderful and invaluable to have someone like Joe—so reliable so pleasant and so loyal to Our Lady's.

The Rev. Robert C. Fichtner, school administrator, said, "He's been a pillar of the school. The soul of dependability. An invaluable asset to the entire school program."

Sister Joan Duffy, high school principal, said, "Joe reminds me of a phrase from the Book of Prophets—'You give little when you give of your possessions. It is when you give of yourself that you truly give."

Sister Martina Marie, grammar school principal, said, "I have found him completely cooperative and supportive on any of our school projects."

These tributes from the administration reflect the high esteem in which Joe is held in parish activities. On Sunday the entire parish will have an opportunity to salute Joe Greely.

The Committee Members are: Honorary chairman, Monsignor McManmon; master of ceremonies, Father Leroy Owens; liturgy coordinators, Sister Joan Duffy and Sister Martina Marie; chairpersons, Ron and Marie Palkey; decoration chairperson, Genny King; refreshment chairpersons, Carolyn Kling and Joan Donnelly; publicity chairperson, Kevin Stokes;

Also PTA representatives Joanne Walsh, Peggy Connolly, Lucille Swan, Ann Keady, Jan Wallace, and John Lydon;

And Newton Catholic School Beano: Our Lady's Beano, Frank Ferrer; 5-9-11 Club, Mary Desmond and Joe Capalbo; N.C. High, Paula Battista and Laurie Abruzzi; alumni, Terry Dougherty, Ronnie Pepper, and Louis Abruzzi;

Thrift Shop, Genny King; Catholic Daughters, Phyllis Erico and Florence Cohen; Legion of Mary, Joe Daley; Blarney Casteleers, Winnie Donahue and Dolly O'Brien; Our Lady's ushers, John Lydon; Holy Name Society, Father Joe Scorzello; Mount Carmel Society, Dominic Messina.

Arts center expands theater

By STEPHANIE GIBIAN
Staff Writer

NEWTONVILLE — Residents of Newton should consider therselves lucky. We don't have to venture too far to see a good play, thanks to the efforts of Josephine Simon, director of the Newton Arts Center and developer of its theater arts program.

Although the program has been around for quite awhile, it has undergone a number of changes since Simon took charge last November.

"The decision to try to really expand the theater program was part of the decision to hire me as director of the center," she said recently in her office on the second floor of the arts center building in Newtonville. "It was the decision of the board that I would be hired to expand the program, but there are some financial problems that we ran into as a result. For example, we really have to improve the acoustics in the theater if we want to put on plays there, and that will cost money."

Financial considerations such as these have only recently become common at the arts center. Before Simon's arrival, the theater program was very limited and only consisted of a few theater courses. The center was recently the recipient of a technical assistance grant from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts, however, and this money will be used to improve the acoustics.

The program has also grown in other ways, most notably in its offerings for senior citizens.

"I wrote a grant for $2,000 funded by the Mutual Bank for Savings to start a theater program for seniors, of which Frances Shrand is the director'" said Simon.

"The group is learning theater skills, such as improvisation, theater games, and they are learning how to do oral histories. The idea is that we will eventually create a script for an original play which we will produce sometime in late summer or early fall," she continued.

Simon, whose own background includes training in South Africa and in repertory theaters in England, also hopes to expand the children's theater program.

The recent reading of John Crabtree's "An Autographed Copy" was a part of "Plays in Progress," which is an ongoing series of workshops for playwrights. The workshop also serves as a sort of showcase for local talent, which is another main purpose of the new theater program, according to Simon.

"Our concern is with new plays, the kind that are not being shown all over the place, and lesser known plays by great playwrights," she said. "We hope to bring to Newton good theater, a more avant-garde, experimental type of theater."

"Newton has always had good community theater, like the Newton Country Players, but the arts center allows us to invite professional directors and playwrights to use the program as a showcase," continued Simon.

Plans are also underway to stage Berthold Brecht's "Private Lives of the Master Race," which will be directed by Dr. Ted Kazanoff, chairman of the theater arts department at Brandeis University.

"People are really willing to give their time and expertise to this kind of thing," said Simon. "We now have adult beginning acting classes, playwright seminars, as well as the programs for children and senior citizens, and we received incredible support from the theater community community. It has made my life a delight!"

Newton artists exhibit at store

AUBURNDALE — Monday, April 14, is the opening date for the 31st annual art exhibit of the members of the Newton Art Association. It will be held at Bloomingdale's Fashion Store, on the Mall at Chestnut Hill.

The exhibit of 50 paintings will run from April 14 through April 26. Well-known artist Robert Cormier will judge the paintings and prizes will be awarded just before the exhibit opens.

There will be painting demonstrations in various media done by members of the association. On Monday, the opening day, Alfred Garibaldi, landscape artist, will demonstrate his technique. On Wednesday, April 16, Leonard Walton will paint a seascape for an audience. On Friday, April 25, Walter Marks will paint a portrait.

Beatrice Hurwitz is chairperson of the exhibit.

Bike ride to benefit MARC

WALTHAM — The ninth annual Ride-a-Bike for Retarded Citizens will be held on April 27 in cities and towns throughout Massachusetts. To participate in a Ride-a-Bike nearest you, contact: Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens, 217 South Street, Waltham, MA 02154. (617) 891-6270.

BSO, POPS stage a Musical Marathon

BOSTON — A Walter Mitty dream-come-true of conducting the Boston Pops Orchestra in front of a sold-out Symphony Hall is one of hundreds of unusual fundraising premiums being offered to supporters of the Boston Symphony and Boston Pops Orchestras during the tenth annual BSO-WCRB Musical Marathon on April 18, 19, and 20.

This year the marathon is highlighted by a televised performance both the Boston Symphony, conducted by Seiji Ozawa, and the Boston Pops, led by its new conductor John Williams in his first Boston concert appearance. This televised concert and fundraising event will be broadcast live by Channel 5 on Sunday, April 20 at 6:30 p.m. and is being presented as a public service by WCVB-TV and the Jordan Marsh and Stop and Shop Companies.

The entire three days of the marathon, beginning at noon on Friday, April 18, are transmitted live by WCRB Radio, which annually cosponsors the marathon with the Council of Friends of the Boston Symphony. The purpose of the marathon is to raise money to help subsidize the annual multi-million dollar deficit of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Last year's marathon raised a record total of $206,000 through the sale of a variety of musical and non-musical premiums offered in exchange for donations.

This year's marathon includes a broad selection of premiums, ranging from a $10 pair of running shorts imprinted with the BSO emblem to a $50,000 private concert by the entire Boston Symphony Orchestra. The opportunity to conduct during the Boston Pops season is available for a contribution of $1,500.

The 1980 marathon will include an exposition at Faneuil Hall Marketplace in the Quincy Market Rotunda hosted by guest celebrities, a special collection of fine arts premiums which will be on display in Symphony Hall, and rare musical performance tapes of the Boston Symphony unavailable in record stores.

The marathon has prepared a catalogue of premiums which is now available by calling Symphony Hall at 266-1492 ext. 130.

The Greater Boston Chapter of the Amigos de las Americas will hold its annual 20-kilometer walk and bikathon Saturday, April 13, starting at 11 a.m. to raise money to send at least 20 area young people to Latin America this summer. These volunteers give inoculations and instruction in dental hygiene, distribute eyeglasses, and work on well-digging projects in rural areas where such aspects of public health care often go unprovided. The walk starts and ends at Boston College and goes through Newton. From left, above, are participating Newton students John Barnett, Peter Necheles, Michael Wing and Andrea Finegold. Persons interested in walking, biking or sponsoring may call 272-1170.

Grant awarded to educate nursing home staff members

NEWTON CENTRE — The Newton Health Department has been awarded a special grant to offer an educational program to nursing home staff in the Newton-Wellesley-Weston-Needham area.

The Department of Mental Health, Consultation and Education Services, which offered the grant, is cosponsoring this 10 week series entitled "Understanding and Dealing with Nursing Home Residents, a Teaching Program for Staff."

Professionals in the field of gerontology have been invited to lecture on two major areas - the issues facing the nursing home resident and the role of the staff. Topics of the lecture will include institutionalization, depression, senility, paranoia and sexuality. The lectures will also stress understanding of one's behavior as a staff member in dealing with these issues. After each lecture, the meeting will be open for discussion of the material presented.

Attendance at the program is open to all levels of staff. All sessions will be held at Newton City Hall and there will be no fee. The program will begin on Tuesday, April 15 from 12:30 - 2:30 p.m. and run for 10 consecutive Tuesdays at that same time.

For more information, contact Beverly Sorge, Newton Health Department at 552-7058.

Cancer alert program given at NWH

NEWTON — Interested persons can learn all about cancer's warning signals, as well as other elements of the disease, at a lecture arranged by the Newton-Wellesley unit of the American Cancer Society.

Through the efforts of the Newton-Wellesley unit's professional education committee, Dr. Giacomino Biano, M.D., will deliver a lecture entitled "Cancer Alert" on Wednesday, April 16, at 2 p.m. in the Parker House Apartments, Parker St., Newton Centre.

Dr. Biano is a cancer specialist at Newton-Wellesley Hospital and an assistant professor of medicine at Tufts University School of Medicine. He is a director of the American Cancer Society's Newton-Wellesley Unit and chairman of its professional education committee. He has staff privileges at several greater Boston hospitals, including Peter Bent Brigham, Leonard-Morse and Boston Hospital for Women, as well as Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Newton-Wellesley Hospital can be contacted at 552-7120 for more information on this lecture, and, for more information on other services offered by the American Cancer Society, the Boston office can be reached at 267-2650.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

REALTORS in 17 cities and towns in southwestern Norfolk County have launched an anti-vandalism campaign as this year's "Make America Better" project, enlisting the support of fifth and sixth grade students in their area.

As part of the program, the REALTORS are showing a film on vandalism at the more than 40 schools participating in the project. After viewing the film, distributed by the National Association of Realtors, the fifth and sixth graders are asked to create anti-vandalism posters, expressing their feelings on the subject.

A winning poster will be selected at each school to be displayed in a public place, and the winning students will be presented awards during the REALTORS' "Private Property Week", April 15-21.

The program is being conducted by members of Council I & M, a regional organization of the Brokers Institute, a division of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

Edward F. Smith of the Audrey C. Fields office and Karen Glaser of the Florence Kates office in Canton are coordinating the project as co-chairpersons of the council's Make America Better Committee.

Council I & M represents REALTORS in Bellingham, Canton, Dedham, East Milton, Foxboro, Franklin, Mansfield, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Milton, Norfolk, Norwood, Sharon, Walpole, Westwood, and Wrentham.

Travel

NEW YORK (UPI) — Businessmen trying to book scheduled airline flights to their destinations commonly hear the refrain, "You can't get there from here."

Two trends have hindered point-to-point business travel on commercial airlines. The carriers have trimmed service to low-density markets since deregulation allowed them to enter the more lucrative, big-city markets of their competitors and companies continue to locate new facilities in more remote areas that offer tax breaks and eager work forces.

"The trunk airlines are becoming airborne mass transit systems," said J. Lynn Helms, chairman of Piper Aircraft Corp., who noted 70 percent of the U.S. airline passenger traffic goes in and out of only 30 airports.

"With the price of fuel, airlines have had to respond where those high-density markets are."

So, many smaller cities which had scheduled airline service before passage of the 1978 Airline Deregulation Act now have little or none, making it all the harder to reach the less urban sites often chosen for new business facilities.

For Helms, who also is chairman of the General Aviation Manufacturers Association, these trends hardly pose a problem. Rather they have helped spur the growth of general aviation that is running twice as fast as any other segment in the industry.

The only way to service these markets is through general aviation aircraft or commuter airlines," said Helms.

To aid business travelers reach their destination in the absence of commercial flights, Daccord Co. of Nashville, Tenn., is planning a Sky Car service that, starting this spring, will link major cities with smaller airports using chartered general aviation craft.

Sky Car's idea is to take reservations for trips to airports without regular service, match them by computer with other reservations and then rent a plane to make the flight.

Sky Car's promoters believe flying to the final destination can be not only convenient but as economical as renting a car and even cheaper if a large enough group can be assembled.

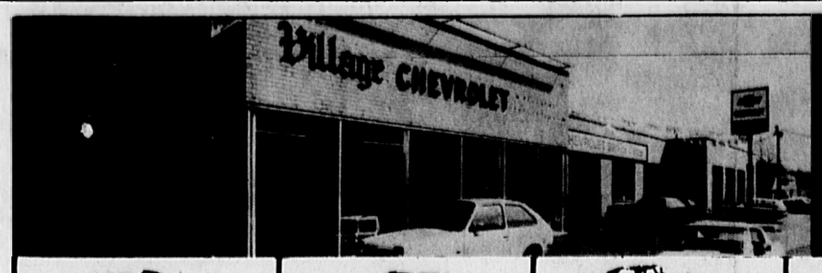

"Twenty-five percent to 30 percent of people going to any city aren't really going to that city," said Robert B. Noble, Sky Car's director of marketing. "That's why there is a $3.. billion rental car market."

Noble, a 39-year-veteran with American Airlines who came out of retirement to help organize Sky Car, says "the secret is computerizing and consolidating loads." To match up travelers, Sky Car will operate a nationwide toll-free reservation number and make heavy use of travel agents who book most business travel.

Sky Car will charge an annual membership fee of $35. The cost of each flight will depend on mileage and the number of fellow travelers. If need be, single-passenger trips will be arranged. Noble said Sky Car has contracts with fixed base operators and charter firms to give it an available fleet of some 1,200 certified aircraft.

Silver Lake Dodge of Wellesley was awarded the State bid for 298 Dodge State Police cars at a price of almost $2 million by Judge Samuel Adams of the Superior Court of Massachusetts under Superior Court action #40854. Silver Lake Dodge, the lowest bidder by over $225,000 under Chevrolet, had a preliminary injunction instituted by Standish Chevrolet, the second low bidder.

In overturning the preliminary injunction brought by Chevrolet, the Judge ruled that the question of the gas mileage which was raised by Chevrolet, had been satisfied by the State Purchasing Department as being comparable between Dodge and therefore the Massachusetts State Purchasing Department's decision to save the Commonwealth a quarter of a million, substantiated Silver Lake Dodge of Wellesley as being the lowest possible bidder and the rightful recipient of the purchase order for the 298 State Police pursuit vehicles.

Herbert A. Abramson, president of Silver Lake Dodge, said that his agency is naturally delighted with the contract award and looks forward to working with the State Purchasing Dept. in fulfilling the order.

We can all beat inflation if we just use our dollars and sense.

Edward H. Pendergast

NEWTON— A memorial mass was said recently for Edward H. Pendergast, retired assistant dean at of Bentley College. He died April 6 in New England Baptist Hospital at the age of 78.

Born and raised in Boston, he was a 1922 graduate of Harvard College.

Mr. Pendergast was widely known as a lawyer, educator, and businessman, having started his business career at Jordan Marsh. He waselected the youngest president of the Boston Silk Buyers Club. From Jordan's he went to Lord and Taylor in New York.

In 1939 he moved to Newton, graduated from the Boston College Law School, and set up his own law practice. He later taught at Portia Law School, Emmanuel College, and Bentley College. At Bentley he became chairman of the law department and assistant dean. He served as a trustee and founding member of the New England Colleges Fund at Emmanuel.

After retiring from Bentley, he was treasurer of the Griffin Publishing Co. and became well known in the food trade. He also served as president of the Harvard-Radcliffe Catholic Club.

He leaves his wife, Frances (McCarthy); two daughters, Patricia F. of Boston and Lee (Sister Mary of the Eucharist, OP) of North Guilford, Conn.; a son, Edward H. Pendergast of Winthrop; and eight grandchildren.

Anne B. Fahy

WORCESTER— Funeral services were held this week for Anne B. Fahy, 75, of Worcester, a former Waltham and Newton school teacher and school administrator. She died April 2 in Fairlawn Hospital, Worcester.

Born in Waltham, she was formerly head teacher at Hamilton Street School and principal of Countryside School, Newton. She was associate director at Tufts University's Educational Clinic and was also an instructor at Boston University. She retired in 1969. She was a graduate of Lowell Teachers College and received her degree from Boston University.

The daughter of the late James and Delia (Rooney) Fahy, she leaves two sisters: Esther, widow of John F. Rooney of Westboro, and Alice, widow of Paul L. Flynn of Weston and Miami, Fla.; and many nieces and nephews.

Arrangements were by the John Dolan Barry Funeral Home, Worcester. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

M. Florence Devine

WEST NEWTON— A funeral mass was held recently for M. Florence Devine, a clerical worker for the First National Bank of Boston for 25 years.

She died April 4 at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a long illness.

Born in Roxbury, Miss Devine later moved to West Newton where she made her home for the past 50 years.

She enjoyed collecting antiques and preparing gourmet foods as well as craft work and decorating.

Miss Devine is survived by three cousins, Marion F. Scott and and Anne E. Scott, both of Jamaica Plain, and Hazel Freeburn of Maine.

Anna G. Morrison

NEWTON— Anna G. Morrison, 87, died April 3 at the Braeburn Hospital Nursing Home after a lengthy illness.

She was a lifelong resident of Newton, and before retiring was employed by the Raytheon Co., both in Newton and Quincy.

She is survived by a sister, Mary Burns of Cambridge; one brother, Thomas Morrison of Rhode Island; 13 nieces and nephews; many grandnieces and nephews, and two great, great grandnieces and newphews. She was the sister of the late Eileen Dunlevy of Lawrence, Margaret Kendall of Rhode Island, and Ralph Morrison of Newton.

Arrangements were by the Andrew J. Magni Funeral Home. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Mary S. Barbour

NEWTON— Mary S. Barbour, 101, of West Newton, died April 7 at the Weston Nursing Home.

A lifelong resident of West Newton, she was graduated from Wellesley College in 1900 and in the same year became a teacher at the private Carroll Elementary School in West Newton. In 1938 she bought the school and directed it until 1952, when she sold it.

She was a member of the Lincoln Park Baptist Church.

She leaves a nephew, Ronald A. Davis of Wyoming; and three nieces, Marion B. Patch of Fitchburg, Josephine C. Barbour of Cambridge, and Hope D. Johnson of Hollywood, Fla.

Arrangements were by the Cate and Pratt Funeral Home, West Newton. Burial was in Cambridge Cemetery.

Arthur Quebec, Sr.

NEWTON— Funeral services for Arthur F. Quebec, 60, were held recently. He died April 5 at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston, after a long illness.

He was a chauffeur for the Herald Traveler in Boston.

Mr. Quebec was born in Boston, son of William J. and Katherine (McArthur) Quebec. He was a member of Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Newton Lodge No. 1327.

He leaves his wife, Aljee L. (Methot); five sons, Arthur F. Jr. of Bolton, Edward C. of Maynard, Robert F. of Acton, Allan W. and Richard B., both of Newton; one sister, Ruth Barton of Needham; and 13 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Arrangements were by the Martin E. Conroy Funeral Home. Burial was in Newton Cemetery.

Brendan J. Horrigan

KINGSTON, Pa.— Brendan J. Horrigan, 48, formerly of West Newton, died suddenly April 3 in Kingston.

Mr. Horrigan lived in Newton most of his life, attended Our Lady's High School, and was graduated from Boston College in 1954.

He leaves his wife, Elena (English); four children, Francis, John, Marianne, and Sharon, all at home; four sisters, Virginia M. Horrigan of Southbury, Conn., Mrs. John (Grace) Anderson of Newton Highlands, Mrs. Andrew (Ruth) Corrigan of West Newton, and Mrs. Francis (Elinor) Dooley of Wellesley. He was also the brother of the late John Horrigan.

Arrangements were by the McLaughlin Funeral Home, Kingston.

Eye tests for seniors at Newton drop- ins

NEWTON — During the week of April 14-18 the Newton Health Department and the Newton Lions Club are sponsoring a special vision screening program for Newton's senior citizens.

At these clinics, the public health nurses of the department's Senior Health Maintenance Program will test for general vision. In addition, an optician from the community will check eyeglasses and frames for minor adjustments.

The Health Department wants to emphasize that the screenings will help detect the changes that commonly occur as people age. These tests do not replace the regularly scheduled ophthalmologist's examination.

The schedule for the clinics is as follows:

Newtonville Drop-In Center, 41 Austin St., April 14 and 15, 1:30-3:30 p.m.

Hyde Drop-In Center, 68 Lincoln St., Newton Highlands, April 16 from 2-3:30 p.m. and April 17 from 1:30-3:30 p.m.

Oak Hill Leisure Group, 60 Stein Circle, April 17, 1:30-3:30 p.m.

Anyone planning to attend should remember to bring his or her glasses. For any questions, contact the Newton Health Department, 552-7058.

Parishioner may fight sale of grotto

By DAVE GRAM
Staff Writer

NEWTON — The planned sale of a parcel of land owned by Our Lady Help of Christians Church is expected to draw fire from a parish member who built a religious grotto there 25 years ago, parish sources said Friday.

Spokesman Kevin Stokes said the church plans to sell the land in response to a recommendation by the Archdiocese of Boston that individual parishes sell off extraneous property to raise money.

He said the parish is negotiating with "a West Newton outfit," but declined to name the prospective buyer. The sale is expected to be complete within 30 to 60 days, with the price "somewhere between $50,000 and $75,000," Stokes said.

The parcel of land in question is the site of an elaborate grotto, surrounded by flowers and shrubbery and containing statues of the Virgin Mary and other religious figures. It was originally built by in 1955 by parish member David Plate, now 93, and has been maintained and expanded by him since then. Plate is said to be adamantly opposed to the sale, but could not be reached for comment Friday.

Stokes said the parish has proposed allowing Plate to build a "smaller version" of his shrine on the main church grounds across Washington Street from the present site. He said Plate so far has not been receptive to this idea.

Attorney Jeanette Cardia, who has been hired by Plate to intervene in the matter said, "I don't want to go on the record saying the Plates oppose this (the new parish) proposal. I actually haven't been in touch with the Plates for over a month, so I'm not clear just what their plans are at this time.

"I know they've put quite a lot of work and money into this (shrine) over the years, and they would not like to see it moved or destroyed in any fashion," Atty. Cardia said.

But Stokes said he thinks a smaller shrine on the main church grounds would be the best solution. "I think it would be the best for all concerned. The parish would be happy, and I think (Plate) would be happy, too, in the long run," he said.

Legion of Merit given officer

NEWTON — LTC Jerome J. Donovan, USAR, of Newton was recently awarded the Legion of Merit Medal at the Federal Regional Center, Maynard. The presentation was made by Stephen J. McGrail, director, Region One and Frank A. Camm, national director of Plans and Preparedness, both of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

A mobilization designee attached to FEMA, Col. Donovan earned the award, one of the Army's highest, for exceptionally meritorious service while assigned to the agency as Disaster Analyst for over five years.

In his assignment, Col. Donovan was responsible for developing plans and preparations and contingency planning for response by appropriate state and local officials in time of natural or nuclear disaster.

Commissioned in the Armor Branch of the Army, Colonel Donovan retired after a military career of 24 years. During this time he served in a number of responsible positions, including the Combat Development Experiment Command, Army Experimental Tactical Exercise, and in the Intelligence Branch with the National Postal and Travelers Censorship Organization.

As regional director for the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), an independent federal regulatory agency, Col. Donovan oversees the functions of informing the public of the laws and regulations enacted for their protection, investigating product-related accidents under CPSC jurisdiction, and ensuring industry compliance with the laws regulating those products.

He is a member of the Policy Committee of the Federal Executive board, an organization composed of directors or department heads of various federal agencies.

Col. Donovan makes his home on Arlington St., Newton with his wife Hannah and their six children.

The pros and cons of Hollywood bios

By RUTH THOMPSON

At the half-way point of putting her memoirs down on paper, actress Claire Bloom changed her mind. Why? In essence she said it hit her that the reading public would probably be neither mentally enriched nor emotionally cheered by the genesis of her career or details of her two failed marriages (to actor Rod Steiger and producer Hillard Elkins). Has she started a new "don't tell your secrets" trend?

No. There are international publics and publishers eager for major performers to tell their stories. And with increasing candor they do.

Playwright Jean Kerr spelled it out as well as anybody in "Mary, Mary," first as a play, then as a movie, with the late Michael Rennie. As a suave movie star, he was tired of hearing himself identified with his roles and hyped as a fickle (maybe even kinky?) womanizer. He wanted to go on record as a decent-enough human being who evolved from a pimply adolescent to a polished man.

Last summer books by two senior actors, Ralph Bellamy ("When the Smoke Hit the Fan") and Raymond Massey ("A Hundred Different Lies") were essentially summations of their careers, and both got high marks from the critics. So have the mid-stream recollections of David Niven ("Bring on the Empty Horses") and Lilli Palmer ("Change Lobsters and Dance"). One of the best sellers of recent times is Lauren Bacall's "By Myself." She's done all the talk shows on television (proving we-all want to know-all), including Phil Donahue's.

Phil, of course, is now guesting around on other programs, almost as often as he hosts his own since HIS autobiography, "Donahue: by Donahue and Co." hit the stands (and the best-seller lists). One of the best: his go-round with Dick Cavett on PBS. (Dick, for the record, got his story in print a couple of years ago and was a Donahue guest when he did.)

Among the most recent of celebrities to recap and analyze his life is Ricardo Montalban, currently the mysterious Mr. Roarke of ABC's "Fantasy Island." With the help of Hollywood writer Bob Thomas he spent a year on "Reflections: A Life in Two Worlds." Montalban still harbors doubts. He believes that an air of mystery didn't hurt old-time movie stars any more than it hurts his "Fantasy Island." More to the point, he is a man of dignity who has always fought for his personal privacy as well as that of his wife Georgiana Young (the sister of Loretta Young) and their four children. He tells us, "When I saw the first draft, I thought perhaps I had gotten too personal, but by then it was too late." But he stands by what he said, and why. The publishers (Doubleday) approached him because they felt his story was no stereotype: a man in glamorous work, who held to the tenets of religion through good times and bad and fathered four children, now grown, of whom he is proud.

By next year, Diane Ladd may have completed her book. She won honors as Flo in the movie version of "Alice." Now she's on-screen (CBS) in the television adaption of "Alice" but as a new character, the sexy Belle.

Off-camera she is a thoughtful sensitive woman who raised her daughter Laura Dern with religious values. Her friends, Shelley Winters and Susan Strasberg, both authors of recent autobiographies, urged Diane to follow suit. "I'm glad actresses' biographies have become a hot commodity," Diana says. "I feel actresses have something to say, and they're not being given the roles that say it. I hope they don't stone me for sharing my vulnerability, that's all."

Disney videocassettes

Fotomat and Walt Disney Productions have agreed to test-market 13 Disney titles in four cities as a basis for determining whether to plunge further into the videocassette tape rental market together. Release of the initial 13 tapes begins May 10 in some 600 stores in Chicago, Houston, Philadelphia and San Francisco. Titles are only for rent via Fotomat's rental program, which began last December and blossomed out into all Fotomat stores only this January. Feature prices for a five-day rental range from $9.95 to $13.95. Tapes of animated compilations will rent for $7.95 to $9.95.

Murley vote stalled; on again

NEWTON — A special meeting of the Board of Aldermen will be held at 9:30 p.m. Thursday for action on petitions for a zone change and special permit for development of Murley Farm, which was delayed by a charter objection by Ald. James Miller Monday night.

Miller used the parliamentary tactic to prevent a vote of the 66-unit condominium development because of uncertainty about the number of votes needed to pass the proposal.

By statute, if the owners of more than 20 percent of the land within 300 feet of the property in question object, a three-fourth vote of the Board of Aldermen is needed, or 18 votes.

Land Use Committee Chairman Terry Morris said he thought the withdrawal of objection by seven property owners had reduced the objecting land ownership percentage below 20 percent, and that therefore only the usual two-thirds vote, or 16, would be required.

The Engineering Department is responsible for determining the distances and ownership, and it had not done that work since the withdrawal of some abutters' objections. Board President Matthew Jefferson said he had asked for that information last week.

Morris asked Miller to vote on the project on its merits, not taking into consideration the number of votes needed to pass, but Miller said he wanted to know whether "the abutters' position has been negated."

Miller makes a point of not voting against abutters' positions, or neighborhood positions when the issue is more general, when positions are expressed, regardless of other issues.

If it is determined that the zone change and special permit require 18 affirmative votes, the whole project may be in serious trouble.

It is difficult to get all 24 aldermen to a special meeting of the board to be in with.

At least six negative votes were counted Monday night. Some are opposed because all the low-income housing is not required to be on the site, and there is no location spedified for the off-site housing.

The Green Company, who proposes to develop the 29-acre site, will provide three low-income family units on the site and four family units elsewhere to satisfy the 10 percent ordinance.

Never before has all-family housing been obtained from a developer to satisfy the 10 percent ordinance.

Two of the three Ward 8 aldermen are known to oppose the condominium development, even though it preserves much of the open space and trees on the property and groups the housing into the center of the land.

The Green Company proposal is the fifth proposal for the property since it became available in 1976. All others have been turned down except a single-family-house subdivision, which never got started because of lack of money. A subdivision cannot be rejected.

The withdrawal of opposition by some of the neighbors has caused ill-will among those who still oppose the project.

Revision of the original plan, which showed 78 units with a swimming pool and tennis courts near the end of Countryside Road, satisfied Countryside Road residents, but some others are still opposed and resent the withdrawal of opposition.

Mofenson works to expedite payments

BOSTON — Many severely handicapped people and their personal care attendants (PCAs) are suffering hardships from delays in processing payments due them from the Welfare Department, according to Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton), House chairman of the Committee on Human Services and Elderly Affairs.

Mofenson noted that the seriousness of the problem was made strikingly clear at a Human Services Committee public hearing. Disabled persons, PCAs, and representatives of independent living programs testified they are experiencing 10- to 17-week delays in receiving money due them. Until a year ago, PCAs were paid directly by the commonwealth, through the Department of Public Welfare's Westborough office. Several people testified under the old system there was an acceptable 3-4 week delay between the time claims were submitted and payment was received.

In January 1979, Pilgrim Health Applications, a subsidiary of the Arthur D. Little Co., took over as claims processor. Since then, turn around time for payments has deteriorated to the point that some disabled persons are faced with the dismaying prospect of being forced to return to or enter institutions.

Since mid-February, Rep. Mofenson has been trying to arrange a meeting with Welfare Commissioner John Pratt to discuss ways to solve this problem. However, Commissioner Pratt has cancelled three meetings, thereby stalling these efforts for an entire month. "I am distressed by these repeated cancellations," said Rep. Mofenson. "They seem to indicate insensitivity to a pressing human problem."

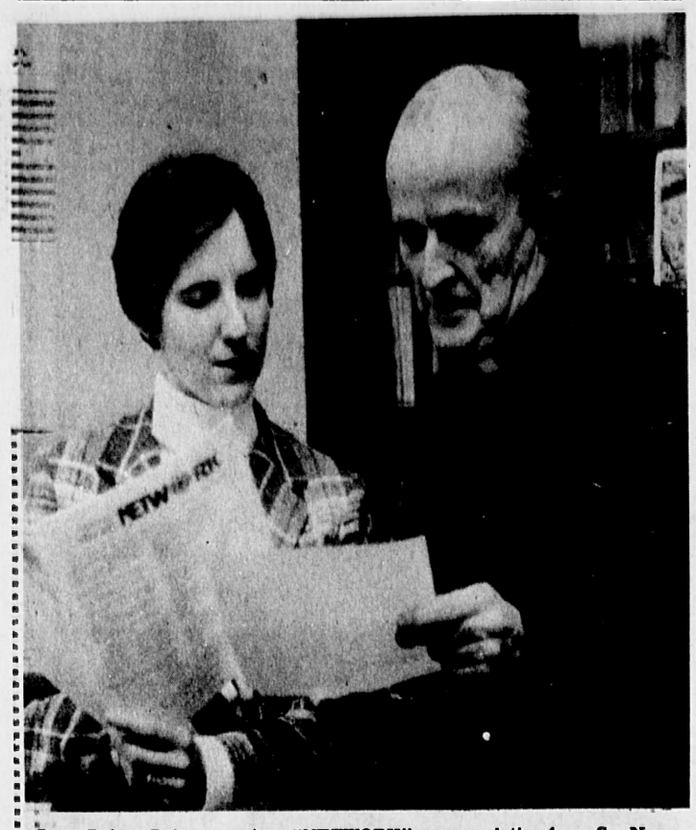

Mofenson pointed out that to the Human Services Committee, the very serious problem of re-institutionalization exists.

"Disabled people currently living independent, productive lives may be forced back into institutions if their PCAs are not paid within a reasonable length of time. Not only would this be unfair to the handicapped persons themselves, it would be a loss to the commonwealth, which will be deprived of their talents and energies," Rep. Mofenson stated.

In an attempt to deal constructively with this payments problem, the Newton lawmaker, along with many other legislators, supports a bill presently pending before the legislature which guarantees timely payments for participants in independent living programs.

This legislation provides that the Welfare Department contract with independent living centers on a pre-payment basis and, at the close of the fiscal year, conduct an audit to insure that all funds expended for this purpose have been returned to the Commonwealth.

"I hopw swift, positive action will be taken on this important bill. I am committed to the effort to carry forward the humane, economical policy of de-institutionalization. Modification or abandonment of this policy and its motivating vision would be tragic for significant numbers of disabled persons," Mofenson said.

Cong. Robert Drinan receives "NETWORK" commendation from Sr. Nancy Sylvester, I.H.M., for his 100 percent score in the Catholic social justice lobby's latest rating of Congressional votes. All members of the House and Senate were rated by NETWORK for their votes on issues ranging from welfare reform to disarmament.

Trips to the past fascinate children

By the Arts Council

BOSTON — A fifth grader envies the Pilgrims at Plimoth Plantation who fill the spaces around their homes with vegetable and flower gardens and don't have to mow any lawns.

Another student, this one visiting Old Sturbridge Village, is amazed by two carding machines because they are run entirely by water power. A teenager at Hancock Shaker Village finds a window in a stairwell that opens into an adjacent, brightly lit room and learns about "borrowed light."

"Each restored or recreated community represents history in a unique way," says Anne Hawley, executive director of the Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities which partly funded the educational programs of all three this past year.

"At Plimoth Plantation," Hawley said, "the interpreters dress, speak and behave as if the year were actually 1627. At Sturbridge, those in costume demonstrate how work was done in the farm communities of the early 19th century, but they do not take on identities of individuals who lived then. Hancock Shaker Village is different still. There, everything is preserved as it was when Shaken brethren and sisters lived and worked there."

Plimoth Plantation

"There is absolutely nothing like it," says Troy Creane, coordinator of winter education at Plimoth Plantation.

"The children who tour the village assume the work roles of 17th century children by gathering eggs, splitting wood, spinning wool or baking bread. All these activities take place right in the village so the children really see how rugged life was for their peers 350 years ago."

Plimoth Plantation is a recreation of the settlement lived in by the Pilgrims in 1627. Each costumed interpreter gives a first-person portrayal of someone who actually lived in that year.

Speaking in the lilting, regional accents of 17th century England, the interpreters explain why the Pilgrims left England and comment on the rigors of pioneer life.

These Pilgrims know nothing of the 20th century. When a boy walks by with a "Disney World" patch stitched to his sleeve, a Pilgrim asks if it is the emblem for his hometown militia. A woman in her garden is aksed why she has no tomato plants. She recoils: "What! Why, they're poison!"

This personal approach offers children the opportunity to identify with the Pilgrims, gaining insight into what it felt like to be a first settler in the New World.

"Many schools have had to cut back on field trips due to the energy crisis," said Creane. "Several have taken advantage of our 'roving Pilgrims' who spend the entire day at schools. And since the energy crisis shows no sign of disappearing, we are expanding our in-school programs."

Sturbridge Village

More than 100,000 school children pass through Old Sturbridge Village each year. Sturbridge is a recreated farm community, typical of those found in New England in the 1820's and 1830's. Interpreters in period costume work throughout the village in various shops.

"At Sturbridge," said Peter O'Connell, assistant director of the Museum Education Department, "the children watch our craftspeople and see first-hand how many different types of jobs were done.

"The blacksmith forges an ax. The cabinetmaker turns a chair leg on his lathe. Another craftsman pours a teaspoon of liquid pewter into a mold. The metal quickly turns dark gray, the mold pieces are separated, and out falls a spoon."

For many children, the most instructive experience at Sturbridge takes place at the Museum Education Building where they can try traditional skills like setting type, weaving, spinning, candle making, baking bread or shaping simple mallets from wood. Through participating in these activities, they learn the differences in the structure of both family and society between rural America 150 years ago and today.

Shaker Village

Hancock Shaker Village, also a 19th century community, is a special world, one home of America's most successful communal religious sect.

Upon entering the grounds, one passes through the beautifully laid out herb gardens. A mood of total serenity is created by everything from the arrangement of the 20 buildings to the graceful, simple lines of the furniture inside.

At Hancock Shaker Village, students select from three types of tours — a two-hour guided tour through the buildings including the famous 1826 Round Stone Barn, a thematic tour that focuses on a particular subject such as Shaker worship, or workshops which add to the guided tour one hour spent in spinning and weaving, broom making, music and dance or food preparation in the 1830's kitchen.

"With all the news about the energy crisis recently," said Cheryl Anderson, curator of education, "the children have been increasingly interested in the many ways in which the Shakers conserved their resources. They were very inventive in heating and lighting their buildings. Windows and skylights were used liberally to obtain natural light, and each building was constructed with enough chimneys to accommodate woodstoves in every room."

Every day, while children weave cloth from wool sheared from sheep at Hancock Shaker Village, others are busy at Old Sturbridge Village dipping quill pens into ink wells and making copy books. Still others are grinding corn into flour with a mortar and pestal at Plimoth Plantation.

These villages provide a range of experiences that have nearly vanished from the face of the earth, and their value can be readily seen on the rapt faces of children at work.

Graduate students bring enthusiasm to day camp

WEST NEWTON — The Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. has announced plans for its summer day camp program which serves children between the ages of 6 ½ and 12. This activity will offer four two-week sessions running from June 23 through August 15, and will operate at Hale Camping Reservation in Westwood, Massachusetts.

G. Michael Gardner, director of the camp for over 10 years, explained that the program offers considerable flexibility within a framework. Scheduled activities, including swimming lessons, free swim, boating, arts and crafts, archery, and ROPEs course, are interspersed with activities planned by unit counselors which have included drama, nature study, games, hikes, fishing, rock climbing, and a variety of special events. Children assigned to each unit are encouraged to participate in the planning of each day.

This camp is different from the average day camp in many ways. Almost one-third of the will be Boston College graduate students who are earning nine credits towards master's degrees in educational psychology by participating in a practicum as well as taking courses at the end of the camp day. These counselors are with the children from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. Classes, which are 4:15 to 6:30 p.m. are conducted by Dr. John Dacey, director of the Educational Psychology Division of the Boston College School of Education.

"The main thing for the grad student to learn is how, as a teacher, to relate more effectively to children," said Dr. Dacey. "Through their experience at the camp, where they are on a more equal basis with the children than in the classroom, they are learning what kids are really all about. And they also have a chance to put into practice the theory they have learned."

Gardner explained that campers, aged 6 ½ through 12, come from a variety of backgrounds, but each is seeking the same thing: a fun-filled social group experience. The flexibility within a structured framework provides for a high likelihood of success.

In commenting on the staff Gardener stated: "This dedicated group brings qualities of warmth and understanding as well as enthusiasm and creativity to the program so that an extremely positive experience for all concerned is inevitable."

Dr. Dacey stated that "one of the things of which college students today are most desirous is practical experience. In the field of education a one semester experience as a student— teacher just doesn't seem to be enough, according to most college kids.

"This program gives these students an opportunity of working with the same age youngster they will be teaching in a classroom.

"It gives them the opportunity of gaining some insights into the personalities of a number of children. These insights will certainly be generalizable in the more formal setting of a classroom. This is one reason why we have turned away perhaps twice as many applicants as we have accepted."

The program is scheduled to begin on June 23 but since the camp usually fills rapidly parents are encouraged to enroll as early as possible.

Rabbi to meet with newcomers

WEST NEWTON — Jewish newcomers in the area and others presently uninvolved in religious observance will have an opportunity to discuss their needs and philosophies with one of the region's outstanding rabbis, Rabbi Murray I. Rothman of Temple Shalom, Newton. An informal meeting for discussing views and sharing religious objectives has been scheduled for Sunday, April 13.

"Evening with the Rabbi" is part of a series being held for those concerned with problems of Jewish identity, intermarriage, child rearing, and personal problems in religious observance. The meeting is designed to answer in a personal way the question: "What needs does organized religion serve?"

The discussion will be friendly and intimate to enable each participant to get his questions fully answered. In addition to Rabbi Rothman, members and officers of Temple Shalom will be in attendance to provide information on services of the Temple, including children's education, adult education and social action.

Those interested in further information or in obtaining an invitation to the meeting are invited to contact the Temple Shalom office at 332-9550.

Bishop to celebrate confirmation here

NEWTONVILLE — At 7:30 p.m., Thursday, April 10, the Rt. Rev. John B. Coburn, Suffragan Bishop of Massachusetts will celebrate the Eucharist and the Rite of Confirmation at St. John's Episcopal Church in Newtonville. The Rev. Philip C. Jacobs, rector of St. Peter's on the Canal in Buzzard's Bay, who grew up in the Parish, will present the Confirmands.

A reception for the Bishop and Confirmands will be held in the Loring Room following the service.

Psychology program offered by NWH

LOWER FALLS — An all-day progam "Psychological Medicine for the Practicing Physician" will be held at Newton-Wellesley Hospital's Usen Auditorium on April 12 from 9 a.m. to 2:50 p.m.

The program is co-sponsored by Newton-Wellesley Hospital and Tufts University School of Medicine. It has been approved for 5 credit hours in Category I of the Physician's Recognition Award of the American Medical Association.

The emphasis on the conference will be on the practical aspects of diagnosis and management of mental health problems encountered by the physician in his practice.

Among the topics to be discussed are: Somatic Symptoms from Emotional Stress-Theodore Nadelson, M.D.; Office Management of Depression-John E. Gudeman, M.D.; Use and Misuse of Psychotropic Medication-Jonathan O. Cole, M.D.; Alcoholism and Drug Abuse-Norman E. Zinberg, M.D.; and Short Term Psychotherapy-Richard S. Blacher, M.D.

Gamblers Anonymous holds anniversary meeting

HIGHLANDS — The Newton Highlands group of Gamblers Anonymous will be celebrating its first anniversary April 14. A self-help group, its primary purpose is to stop gambling.

Anyone interested is welcome to come to the meeting on Monday at 8:30 p.m., April 14 at the Congregational Church of Newton Highlands at corner of Lincoln and Hartford streets. Enter in the rear of church.

The Poconos are still popular

SCRANTON, Pa. (UPI) — At a time when people are spending more money for food, clothing and shelter and less on vacations and other luxuries, resorts in the Pocono Mountains of northeast Pennsylvania are expanding and anticipating perhaps their brightest future ever.

Already on an economic rebound from the slump of a summer past, the $360 million industry has little anxiety about higher gasoline prices and a sagging economy. In fact, they insist those factors will be main ingredients for bolstering the region as a premier vacation spot.

"The cost of gasoline and the shortage will help the Poconos," said Robert Uguccioni, executive director of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, noting millions of potential customers from New York, Philadelphia and New Jersey can make the round trip on a single tank of gas.

"A good trend is developing for spring and summer," said Uguccioni. "We feel very upbeat, very optimistic."

He said a preliminary survey of the bureau's 280 members showed reservations up 12 to 13 percent and suggested the number actually may be higher because of a developing "let's-leave-on-Friday- for-the-weekend syndrome."

Leroy Guccini was born in the Poconos and started with a road stand business. Now he is general manager of White Beauty resort and in the middle of an expansion "to the tune of $2 million."

Bookings are so good, said Guccini, that the resort is having trouble finding space for group reservations in September and October.

"When gas was 30 or 40 cents a gallon, people always wanted to go to a resort even if it was far away. Now they're thinking twice about that," he said. "We are in an enviable position."

The Summit, one of the Poconos' many honeymoon resorts, this year has added 40 new rooms, each equipped with swimming pool and sauna, and plans another 60 over the next two years.

Holocaust observance starts Friday at temples

NEWTON — Commemoration of the Holocaust of World War 2 will take place starting April 11 in local temples in synagogues.

On April 11 at 8 p.m., Temple Emanuel, 385 Ward St,., will have a service incorporating the music, art and literature of the Holocaust, at the end of which Shoshana Kalisch, a survivor of the Holocaust, will sing songs of the camps, the resistance and and the ghetto in English, Hebrew and Yiddish.

Temple Sinai, Brookline, will devote its service on April 11 to honoring the Gentiles throughout Europe who helped save the Jews. Thes service, which begins at 8:15 p.m., will be the culmination of six months of research into the lives of seven Gentiles who either hid Jews or helped them to escape.

Temple Beth Avodah, 45 Puddingstone Lane, will observe the Holocaust Memorial at 9:45 a.m., Sunday, April 13, with a performance by the Youth Pro Musica of I Never Saw Another Butterfly, a song cycle based on nine poems written by children interred in a concentration camp. Rabbi Robert Miller will conduct a brief memorial service.

The Youth Pro Musica group will perform I Never Saw Another Butterfly again at the service at Temple Shalom, Temple Street, West Newton, at 8:15 p.m. April 18. Rabbi Murray Rothman will conduct the Sabbath service.

Temple Mishkan Tefila, 300 Hammond Pond Parkyway, will observe Yom Hashoa (Day of Remembrance) on April 13 at 9 a.m. with the temple's fourth annual Eternal Flame program. The breakfast program features Raul Hilberg, author of The Destruction of the European Jews.

Congressman Robert Drinan will be the major speaker at the Yom Hashoa service at Temple Emeth, Brookline. The program will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Congregation Kehillath Israel Brookline, will have a service on April 13 at 2 p.m. The keynote speaker will be Rabbi Bernard A. Poupko of Pittsburgh,who will deliver an address in Yiddish and English. Dr. Poupko is known for his activities on behalf of Soviet Jewry and Israel.

Dr. Steven Katz to lecture at Temple Emanuel

NEWTON CENTRE — Dr. Steven Katz, professor of religion and chairman of the Department of Religion at Dartmouth College, will present a lecture on the subject "Varieties of Religious Experience in the Period of the Second Temple" on Tuesday, April 15, at 9 p.m. at Temple Emanuel, 385 Ward Street, Newton Centre.

The lecture, to which the public is invited, is sponsored by the Combined Adult Education Program of four Newton temples: Emanuel, Emeth, Reyim and Mishkan Tefila.

Admission to Dr. Katz's lecture on April 15 is free for persons registered in the courses given by the Combined Adult Education Program, $3 for all others.

Travel Talk
By Josephine Arria

Oslo, in Norway, is on the coast and offers a vacation filled with simming, boating, summer resorts and weekend chalets. Along these coastlines, people have farmed since the beginning of time. Traces of these older civilizations can be found in rock carvings, burial grounds, sunken ships, stone buildings and other buried artifacts. Oslo is said to have one of the most favorable climates in the entire Scandinavian peninsula. Summer hangs around from mid-May to the end of September, giving you plenty of time to enjoy warm weather activities.
With the availability of transportation to most any corner of the world, and with the knowledgeable and friendly staff of BARCLAY INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL SERVICE, INC., 306 A Washington St., Norton Corner, to assist you, you can enjoy the climate conditions of your choice at most any time of year. Stop in and see our friendly people today, learn about the many interesting places to go, and discover that your choice of weather is only as far away as BARCLAY INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL SERVICE, INC. where the forcast is always for apleasant trip. Spring term blooming at Newton Arts Center

NEWTONVILLE — The Newton Arts Center spring term begins May 5 and will run for eight weeks through the month of June. Spring offerings include: dance, theatre, visual arts and art appreciation. Classes are offered in the day and evening for all age groups and levels of ability.

Classes in the visual arts include: calligraphy, oil painting, life drawing, watercolor, serigraph, stained glass, children's craft and creative expression, as well as a special program for spring in photography.

The Newton Arts Center dance program offers classes for all levels of ability in: ballet, jazz, modern, creative movement, as well as yoga. Emphasis is put on a non-competitive personalized ipvolvement between students and instructors.

The clay studio will be offering courses in pottery for children and adults, sculpture with clay, plaster and wax.

The theatre program will be continuing its senior citizens' storytelling, improvisations, and acting class as well as its children's workshop. An adult acting class will be offered twice a week this spring session.

For information concerning these course offerings and more contact the Arts Center for a free brochure at 964-3424. The Arts Center is located one block east of the Newtonville Public Library off Walnut St. at 61 Washington Park.

BSO clarinetist to play at Newton music school

WEST NEWTON — For the fifth and final concert of the 1979-1980 Scholarship Fund Concert Series the All Newton Music School will be presenting Harold Wright, principal clarinet of the Boston Symphony Orchestra performing with Andrew Wolf, pianist and director of the All Newton Music School. Wright and Wolf will be performing Sunday evening, April 13, at 8 p.m. at the All Newton Music School. For tickets and information please call 527-0102 or -4553. Admission is $5.

The music school appreciates the generosity with which the musicians of the BSO as well as other artists of the area have donated their time and talents for the benefit of the Scholarship Fund. It is rewarding to be able to offer to the community at large a series of such quality on an annual basis. Murley plan voted, 19-4

NEWTON — Development of the 29-acre Murley Farm property on Dedham Street with 66 attached condominium houses grouped in clusters was approved 19-4 by the Board of Aldermen at a special meeting Thursday night.

Ald. James Miller, whose charter objection stalled the vote Monday night and caused the special meeting to be held, did not attend the special meeting.

Voting against the proposal were Ald. Cynthia Creem, Robert Katz and Wendell Bauckman, all from Ward 8 where the land is located, and Board of Aldermen President Matthew Jefferson.

The Land Use Committee had recommended approval of the plan by a 6-0 vote. Land Use Committee Chairman Terry Morris at Thursday night's meeting called the petition "one of the most outstanding he has ever seen" in his six years as an alderman. mPD The development by the Green Company will provide three units of two-bedroom low-income family housing on the site and four three-bedroom low-income family units off the site.

An amendment offered by Ald. Joseph DePasquale, approved by the board, restricts the off-site low-income housing to not more than two units in any ward of the city, and they must be at least a mile away from any other low-income unit being provided by the Green Company.

The low-income housing on the site may be deleted by the developer if he can provide three housing units off the site, but in Ward 8. An amendment offered by Ald. Creem to require the substitution before the development is occupied did not pass.

Creem said she did not think it is fair to low-income people who may get an apartment in the development to possibly have to move at the end of two years . The order of the Board of Aldermen states that no low-income tenants may be required to move, in case off-site housing is developed for substitution for the on-site apartments' for a minimum of two years.

Morris explained that no low-income tenant under Section 8 housing has a guarantee of long-term housing. The Newton Housing Services Commission issues low-income people certificates of elegibility and

Traffic plan unveiled, hailed

By BEVERLY FORD
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Almost 100 Newton and Needham residents turned out last week to hear Central Transportation Planning Staff (CTPS) officials explain the plan for controlling traffic on Highland Avenue—Needham Street.

More than 400 other residents took part in name only when one Newton resident presented CTPS spokesman Jeffrey Paul with a 400-signature petition requesting that the state construct a pedestrian traffic light, overpass or both at the Needham and Oak streets junction.

"When people knew what this petition was for, they were lining up to sign it," reported the resident in presenting the petition to Paul.

But Paul, like cohorts Paul McHugh from the state Department of Public Works and John Murphy, MassPool representative, was more concerned with residents' reaction to a summary report detailing the several options designed to alleviate traffic flow along that roadway.

Paul noted that the options include road widening, curb-cut consolidation, signalization and channelization, the construction of a new interchange in the Kendrick Street area, and variable work hours, among other things, which can help ease congestion along that artery.

Taking up the cause, MassPool's Murphy said that the agency offers local industries assistance in establishing car pools for employees. Businesses interested in the carpool program, or in a similar, vanpool plan, can obtain further information by dialing CARPOOL, Murphy said.

Supporting the recently released traffic survey were officials from both Needham and Newton, who urged CTPS officials to undertake the proposed options as soon as possible.

"We feel it is imperative that the specific problems be addressed in the short term future," said Newton Alderwoman Susan Shore. "I urge you to move to implement these recommendations without further delay."

Sterling Hale, economic development director for Newton, read a statement from that city's Mayor Theodore Mann which urged CTPS officials to continue their support of the study and requested a coordination of efforts to improve the area.

Needham officials came up with several ideas of their own to further decrease the traffic flow in that town, including an eight-option plan based on the CTPS traffic study.

Among the recommendations contained in a Needham DPW/Planning Board report submitted to Paul for consideration last night was one item suggesting a possible revision of the exit ramp at Highland Avenue.

Listed as top priority by that town's selectmen, the access route would divert some of the traffic exiting the Needham Industrial Park to a parallel roadway which would in turn provide access to Route 128 from Kendrick Street.

That suggestion did not fare well with at least one member of last night's audience, who complained that an access ramp in that area would cause numerous highway fatalities because of the ramp's proximity to the Highland Avenue exit.

Instead, he suggested, an underpass from Kendrick Street to the Great Plain Avenue exit should be constructed to alleviate any further access ramps from entering the Route 128 traffic stream.

Although residents and local officials had praise for other portions of the CTPS report, several were still concerned over the plan's implementation.

"It's true, we have a very bad problem at Highland Avenue and I don't think there is any easy solution to it," said Needham's Planning Board Chairman Norman Homsy. "I think we are faced with a series of developing conditions."

$75,000 offer for Davis School

NEWTON — The president of the Newton Community Service Centers Inc. Monday night made what amounts to an offer for the soon-to-be-closed Davis School of $75,000 to $100,000.

Speaking at a meeting of the aldermanic Finance Committee, John Eller laid bare the finances of the Newton institution and said with the sale of the Pomroy House and the Cherry Street building now owned by NCSC, the organization will not be able to pay more then than the $75,000-$100,000.

The Finance Committee will attempt to set a price for the Carr School and the Davis School at a meeting at 9 p.m. Thursday.

Several private schools may be bidders on the Carr School in Newtonville, but no group has shown interest in the Davis School on Waltham Street, West Newton, except the NCSC, possibly because that agency has the full support of the neighborhood and others across the city.

Ald. Terry Morris, chairman of the Land Use Committee, some time ago suggested that the NCSC give the Pomroy House in Newton Corner to the city in exchange for being allowed to buy the Davis School, so that the city or a developer could turn the Pomroy House into multifamily housing.

That suggestion has not been well received, since apparently the NCSC needs both the proceeds from sale of Pomroy House and a low sale price for Davis School to manage the purchase.

Neighbors of the Pomroy House, represented by Peter Munkenbeck, are in support of the NCSC, asking only that the Pomroy House and the land be preserved as is with a facade and grounds covenant. They do not object to conversion of the house for housing, he said.

At least one Newton group, the Newton Corner Community Development Corporation, is interested in turning the property into a congregate-housing facility for the elderly and has applied to HCD for funding.

Jean Husher, chairman of the Newton Historical Commission, said at the Finance Committee meeting that the commission is about to sign papers establishing parts of Newton Corner as a historic district because of its "superb Victorian neighborhood."

The Pomroy House is a key building in the proposed historic district, Husher said.

There has been no neighborhood or aldermanic opposition voiced to the purchase of the Davis School by the NCSC at any price. The organization would be able to take over the building and start renovation almost the instant the school is closed in June.

NCSC has been providing services to Newton for 73 years. Its current program leans heavily toward day care and after-school care of children

South parents hear plans for high school conversion

NEWTON — When South High School becomes a four-year school in 1981, there will be special provisions for ninth graders but they will be treated as high school students, Principal Ernest Van Seasholes said Tuesday.

In the first meeting with parents to discuss the pending conversion to a four-year high school, Van Seasholes tried to allay concerns.

Ninth graders will not be allowed open campus privileges, But Van Seasholes said the policy that allows students to choose how they will spend free time has been generally successful at South High.

The average tenth grader may have no more than three free periods a week, he said. Some students will abuse the systems, but he added some students can get into trouble in the five minutes between classes.

Although declining enrollment and financial considerations have recently prompted the conversion, Van Seasholes said he has always favored four-year high schools, and a three-or four-year middle school.

Ninth graders are more like eleventh graders than seventh graders in most ways, he said. Many colleges ask for transcripts with ninth grade scores. Newton's three-year highs are an exception in area athletic leagues. But primarily the high school offers many more courses and extracurricular activities not available in a junior high school.

Some junior high students at the top of their class may suddenly find themselves in a bigger league, but a high school should present that kind of challenge to incoming students.

Some of the underlying assumptions for the transition include:

— Faculty members coming from Weeks and Meadowbrook Junior Highs will be high school teachers, not ninth grade teachers. Teachers at the high school now will teach ninth graders.

— All ninth graders will be required to take English, mathematics, social studies, science, physical education, a foreign language or another elective.

— Beginning with the Class of 1985, students must take at least one year of art, music, theatre arts, home economics or industrial arts during the four years.

— Students in the Class of 1985, and succeeding classes, will have to earn a minimum of 100 credits to graduate. (68 credits required now).

— Rank in class will not be computed for ninth grade courses.

Responding to questions about too much freedom to choose courses, Van Seasholes said the school has no mathematics or foreign language requirement, but that almost every students takes math, and that students earn very high language achievement scores. Although only 68 credits are required, most students graduate now with 100 or more credits.

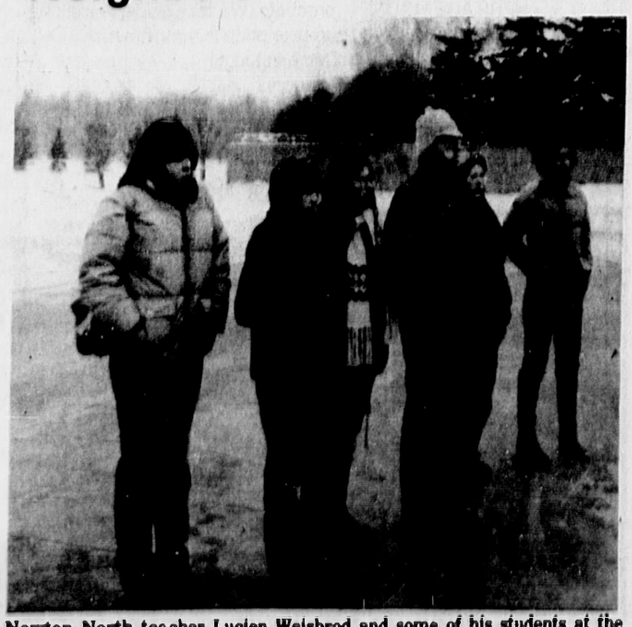

Van Seasholes said the school's philosophy has been to give the student the best advice, then let the student and his parents make a choice on courses. It is anticipated, he said, students will have the same counsellor for four years. Of the 1,114 students this year, only three have asked to transfer to other counsellors.

The decision on junior high teachers transferring to the high school will be based on teacher interest, the school's needs, and on tenure and seniority, Van Seasholes said.

There will be two divisions of ninth grade English, he said, with freshmen equally divided between the divisions. There will be various levels in other subjects; six in math, two in social studies.

The conversion will also mean junior high changes. Meadowbrook, for instance, will use a foriegn language textbook for the first time in years, and the next book in the series will be used in ninth grade.

A visit to the land of vodka and Cossacks

By STEPHANIE GIBIAN
Staff Writer

NEWTONVILLE— Lucien Weisbrod will never forget the Olympic hockey game between the Americans and the Russians last February. Neither will nine of his students from Newton North High School. They watched it on a TV set in a hotel lobby in Russia.

"It was definitely one of the high points of the trip," he recalled with a smile. "The reactions on the part of the Russians were very pleasant and good-natured, but they especially admired (speed skater) Eric Heiden. They were very unabashed about it."

For Weisbrod, a Russian and French teacher at North, the trip was one of many that he had taken to the Soviet Union and his second with a group of students from North. But for Holly MacLure, Kathleen Sumegi, Marian Abernathy, Philip Caldicott, Victoria Holmes, Paul Jakubowski, Linda Rosenberg, Elizabeth Sweet, and Anya Toomre, the visit to the land of vodka and Cossacks was a unique and rewarding experience.

It was especially unique in light of the developments in Iran and Afghanistan. The takeover of the American embassy in Tehran and the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan put a damper on plans for the trip which had been underway for about a year. Students who had originally planned to go had dropped out because of the political situation, but others felt that the events gave them more reason to go.

"We had made an agreement to go, and we felt an obligation to go if the Russian embassy issued us our visas because the deterioration was happening much too quickly, concerning the change of heart of the Carter administration towards Russia, and we didn't want to run like scared sheep," said Weisbrod.

"In fairness to the Russian people, who have a scarcity of information, we decided to go and talk to them, and do them a service by finding out how they felt about things '" he continued.

The trip was organized by Citizens Exchange Corporation, a non-profit organization that ar-

City budget

$800,000 cut in 'trade-off' budget

NEWTON — A novel approach to budget cutting was proposed last week when it was suggested that $800,000 be sliced off the top of the Public Works budget while giving the commissioner total control over the remainder of the money.

The Public Facilities Committee considered the proposal, offered by Chairman Richard McGrath, but took no action.

McGrath proposed an $800,000 cut from the total budget for the next fiscal year that is in excess of $10 million, leaving Commissioner Charles Thomas the power to transfer within any account without aldermanic approval.

The advantage of the plan, according to McGrath, is that the Board of Aldermen achieves a significant cut in the budget, while the department head has the freedom to spend the remaining money as he thinks it would be best spent.

The plan is a trade-off, McGrath said, with the board relinquishing traditional power over transfers, but is also a vote of confidence in Thomas, who McGrath says has the organizational ability to make the most of the offer.

McGrath admits the proposed cut of $800,000 is an arbitrary figure. It represents about 8 per cent of the requested budget.

The move would result in better service at less cost, McGrath predicts. The only unknown in the equation is money for snowstorms and McGrath said the board will have to be flexible in terms of that account.

The Public Facilities Committee Tuesday also decided to put $80,000 from a $109,730 account for rubbish disposal into budget reserve, an account that blocks the money from being spent without aldermanic approval.

The amount of money recommended for budget reserve was again an arbitrary figure, and the by holding the funds, aldermen on the committee hope to spur the city to develop a composting system.

McGrath said the city should not be paying $18 per ton to dispose of leaves along with other municipal trash.

Thomas said later he does not think the $80,000 figure represents the amount of money the city spends for disposing of leaves.

The only site available for composting is at Rumford Avenue, a municipal transfer station that was once the site of the city incinerator' but Thomas said there have been resolutions passed by the Board of Aldermen barring use of the site for that purpose.

McGrath said the site has not been used because the Rumford Avenue neighborhood has "literally been dumped on," but he said the site could be used if the city could convince residents it can be a good neighbor.

Cold Springs Park is out as a possible compost location, Thomas said, although it was once used for that purpose.

The city, with federal assistance, is spending $500,000 to fix the park as a recreational area, he said, and the previous compost effort failed because of a lack of supervision.

The proper supervision is possible at Rumford Avenue, Thomas said, and the compost pile will have the proper drainage.

McGrath had proposed a cut of $800,000 to stimulate city interest in composting. Thomas said that cut would "force my hand, without giving me the resources to respond to it."

It was board President Matthew Jefferson who proposed placing the $800,000 into budget reserve and the committee agreed. ' Thomas said Jefferson's recommendation would give him time to develop a composting program.

City Democrats hold election

NEWTON — The Democratic City Committee Thursday elected officers for the next two years without debate and without contested races.

But the appearance of solidarity was just that, some committee members said, and a fight that was brewing was defused during an executive committee meeting earlier this week.

There had been a segment of the committee that wanted to replace Chairman Thomas Concannon with Margaret Hannigan, and U.S. Congressman Robert Drinan may have had a part to play in eliminating that opposition.

Hannigan supporters are closely tied to the congressman, and the challenge reportedly evaporated after Concannon supporters called Drinan and asked why he wanted to oust Concannon.

The congressman denied any knowledge or involvement in the local squabble, but committee members feel Drinan put a damper on the Hannigan challen.We after the telephone conversations.

In fact, no one could be located who actually believed Drinan had any interest in the workings of the city committee, and the attempt to make him take responsibility for the actions of his supporters was viewed as just a case of political in-fighting.

That there was such a sizable turnout for such an uneventful meeting suggested different things to different people.

Concannon thought the more than 100 members who attended showed there is renewed interest in the committee after a rough one-and-one-half years.

Before the last state election, the predominantly liberal committee anguished over the prospect of supporting conservative Edward King for governor, and some members openly supported Republican challenger Francis Hatch.

State Rep. A. Joseph DeNucci, and other committee members, were so upset at the committee's failure to back the party candidate that there was talk of bolting the committee and forming a new conservative political organization.

Now "there is a kind of coming together again, at least tentatively," one member said. "Two years ago (the committee) was ready to erupt. That has defused."

That member, who asked not to be identified, credited Concannon with "keeping the pieces together without aggravating anyone," although his non-abrasive style was viewed by others as less than forceful leadership.

"Those people were down there either because they were expecting something, or because they wanted to do something," another member offered. "There may have been marching orders (from Drinan) to go out and support Tom (Concannon)."

There had been a lot of campaigning before the meeting, several said, and members turned out even though they knew the challenge had been averted, or as one member said "to see we don't get into a war."

Concannon retains the chairmanship; Hannigan was chosen vice-chairman and gives up her post as corresponding secretary; and Thomas Torchia, who might have been challenged, some said, remains Northside coordinator.

Brian Yates replaces Fay Cohen as Southside coordinator; Aida Press was chosen recording secretary; Fay Cohen was chosen corresponding secretary; and Theodore Gross was elected treasurer.

Another contest of interest was in Ward 1 where Glen Morris, Barbara Mooney and Ruth Shapiro were interested in the chairmanship.

Morris dropped from the race and Mooney and Shapiro were chosen as co-chairmen, in a compromise some committee members considered unusual. The ward represents a division by precinct between conservative and liberal voters.

Civil Defense budget up

NEWTON — The aldermanic Public Safety and Transportation Committee Monday night unanimously approved a Civil Defense budget of $6,150, up $854 or 16 percent from last year.

Civil Defense Director Jay Moskow explained that the increase in the 1981 appropriation is due to the transfer of $1,850 in telephone expenses to the Civil Defense budget because of 50 percent state reimbursement for civil defense expenditures.

The telephone expenses have been included in the budget of the Purchasing Department for the last two years and have therefore been ineligible for state reimbursement.

The Civil Defense Department is charged with preparing for natural disasters or enemy attacks and also maintains an auxiliary police force of 35 men and three vehicles.

In other business the committee approved a recommendation by the Traffic Commission that three spaces for one-hour parking be created on the north side of Auburn Street at the intersection with Lexington Street.

Ald. Richard McGrath said he originally proposed extending the angle parking on the south side of the street but that he approved an amended plan by the Traffic Commission for parallel parking on the north side. He said the spaces are necessary for the businesses on Auburn Street.

The committee voted to hold another Traffic Commission recommendation for three one-hour parking spaces on Centre Street opposite the intersection with Trowbridge Street. Several members of the committee said they wished to go and look at the intersection.

Newton library budget approved unanimously

NEWTON — The Library Department's $1,071, 375 budget for fiscal 1981 was approved unanimously by the aldermanic Human Services Committee Tuesday night, but the committee also voted to seek an opinion from the city Legal Department which may affect some parts of that budget.

The committee wants to clarify the conditions of state reimbursement for the purchase of new books and periodicals, which has recently been increased by the Legislature from 37 cents to 50 cents for every city resident.

To qualify for this reimbursement, which will total about $44,000 for Newton next year, a municipality must spend 12 percent of the library budget on new books and periodicals.

The question raised by the Human Services Committee is whether that 12 percent requirement is calculated as a percentage of the budget as passed by the Board of Alderman or as a percentage of the total appropriation for the Library Department.

Additional appropriations are expected for fuel adjustment and increases in salaries from collective bargaining, and the committee wants to know whether additional new book purchases will be necessary to bring that portion of the budget up to 12 percent of the year's total appropriation.

Library Director Virginia Tashjian said that increases in fixed costs and the imposition of budget caps has put the department "in a bind." She said that "drastic" cuts in the appropriation for part-time employees have put an additional burden on the full-time staff.

The part-time staff, she said, is essential for maintaining the library's hours because the full-time staff work seven hours a day while the library is open for 12 hours.

The committee passed a resolution by Ald. Rodney Barker requesting that Mayor Theodore Mann appropriate funds for the repair of furniture at the library. There is no such appropriation in the existing budget.

Barker said that if the furniture is not repaired it will eventually have to be replaced. Committee Chairman Carol Ann Shea voted for the resolution, but questioned whether it would have any effect.

"We're not in the position we were in four or five years ago when we could ask for more money and get it," she said.

She said the vote would "express our concern." "It's a protest," she said.

Nursery school opposed

NEWTON — Neighbors of 1091 Centre St. and the Planning Department both have taken a dim view of a petition for site-plan approval of the property for use as a nursery school.

Two residents of Newton Highlands spoke in favor of the school. Their children have been taught by the petitioners.

The house, owned by and adjacent to Trinity Church in Newton Centre, is presently the home of the church's custodian, who would continue to live there.

The proposed nursery school, called the Preschool Experience Inc., would be operated by Carol Rector and Hope Dauwalter for no more than 39 3- and 4-year-old children five days a week from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

The Planning Department calls the location "inappropriate" for a nursery school.

First of the many concerns is the traffic on Centre Street and the parking prohibition on Centre Street. There is currently no parking place on the property, according to Planning Department memorandum, and there should be four spaces provided.

The lot size of the property is 80 by 105 feet and the house is large, the report notes and questions whether there can be adequate outdoor play space provided.

The safety hazard of picking up and dropping off children on Centre Street has been addressed, according to Howard Levine, representing the petitioners, by arranging to use a strip of land from the rear of the property to Furber Lane, a small street running behind the church.

Furber Lane residents objected strongly to this proposal. Mark O'Malley said Furber Lane is only 21 feet wide, and the additional traffic influx will cause problems.

Joseph Stern, 12 Furber Lane, said he represents eight families who are "unalterably opposed." The location is "totally unsuited," he said, and the land is unsuitable for playing.

The presence of 39 children and the resultingg automobile traffic will severely disturb the neighborhood, "a quiet neighborhood of creative Stern said, describing it as people."

He and his wife are professors, who do their research at home, Stern said, and next door to him is a violinist-composer, who also does a good deal of work at home.

Stern called the proposal to locate nursery school on church property a "dangerous precedent." The school will not be a part of the church, nor sponsored by it. "It is a nonchurch activity," Stern said. "We are taxpayers – the church pays no taxes."

According to Levine, the school has filed an application for a nonprofit educational institution status.

Under state zoning regulations, the Board of Aldermen will find it very difficult to reject the petition for sit-plan approval.

The board may impose reasonable regulations on the building size and coverage, parking, yard size, lot area, setback, and so on but the law cautions that regulations that have the effect of making the religious or educational use of the land impossible may be invalidated by a court.

Religious and educational uses are exempt from usual zoning regulations.

The aldermen are faced with a similar problem in a petition to build a church at 47 Dudley Rd., on property the Land Use Committee considers totally unsuitable because of size and terrain to be used for the proposed church.

Both proposals will be discussed in a working meeting of the Land Use Committee.

Liquor store faces suspension

NEWTON — The owners of a Newton Highlands liquor store, given a two-week suspension Tuesday night for allegedly selling beer on March 17 to an underage youth, may appeal the suspension to the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission.

The Board of License Commissioners issued the suspension to Highland Beverage Co., 9 Woodward St., and said the store's license would be revoked upon the finding of another violation. The suspension will be in effect April 18-May 10 if there is no appeal.

According to testimony given by police officer Gregory Wright, he and another officer passing by the store in a cruiser saw two people, one on each side of the counter, in the store and thought there might be a holdup in progress, since the store appeared to be closed and the lights were dim.

When they saw a young man who appeared underage exit the store carrying beer and get into the back seat of a waiting car, they stopped the car, asked the beer purchaser for identification. Wright said the young man produced a license showing him to be Richard Tarentino, age 18, of 12 Cushing St., Newton Highlands.

Police searched Tarentino and the car for a false identification card or license, Wright said, and found none.

Under questioning by a lawyer for Sumner Pearlman, one of the two brothers who own and operate the store, Wright admitted he did not search the other two occupants of the car.

Taken back to the store, Tarentino identified Harvey Pearlman, Sumner Pearlman's son, as the clerk who had sold him the beer, Wright said. Wright said the younger Pearlman admitted that he had sold the beer because Tarentino appeared to be 20 years old to him but changed his story after being informed that Tarentino's license established his age at 18. Then, according to Wright, Pearlman said Tarentino must have shown a false ID.

Pearlman denied that he had made any inconsistent statements.

Pearlman said Tarentino was his last customer of the night and he looked "questionable." He said he told Tarentino he would have to look at his license, which he did, and saw nothing there that would show Tarentino to be under age.

The Highland Beverage Co. was given a two-week suspension last August for three violations in July and August. One had to do with allowing an out-of-state driver's license for identification; it proved to be false. Out-of-state licenses are not allowed for liquor purchase in Massachusetts. Another ID was examined by two people in the store; Sumner Pearlman believes that was also false and reminded the Licensing Board that the youth had defaulted in court on that charge.

After the suspension last year, the owners bought a copying machine to make a record of identification, but abandoned its use, Sumner Pearlman said Tuesday, after customers refused to allow copies to be made because it made them feel as if they were being treated as criminals.

Since the suspension last summer, Sumner Pearlman said, "Every single person who looks under 30 is ID'd. I think we're the most careful store."

Pearlman said the store has not yet recovered the lost business from last summer.

Harvey Pearlman, who is a college student and has worked in the store for three years, no longe helps at the store, his father said.

The whole episode has been emotionally devastating to the family, he said. "We're here as criminals — the kid who buys the liquor isn't brought in, his family isn't closed down," Pearlman said.

Asking for leniency, the Pearlmans' lawyer said, "To this family, this store is everything. It is almost beyond belief they would negligently card people and spurn the law."

"I think there's a gap in the evidence. If this were a court of law, you might also take judicial notice of the influx of phony drivers' licenses."

(An operation for the production of false drivers' licenses was broken up by police late last year in Newton Highlands.)

To Licensing Board member Ernest Angevine's suggestion that there be a three-week suspension, the lawyer commented that the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission usually gives only six days suspension if there has been an interval approaching a year since the last violation.

Angevine changed his recommendation to the two-week suspension with revocation if there is another violation.

"Either way, we'll have to sell the store," Sumner Pearlman said.

The Licensing Board is not a court of law, but apparently has the power to revoke a license upon the presentation of testimony without determining whether there could have been a false identification used.

If an appeal to the state ABCC is not successful, the next appeal can be to a court.

The Licensing Board also gave a two-day suspension to Powers' Package Store, 1191 Centre St., Newton Centre, for selling to an underage person.

Church plan for Walnut Hall defended

NEWTON — Planning Director Barry Canner had to defend his petition for zoning and site-plan approval for the location of the United Methodist Church of Newton in a surplus city-owned building on Walnut Street, Newtonville, Monday night.

Land Use Committee Chairman Terry Morris, who has always wanted to turn all city surplus buildings into housing, asked Canner why he had not pursued rezoning for housing in the case of Walnut Hall, a building of the former Newton Junior College at 430 Walnut St.

Morris said the Board of Aldermen had determined that the building should be used for housing.

Originally the building had been slated for residential, commercial or a combination of the two uses, but just before the sale of Walnut Hall to an engineering firm was to be approved Morris persuaded the Board of Aldermen to reverse its approval of the professional use and require housing.

But there were no takers for the building, which was offered for use as a two-family house. It could not be zoned for use for more than two families, since it is surrounded by single-family zones and even the two-family use might have been stretching things.

Canner said the building was considered by a developer for conversion to three families, but drew no offers.

After the advertisement for sale as a two-family house for $70,000 brought no buyers, the Methodist Church and another church made an offer.

The United Methodist Church is the result of a merger of the Newtonville and Newton Centre Methodist churches, both of which are now up for sale.

Charles Smith, lawyer for the church, said the church will renovate the building, maintain and improve the exterior, and change the addition into a church sanctuary by adding a towerlike roof, which will give the interior a church-like feeling and also provide a base for solar panels to make heat and hot water for the building.

In the old part of Walnut Hall there will be an apartment made for the pastor or the custodian, so there will be somebody on the premises most of the time.

The mayor has agreed to sell the building to the Methodist Church for $80,000.

The matter does not have to go before any other committees. It must be approved by the full Board of Aldermen.

Warren won't be done by fall

NEWTON — The section of Warren Junior High School damaged by fire in December will not be completed by the opening of school in September, Superintendent Aaron Fink predicted Monday.

On Feb. 25 the School Committee authorized city Building Commissioner Alan Fraser to prepare specifications for rebuilding one story of about 7,500-square-feet to replace the two stories lost in the fire.

Guidelines called for construction of a cafeteria and an area for large group instruction. The committee also decided there should be a small stage.

Within the last week Fraser told school officials the state building code will require a two-story height above the stage, regardless of its size.

The Committee had in mind a platform stage under regular ceiling height; not a two-story stage with full drop curtain and back lighting.

The development caught the committee off guard, and action on the stage was tabled on a 6-2 vote with members Sandra Fleishman and Robert Ricles opposed, and Mayor Theodore D. Mann abstaining.

Committee member Susan Silbey, who argued six weeks ago the modified reconstruction would have an impact on future school closing decisions, said the recent delays in preparing specifications shows that the committee unnecessarily rushed into the rebuilding.

Fink and Roy Cornelius, Jr., director of support services, both said longer deliberation would not have averted the stage problem.

Cornelius said the only question before the committee is whether there should be a stage. If there is a stage, there will have to be a two-story ceiling.

There are no plans for using the second floor, although it is available for future expansion, a possibility Fink has said is unlikely.

School officials have ruled out a north side junior high school consolidation prior to September of 1983. Warren will be in use for at least three years and possibly much longer, and Fink said there is an immediate need for the cafeteria and the area for group instruction.

Cornelius said Monday he does not know if a two-story ceiling over the stage will change the cost of the construction.

The original proposal was estimated to cost $400,000 by Fraser, and that fig.ure included chairs, heating, ventilation, electrical and $75,000 worth of cafeteria equipment. The cost, he said, would be covered by insurance.

Street lights to dim if rates go too high

NEWTON — Rate increases for electricity may result in less street light in the city during certain hours.

There is an unanticipated electricity bill of $316,675 before the Board of Aldermen, and more than one-half the amount is the result of a surcharge placed on street lighting.

Several years ago the fuel adjustment charge on street lights was relatively constant, but a year ago the adjustment doubled, and the latest increase is the result of the temporary closing of one of the nuclear power plants in Plymouth.

The Public Facilities Committee Tuesday recommended the appropriation, but told Public Works Commissioner Charles Thomas to find $200,000 of the amount within his own accounts.

The requested appropriation covers requests from the Public Works, Water and Sewer Departments for electricity and vehicle fuel.

The basic charge for street lighting has remained virtually unchanged, Thomas said, and increases are because of fuel adjustment charges.

"If we shut off every other light it would save money," Thomas said, "but someone would have to deal with the level of complaint."

Instead, the department is looking at alternatives to the photocell that turns lights on at dusk and off at dawn.

A photocell is available, he said, that would give the city more control over the hours of operation.

For instance, the photocell could turn a light on at dusk, off at midnight, and on again from 4 a.m. until dawn.

After a study of the actual energy consumption of the new kind of light, the city could ask Boston Edison for a rate adjustment.

Some members of the committee suggested lights could be turned off in business areas of the city. Committee Chairman Richard McGrath said many lights in the city were installed for security at a time when energy was inexpensive, and lights could be doused without creating safety hazards.

Building design changed

NEWTON — Under threat of prolonged litigation, the Newton Community Development Foundation has changed its design for a 43-unit apartment house for the elderly on Sumner Street, Newton Centre.

The building has been the subject of a lawsuit and hearings by a court-appointed master for some time.

The first architectural plan for the building showed an 80-foot clock tower and a driveway through the building, in a style reminiscent of the late 1800s.

Because of a suit instituted by George Theodore of Brookline, who owns property on Sumner Street, NCDF has had the building made smaller, the clock tower eliminated and the arched driveway eliminated.

The building is still designed for 43 units of housing for the elderly. They will now all be one-bedroom apartments.

The matter was presented to the Land Use Committee Monday night, where it was given approval.

Attorney Jason Rosenberg, representing NCDF, says the organization, which is devoted to providing housing for low- and moderate-income people, needs approval of the change in plan immediately to take advantage of HUD funding, already committed, during the current construction season.

If the decision is postponed or the litigation pursued, Rosenberg said, the construction may be done in a new funding cycle, which will have higher interest rates.

The building has been planned for several years.

The Board of Aldermen will meet April 22.

Alligators and Appleseed's.

The common alligator may prefer the Everglades of Florida. But the Lacoste alligator favors a different habitat. The Appleseed's of Massachusetts. Four sites north and west of Boston where the species arrives faithfully each spring. Braving the Northeast storms and the handbag manufacturers of Brockton and Lynn en route. This year, they're here in record numbers.

You'll find alligators on tops, jackets, jumpers, skirts and shorts by Haymaker. On David Crystal dresses. On Lacoste knits and pullovers. And alligators all over the men's department, on sportswear by Izod.

Come see the alligators and all the other spring creations. Including gifts for every room in the house. You're going to enjoy the good taste of Appleseed's.

Western allies are losing faith in us

In spite of the public backing of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain and the cordial visit of West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt to Washington, there are increasing and disturbing signs of conflicts between the United States and our close allies in Western Europe.

It has been obvious that many European leaders felt President Carter overreacted or reacted belatedly to the Russian invasion of Afghanistan. It was argued that the Soviet dominance of that country began long before Russian troops appeared and that it was overlooked or ignored in Washington. The suspicion of current presidential political considerations has been raised. The president's pledge to defend the Persian Gulf with military force if necessary also raised alarms among Europeans who wondered just exactly how the U.S. would accomplish that feat when it couldn't even get its hostages released in Iran.

European leaders have been understandably startled by the change in the White House from appeals for peace, detente, approval of SALT II and other weapons limitations to the hard line, rock-'em-sock-'em approach. They probably have been even more concerned by the failure to consult with or notify them in advance of changes in policy.

The latter complaint has not been restricted to the Carter administration. It was a failure of former President Nixon as well, especially in regard to Asian policies, in both parts of the world, leaders of nations in those areas resent U.S. actions which put them in danger.

Part of the problem is also due to the squabble inside Western Europe, differences of opinion in the Common Market about the budget, France's aloof position regarding the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and any kind of military accord, the anarchy that is Italy, close trade and cultural ties between some Eastern and Western European countries, they all contribute to a lack of cohesion whatever are U.S. attitudes and actions. Andre de Staerck, a Belgian diplomat highly regarded for his astute and moderate views in NATO, explains the situation well. "When you can't face your adversaries, you criticize your friends." Many Western Europeans don't want to face the possibility of a renewal of the cold war, especially since they are in the front lines.

The essential problem may be that the threat from communism is not great enough to band us together, yet enough in sight to cause unrest and worries no one wants to confront.

Yet this is exactly the time when the possibility and the chances of avoiding a resumption of the cold war in addition to something like a united stand when the Russians resume a peace offensive should be considered and discussed. The future depends upon it.

My Turn

Sam the Sham and other falling objects

By STEPHEN HARTSHORNE

Friends from New Haven brought news not too long ago that Sam Johnston, the poet-preacher-madman who enlivened the last two years I spent there, has gone to his maker. This news saddened me greatly and I mourn this man, if one can truly mourn a suicide.

The city of New Haven is bounded on the east and west by two giant hills imaginatively called East Rock and West Rock, and Sam took a fatal tumble off one of them, probably East Rock because it has a steeper face.

The manner of his death was ironic, because New Haven, for me, has always been associated with falling objects.

I emerged from an all-night bridge session there in 1974 to find the body of a student, clothed only in a T-shirt, lying in an alley.

He had apparently fallen four stories because he struck a car in the alley and caved in the entire rear end of it. I talked to some of the people who lived in the rooms above the alley and I learned that they had a practice of climbing across a window ledge to let themselves in when they forgot their keys.

The next day I was writing a paper on the novels of Aldous Huxley, and because I could think of nothing else, I was writing about a scene where he depicts a man and a woman sunning naked on a roof. The man is just remarking that the woman looks like she stepped out a of a painting by Gauguin when a plane overhead drops a fox terrier onto the roof which covers them both with blood.

As I was writing this paper, I paused to look out the window and I saw a puppy on a roof across the street. He was ungainly, as all puppies are, and was gamboling awfully close to the edge. I remember telling myself that I should run down into the street and stand under the roof because it looked as if the pup was about to fall.

I should have followed that impulse, but I went back to my work, and when I looked up again the puppy was lying in the street.

That day my friend Peter Bull read me the first draft of a work of his entitled "The Night of the Frozen Pigeons." It described hordes of pigeons, frozen solid, tumbling from the sky. Later in the work a character known only as "Mom" falls from a Piper Cub.

"Hers had been a graceful last flight," Peter wrote, "as the astrologer in Miami had foretold. Mom was the most beautiful woman, the policeman who eventually arrived at the scene had said, he'd ever seen fall out of an plane. Her golden hair had reflected the sun as she fell, (all agreed on this point) so as to create an awesome, other worldly effect that had transfixed all within a radius of thirteen miles when Remo had cut the engine on his smart little plane. Some UFO sightings had in fact been reported, but everyone concurred that it must have been Mom."

I don't know what drove Sam to join these falling objects, but then I never could understand what drove him to do anything.

He came to us in the fall of 1973 and was first noticed jogging through the streets carrying a large bag of rocks. At that time he spoke only in rhyme and styled himself "Sam the Sham" or "Sam I Am." When we asked him where he came from he said he had just traveled "coast to coast with the Holy Ghost." He had just come from Calif. we learned, where he had been arrested more than 40 times.

He wasn't really a felon. He was helping some students at the Berkeley Law School with some research projects. Once he was arrested for putting a nickel in a parking meter and sitting down in the parking place.

Sam was a giant, the strongest man I have ever seen. He once had a wrestling match with the biggest of us and the soundtrack from that match went something like this:

"One, two, three...Sam! You're breaking my arm!"

He had a beautiful bass voice and was almost always chanting primitive hymns to the spirits which peopled his turbulent mind. He had escaped, we learned, from an institution and I asked him about it. He said simply that a woman had tried to kill him with a pill.

Sam was supposed to be taking lithium but he never did. He had been given that drug in the institution and he felt it was killing his spirit. I believe it probably was.

When it came time to write a final work for my biography class, I couldn't resist the opportunity to write about Sam, although the research was rendered very difficult by his manner of speaking.

It turned out he was originally from Connecticut, an "Aryan from Darien." He moved to the Midwest when he was young. What he remembered most about his youth was his membership in the Boy Scouts' "Order of the Arrow."

There he learned Indian ways and perhaps some of the incantations that he sang continuously. He went to Asia during his senior year in college as part of an exchange program. I could divine little about his activities there, except that he saw unspeakable things and once lifted a car off a woman in Hong Kong. He never returned for his diploma, but went to sea on the salt ships which trade on the Indian subcontinent.

Sam eventually got back to the United States and wound up as a psychology teacher at Berkeley. Until the truck hit him. He was crossing a freeway out there to pick up a piece of driftwood he had noticed in passing. The truck was going at least fifty miles an hour.

Sam said he lowered his head like a football player when he saw it coming and saw that he couldn't get out of the way. That is probably the reason he survived. He was thrown over a hundred feet and was in a coma for three weeks.

That accident must have overloaded Sam's circuits finally and completely. My memory of him is that of an agonized spirit racking his giant body in a vain effort to find expression.

He used to adorn himself with all manner of found medallions and amulets. I can still see him standing in the street, letting out a constant groan, almost a song, his hands clenching and unclenching about whatever talisman he happened to be wearing around his neck.

I always wanted to find a place for Sam on this earth, a place where he could put his massive strength to work and find acceptance in a community where his eccentricities would be tolerated.

I was still trying to find or found such a place when I learned of his fatal encounter with the laws of gravitation.

How deep the corruption ?

Speculation is being aired on Beacon Hill these days about what in the world would happen if the Blue Ribbon Commission now holding dramatic public hearings about corruption involving building contracts had the authority to reach beyond into any and all areas of corruption.

What would turn up, for instance, if it looked into the selling of state or county jobs by officials with budgeting or appointing powers? Is there such a thing as getting a kickback of a percentage of the salary in outright cash — or more discreetly, of demanding and getting a "contribution" when the time for a fundraiser rolled around? And what about those fundraisers where two sets of books are kept, one to account for the numbered tickets and the others for the unnumbered tickets?

What about the pipeline certain individuals have into state or federal funding programs and the insistence on getting a partnership role in any ventures for which federal or state funding is secured?

What about the favoring of politically-connected bankers by arranging for a city, county or state entity to deposit its funds in the bank, a painless and profitable way of providing capital for the bank in these tight times in return for favors the bank or banker might provide?

While on the Blue Ribbon Commission, reporters covering the daily outpuring of evidence about secret deals are asking themselves why the Commission never inquires of these wheeler-dealers if they thought to blow the whistle when a politician solicited a bribe.

It would be an easy matter for the authorities, alerted to the attempt at extortion or bribery, to wire the solicited individual with a tape recorder and send him or her back to have the bribe repeated for evidence.

Sources say that the mayor of a certain community may find himself in trouble as a spinoff of the BRC's hearings, also that some devastating testimony may come when the Commission goes back over the capital outlay programs when Gov. Francis Sargent's team was in charge.

Sources say that several long-time Kennedy intimates are hoping Ronald Reagan will win the November election, not Jimmy Carter.

Two reasons are given: 1) Reagan might not last more than one term, by reason of his age and the stresses and demands of the Presidency in these hairy times; 2) If Carter happens to win, he would have four more years in which to make Kennedy's life so miserable that the latter would be in no position to succeed Carter.

With an eye to a Kennedy candidacy in 1984, it is being pointed out that Kennedy turned in a respectable performance this time around in 1980; that he has gotten his handicaps out in the open to the point where they can't be gone over much more; that he will have taken like a man this, the first big political defeat of his life, and has not, as in the past, run for cover to escape responsibility or shrug it all off. "He had to show he can take it," says one source, "and that has been the real Kennedy message of 1980."

By articulating blunt and valid criticism of Pres. Carter's performance, Ted Kennedy is at the same time forcing Democrats to choose between John Anderson, where hope is dwindling, and Ronald Reagan. Under Reagan, Kennedycould have four years of president-in-waiting.

Gov. Edward King paid George Frattaroli, his erstwhile patronage secretary, $6000 at a "consultant" in January. Frattaroli quit King's staff late last year after he discovered many of his recommendations for patronage positions were ignored by the Governor. Sources now say that Frattaroli has received considerably more subsequently from King's campaign funds — possibly as much as $25,000 more — because, as they put it, he lost a lot of his real estate business when he went to work for King.

Federal sources say that an investigation is under way to determine whether certain prominent criminal lawyers in Boston might also have been heavily into the importing and selling of drugs as a sideline.

Former House minority leader Frank Hatch is now chairman of "Americans for the Coast," a national citizens organization working out of New York attempting to look after the interests of the 65% of the American population that lives within 50 miles of a coastline, be it East, West or Gulf. Hatch says by 1990 it is estimated that 80% of the people in the country will be hugging shorelines.

Hatch was one of the "Builders Committee" which helped unseat GOP state chairman Gordon Nelson last week and install Rep. Andrew Natsios. Asked what good after all is the ineffective state committee of a miniscule minority party in the larger scheme of things, Hatch snapped, "It's critical when you have a close race as I did." Hatch snapped, "It's critical when you have a close race as I did." Hatch says that Gordon Nelson opposed him as Republican candidate for Governor against Democrat Edward J. King and failed to rally the state committee behind a chance to win the Governorship. "50,000 votes could have done it,' says Hatch.

Elderly housing

(The following was sent to Mayor Theodore Mann, with a copy to the Newton Graphic.) Dear Mayor Mann:

The Council on Aging has voted to support the following resolution as submitted to it by the Council on Aging Advisory Board.

"In view of the fact that there is a well— documented shortage of available housing for the elderly in Newton, and that the percentage of total housing for the elderly will be increasing as the elderly population increases, we strongly recommend that the city give highest priority to the reuse of vacated public buildings for elderly housing."

We urge that you carefully consider this resolution as decisions are made to reuse these public buildings.

Cable TV

To the Editor:

Currently the mayor is considering the applications of various parties who have requested a license to serve the city of Newton with cable television.

While I do not favor any applicant, I do note that there is application from local business as well as nationally based companies for this license. One of the companies appears to be accusing other companies of attempting to bribe the city with gifts of money and service in order to obtain this license.

I suggest it would be more in order to attack these companies on their lack of ability to serve the city rather than their ability to provide substantial benefit to the city. I also suggest that companies requesting this license provide evidence that they will, in fact, be the best licensee if granted the license.

This type of decision probably puts the mayor under closer scrutiny than does the average city decision. I am confident that the mayor will make his decision based on what is best for the city.

Deathtrap corner

To the Editor:

Last week at about 8 p.m. I was crossing Walnut Street after shopping at the Star Market. As usual, I looked both ways on Walnut Street before crossing.

I was barely half way across when a car came speeding over the bridge. The car never slowed down. Traffic was now coming to the right on Walnut also.

I froze; not knowing what to do. The driver, a young lady, swerved to my right and continued on her way.

A man in a car behind her slowed down and said to me, "Lady, you ought to look where you're going. You almost got killed!"

I said, "I was right in the middle of the street. Where could I go?"

I went home badly shaken up. I don't know why the city can't put up a sign at the corner of Washington and Walnut (bridge side) warning drivers a crosswalk is ahead. The crosswalk is barely visible and needs repainting. Many elderly have to cross in this area and some even put their canes in the air, forcing drivers to slow down.

Must we have a death before something is done at this "deathtrap corner?"

Plea from taxpayer

To the Editor:

Recently, Chief of Police William Quinn appeared before the aldermanic Public Facilities Committee with plans for a three-story, 6556-square foot, multimillion addition to the present police headquarters.

Without passing on the merits of the proposal, here is a desperate plea from the financially crushed taxpayers of the city: If this project is approved by the Board of Aldermen, let us first, in heaven's name, search for the most skilled and trustworthy consultants, architects and builders. Why? Consider, for example, the monstrous "Bastile," the pride of the Garden City, the Newton North High School.

It wasn't long after this architectural folly blossomed that a huge lawsuit (which apparently is expediently designed to go on for generations) had to be initiated due to basic flaws and failures, prominent among which was the heating and ventilating system, designed, some say, by the makers of the famous "Tinker Toy."

To paraphrase the announcment for a well-known TV soap opera, "As the sands in the hourglass so are the tax dollars of the citizens of Newton."

History of Weeks

To the Editor:

To commemorate the 50 years of Weeks Junior High, the Weeks Student Government plans to publish a scrapbook on the history of Weeks.

We would like all former students, teachers or friends of Weeks Junior High for their help in compiling this scrapbook.

We are looking for any helpful information such as pictures of the school or students in the past 50 years, old copies of rules and regulations, any notable stories or other memorabilia.

Because Weeks is closing next year we would like to leave a remembrance of it behind. We are especially looking for any earlier information in the 1930s and 40s.

This information should be sent to The Student Government, 7 Hereward Road, Newton Centre, Ma. 02159

Thank you for your help and consideration.

Land Use Committee

To the Editor:

A group supporting the acquisition of the Commonwealth Golf Course by the city attended a meeting at City Hall recently.

I presented a petition with 285 signatures, gathered in a 12-hour period to Alderman Lisle Baker, who we found to be quite gracious and knowledgeable on the subject.

We were told that since this was a Land Use Committee meeting we would not be allowed to speak or voice our support for such a move.

One remark by Alderman Cynthia Creem was "What's 285 out of 90,000?" I take this remark as insolent and reprehensible, and would like to inform her that there are 87,400 residents in our city.

I'm sure we could easily present her with 8,740 signatures, but I'm afraid we hear that that's only 1 percent of the population.

In a chicanerous move by Chairman Terry Morris, Ms. Jane Pitt, former deputy mayor, was allowed to voice her vociferous views on the subject. Our group, all third- and fourth-generation Newtonites, take this as total effrontery, as Ms. Pitt has been a taxpayer for all of six months.

After listening to remarks by the committee, I hope it is naivete and not nikilism. I now can see why politicians are rated below used-car salesmen.

Save Pomroy House

To the Editor:

The Pomroy House (built 1898) in Newton Corner may soon be sold. This is because the Newton Community Service Centers Inc. (NCSC) plan to consolidate its programs and move to the Davis School in West Newton. The Board of Aldermen is now in the process of deciding on what terms the Davis School will be sold to NCSC.

The neighbors of the Pomroy House are extremely concerned that the sale of the Davis School for a good public purpose will ignore the potentially harmful consequences to Newton Corner of the sale of the Pomroy House.

At present it is possible that the Pomroy House will be torn down and replaced by structures totally out of place in one of the best-preserved old Victorian neighborhoods of Newton.

We ask that you and your readers contact the mayor and their aldermen to ask for preservation of the Pomroy House and of the open space around it as a condition of the Davis School sale.

A step backwards

To the Editor:

Community mental health now faces its most serious challenge — not the thousands of children in need of services, not those who remain vegetating in institutions, not even those blessed with both mental illness and mental retardation — but rather our enlightened politicians.

The House Ways and Means Committee recommended drastic cuts in the community budget and proposed funding for the Department of Mental Health.

Perhaps House Ways and Means believes financial problems exist because of the Department of Mental Health and its system of management. But, should ex-patients living in the community and those to be released pay the price?

Many people now living in the community will return to institutional life. Community programs, developed over the years and operated on shoestring budgets, will close or significantly reduce services. Programs in the planning stages will never open. Deinstitutionalization will become a part of history, rather than the current trend.

We can now limit the care to the mentally ill to institutions. We need not concern ourselves with those "misfits" of society. They will not live next door to us. They will not expect anything from the community. They will be clothed, sheltered, and fed. Who can ask for more?

Massachusetts once again plans to take "One Small Step for Man, One Giant Leap Mankind"...BACKWARDS!

Carr School reunion

To the Editor:

The Carr School faculty, past and present will have a gala reunion at the Woodland Golf Club on May 1, 1980. The Carr School is closing in June.

More than 100 invitations have been sent to teachers, principals and others who have served the school since 1935, when it first opened its doors.

Any person who has been active at the school during that period and has not received an invitation, please call the school at 527-5390.

Use of surplus schools

(The following is an open letter to Mayor Theodore Mann from the League of Women Voters of Newton.) Dear Mayor Mann:

The League of Women Voters of Newton is pleased with the results of the Joint Planning Advisory Groups and the recommendations of the Board of Aldermen with regard to reuse of Weeks, Murray Road, Carr, and Davis schools.

The conversion of the Weeks and Murray Road schools to housing should create some badly needed and affordable rental units for both families and elderly people. It is of utmost importance that the prices of these buildings allow affordable rental housing and complete conversion of the building.

The Weeks building will require some demolition as well as extensive reconstruction. Heating costs for the converted building should be a prime consideration and every should be made to use as much of the building as possible. The inclusion of family units should offer some flexibility in design, and if the extensive hallway space in this building cannot be incorporated into the living areas, perhaps much of it could be used for special services to the building's residents.

The Murray Road School should be converted, not demolished. And we see no particular virtue in maintaining the building as it is, when a small addition or modification to the outside could make it more attractive and livable. While it is important to find a developer immediately, we hope that there may be one who will build mixed-income housing on this site.

At a time when construction costs and interest rates are accelerating, the only hope of constructing affordable housing is through conversion. The federal government is resisting the raising of allowable costs on the construction and leasing of subsidized housing. This is an effective brake on government spending and the construction of new low-income units. It is therefore extremely important that, where appropriate, conversion projects be reserved for subsidized housing.

Reimbursement to Newton by the state for such projects as the purchase of open space is predicated on a demonstrated effort to increase low- and moderate-income housing within the city. Participation in the bonus funding for the Areawide Housing Opportunity Plan and other federal benefits is also conditional; Newton is expected to add 28 new family units and 47 new elderly units in the next three years. These benefits will be in jeopardy if the delay, failure and hiatus of public housing projects in Newton continue. Money from the Community Development Block Grants could be used to decrease the cost of acquiring Weeks and possibly Murray Road for subsidized housing and it could in addition assist in the planning for the conversion of the Davis School.

Reuse of the Davis school is probably the most complex planning problem — a need to balance parking, economic considerations and a variety of options for specific services. While we think that the Community Service Center will be an excellent landlord, there are a great many decisions yet to be made which could benefit from the advice of our Planning Department and input from the neighborhood's Community Development advisory committee. We also suggest that the tenants of the building be selected with regard to the services they offer; it may be unwise to eliminate tenants who could pay a market rent.

The more complete and expensive the conversion, the more economical and energy efficient the building will be. Both a low price and good planning are necessary to achieve the most efficient and appropriate reuse for this building.

Newton should be very proud of how it has handled the problem of declining enrollment. As you are aware, the process will be used as a model for other municipalities. Thus far, it has been fair, open and reasonably thorough. We feel that the selection of a specific plan or developer for each of these schools should be subject to public review. We suggest that a hearing be held for making public the recommendations of the Planning Department and obtaining public comment before you make your final decision.

Anita Capeless,
president

Keeping track

To the Editor:

It was a little disturbing to read this week that there are thousands of dollars in checks sitting around in the District Court gathering dust because of a work backlog.

Just as the mayor is pushing his new budget through the Board of Aldermen claiming every penny is needed, we see that checks can sit around for weeks (even months) before somebody gets around to putting them into the city's account.

With interest rates so high, its criminal to allow this money to sit around. The lost revenue from this one practice could easily exceed $20,000 every year.

It appears to me that a system could be devised whereby each day's mail could be checked for payments. A quick check could be made to see if the proper fine had been paid. If so, the check could be deposited that same day and the rest of the bookkeeping could be accomplished when time permits.

It is little things like this that can save the city thousands of our dollars. Don't ask me for increased taxes before you (the city government) have tried to cut all waste.

NOTICE OF SUBMITTAL
of a
THE CITY OF NEWTON'S COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PLAN (6) FOR REVIEW BY THE DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT
April 16, 1980

Under Federal Law, when a City's Community Developmen Application is submitted to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the City must also notify the public that copies are available for review. Any person may file objections to the application with HUD at the address below. However, under Federal regulations, the grounds for objections which can be filed with HUD are limited to the following:

1. The application is inconsistent with generally available facts and data, or
2. The activities to be undertaken are plainly inappropriate to meeting the needs and objectives identified by the City, or
3. The application proposes avtivities which are otherwise ineligible under Federal Law (24 CFR 570).

Objections should be filed at the Department of Housing and Urban Development Area Office, 15 New Chardon Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02114, no later than MAY 16, 1980.

The newton Department of Planning and Development is available for assistance to those who wish to object to the City's Community development Application. Copies of the Newton Community Development Application and the Grantee Performance Report for the past year are available upon request from the Newton Department of Planning and Development (call Ms. Nancy Pollack, 552-7135). In addition, materials pertaining to the Application and apropriate Federal Regulations are available for public inspection within the office of the Department of Planning and Development, City Hall, 1000 Commonwealth Avenue, Newton Centre, Massachusetts, 02159.

ranges trips that are not package tours, but which are not on the government level either.

Weisbrod and nine of his students paid $1,200 each to visit Russia at a time when most American tourists were packing up and leaving.

The group left Boston on Feb. 15 and flew to Helsinki, Finland, where they took an overnight train to Moscow.

"Our excitement wasn't real until we got to the Finnish border. It was midnight and we had stopped for customs. The whole place was covered with snow, so we all had a royal snowball fight. It was spontaneous and exhilarating, the sense of just getting soaked in all that snow," said Weisbrod. "And since we had seen so little of it in our own winter, it was even more fun."

Once in Russia, the group of young Americans quickly learned what was first and foremost in the minds of most Russians: the Olympics. The American hockey team win caused excitement in both groups, although Weisbrod recalled that the Finns were "terribly rude and obnoxious" when the American team won the gold medal.

"People we met went out of their way to tell us that their athletes had nothing but praise for the way they were treated in Lake Placid," he said. "We also all observed a preoccupation with the Moscow Olympics. It is the biggest thing on their minds right now.'"

"They are all working very hard to get ready for this summer with calender countdowns and all. Having experienced the kind of reaction we saw after the hockey games makes a cancellation (of the American team's participation) very hard to swallow, and it would be a tremendous blow to their pride. We have shown that we are able to focus on things other than animosity, on more healthful things '" said Weisbrod.

If the Americans were impressed with the way the Russians treated them, the Russians were equally impressed with the American behavior.

Not content to go the typical tourist route, the group went out of its way to experience things in the Soviet Union on its own.

Public transportation, which is inexpensive and efficient in Russia , was used by the students for their excursions around Leningrad, and they also rented skis and ice skates, and visited a public bath house, much to the surprise and delight of their Russian friends.

Soviet youths the students met in the town of Novgorod invited the Americans to parties where they got a taste of Russian culture without any interruptions from guides or other adults.

"The poise and sophistication exhibited by the students was admired by the Russians, who expected them to be loud and rambunctious," said Weisbrod.

"They were also impressed with the kids' willingness to try to do what the Russians wanted to do. The kids came back knowing much more about the Soviet system. They got the real dope, and now when they read about Russia in class, they can relate much better to what they are reading'" he continued.

Like all vacations, this one had to come to an end, and on Feb. 29 the group left Russia and returned home to Boston. The students' disappointment at having to leave was like the usual let-down that comes at the end of any trip, but they also missed the sense of importance they had had while in Russia.

"We were all treated very nicely," said Weisbrod. "Everyone could recognize that they were providing a service to the Russian people. It was a let-down to come back because everything seemed to make sense again. It was exciting to be in a place that didn't make sense.

"The trip was very valuable to the students because they have learned how to inquire about things and how to compare. They learned to be convinced of things after inquiring on their own. We were greatful to be back, though, and we're glad that the end is here and not at the other end."

and provides activities for the young, middle-aged and elderly. It also runs teen centers in several villages of the city and operates the Job Bank to provide jobs for young people.

The Finance Committee is being asked to sell the Davis School at far below market price, in the opinion of many aldermen, who also feel the NCSC is a worthy recipient of the city's beneficence in this instance.

The Finance Committee is operating almost completely in the dark, however, about what constitutes market price, since no other organization or developer has made any proposal for the purchase of the school, and no other information has been obtained on the potential sales price of the building.

Homsy said that one CTPS suggestion, placing further land development in the corridor under site review, could allow both municipalities the option of controlling building set-backs, but more stringent procedures are still necessary.

Homsy said that Needham is currently considering a zoning by-law which would require businesses to provide off-street parking in all areas of town. In addition, Homsy said, the town's planners will address further stringent procedures within the next year which would require special permits for some developments.

"I think this is a step in the right direction," he said.

Residents of Newton were equally concerned about traffic backups in their municipality, and questioned whether expanded transit services could be provided to help alleviate traffic pile-ups.

MBTA spokeswoman Leora Jaeger said that the T's tightened budget has placed a strain on the establishment of any additional service but she noted that transit officials are currently working to increase interest in the bus to industrial park areas.

One Newton resident came up with a seemingly better idea however, when she noted that a resident group is currently soliciting funds from local businesses to establish a bus service which would run exclusively through the corridor.

Another audience member came up with an alternative to all options however.

"Essentially, if we declare Highland Avenue from Route 128 to Needham Street a public parking lot, we'd solve the problem," he said.

they must locate their own apartments, and the landlords are not bound for more than the normal term of a lease, usually one or two years.

President Jefferson's move to recommit the whole proposal to work out a way to have all low-income housing on the site was defeated 21-2, with Jefferson and Bauckman in favor.

Jefferson asked that the developer be allowed to build 70 units and incorporate all the low-income units into the proposal.

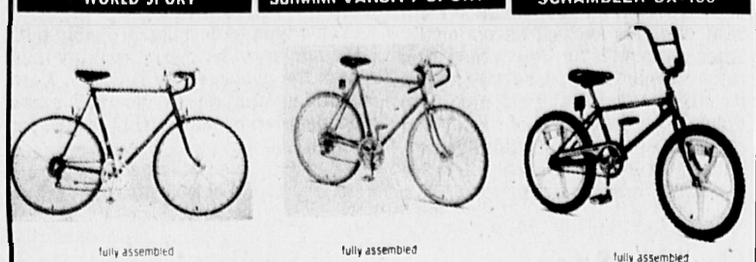

"It has been a longstanding philosophy of mine," Jefferson said, "that all the low-income housing should be on the site. We have two developments here in the city (The Hamlet in Newton Centre and New Falls in Lower Falls) with mixed-income people that prove they can live together easily."

The story of 'Sheltered Lives'

On Friday April 25, the Madrona Publishers, Inc. of Seattle, Washington will publish Mary Hazzard (Swiggart's) second novel, "Sheltered Lives," for which Ms. Swiggart, a Waban resident, already has received a fellowship in fiction from the Massachusetts Arts and Humanities Foundation.

On Sunday, April 27 at 9:30 a.m., Ms. Swiggart will give a reading and conduct a discussion at the weekly forum held in the Alliance Room at The First Unitarian Society in West Newton Square. At 11:30 a.m., following the Sunday morning service, the Women's Alliance, of which Ms. Swiggart is a member, will hold a reception for her at the church and she will autograph copies of her new book, which will be available for purchase.

According to her publisher, Dan Levant, Mary Hazzard (Swiggart) "presents a moving portrait of an honest, sane, patient, intelligent woman who will endure."

She has received high praise from advance reader Gail Godwin who says of "Sheltered Lives" - "an honest, elegant, individualistic narrative about a woman making an effort to re-evaluate herself in terms of her marriage, her childhold influences, her relations to a new environment and a changing world. If I were an 'interested observer from the future,' I think I would have understood more about what was going on in the 1960s and '70s from this novel than from a variety of other so-called feminist blockbusters."

Ms. Swiggart began to write plays at the age of 11 and, with other children in her family, gave public productions for the next seven years. Two of her later plays were produced at Skidmore College, where she majored in drama. She went on to study playwriting for two years at Yale School of Drama and also has acted in summer stock and at the Cleveland Play House.

The story Mary Hazzard tells in her new novel is a quiet one, cool and yet intensely personal, about a woman finding the need and the will to build a new life at a time in which the old rules don't work. Told in an elegantly-crafted journal form, it takes Anne, its protagonist, from the frantically political New England college world in 1969 of her professor husband, to the mildly exotic world of the Taos artists' colony.

Anne was brought up in a society of order and at least superficial harmony: her father a Unitarian minister, her husband to follow. The sister, once beautiful and an aspiring actress, is married to a painter and living what Anne assumes to be a gently and comfortably Bohemian life.

As the book unfolds, we learn that Anne's marriage may be breaking up, that her sister's marriage is unhappy, that the propriety she has counted on is neither respected nor valued, that she and those around her do not share a set of absolute, dependable standards. People are free to be rude to each other, to lie and cheat, even to kill.

The story is told with a clarity that never lets the reader forget Anne's tidy background. She "expected life to be like a Katherine Mansfield story," we are told. "Polished tabletops and no loud voices,"— hardly preparation for her husband's anxious involvement with his students in the peace movement, her sister's adulteries, the cynical, unproductive poet, the too-natural young mother, the amorous painter-pharmacist she becomes involved with. "The books we read were nearly all English and at least fifty years old: E. Nesbit, Conan Doyle, Kipling, Lewis Carroll."

In Taos, Anne buys a run-down adobe house and energetically undertakes the physical labor of rebuilding it. The house becomes a new shelter for herself and her sister, but one far less finished than the neat New England homes of her memory.

Although not always correct in her understanding of people, Anne is honest, likable, and able to survive; gentle, but not foolish, not unworldly.

Ms. Swiggart's first noval; "Close His Eyes," a Harper novel published under the pseudonym of Olivia Dwight, received a scroll from the Mystery Writers of America as one of the best first mysteries of the year. In addition, her poems have been published in "Dark Horse" and "Grit".

Bill calls for insurance claims offices in state

BOSTON — State Rep. David B. Cohen (D-Newton) has filed legislation to require all insurance companies doing business in Massachusetts to establish claims settlement offices within the state.

"The existence of a mechanism to promote the prompt and equitable settlement of claims is an essential part of any scheme of regulation of the insurance industry," Cohen said. "This fact is recognized in chapter 176D of the general law which requires insurers to reply promptly to all implement procedures for claim investigation, and maintain a comprehensive system for handling claims."

The flaw in this arrangement, according to Cohen, is that insurance companies may be licensed to do business in Massachusetts without having a claims settlement office within the state. The lack of a conveniently located office makes it practically impossible to receive prompt action on a claim, he said.

"Instead of making a local call the insured must make an expensive long distance call or correspond by mail, so that an inquiry which might have been resolved in a matter of minutes can drag on for a week or more. Often a face to face meeting is necessary to finally resolve a claim. That is not possible if the claim office is in Omaha," Cohen said.

Litigation can be expensive and, given the present case backlog, quite lengthy, Cohen pointed out, and some claims are too small to warrant pursuing.

"It makes much more sense to protect the consumer by requiring ahead of time that an insurer have an adequately staffed claims office in Massachusetts."

Parade set for May 25

NEWTON — The annual Memorial Day parade and observanceces will be held Sunday, May 25, under the joint sponsorship of the city of Newton and the Nonantum Christmas Party Association.

Civic and youth organizations in the city of Newton that would like to participate in this annual parade are asked to contact Carleton P. Merrill, Department of Veterans' Services, 552-7025.

Memorial observances will be held on Sunday morning at various veterans' memorials. The parade, followed by the observance at the Veterans Lot in Newton Cemetery, will start at 1 p.m.

All parade units will form at the Kings Department store parking lot, Watertown Street, Newton, at 12:15 p.m.

The parade route will see all units marching along Watertown Street to Walnut Street and then south on Walnut Street to the Newton Cemetery. Stops will be made along the line of march for memorial services at the Coletti-Magni Park, Nonantum and at the Newton Memorial to Citizens of all Wars, corner of Walnut St. and Commonwealth Ave., Newton Centre.

The Newton Community Memorial Day Parade Committee, made up of members of both sponsors as well as from veterans organization, has been meeting in planning sessions since last November.

Exchange students from the French town of Grasse visited City Hall recently to talk with Mayor Mann and pose for a few pictures. The students, who are at Newton South, talked with the mayor about the history of Newton, and about schools and careers in France. (Photo by Stephanie Gibian)

Tour of open spaces to be given April 27

NEWTON — A free bus tour of park, conservation, and recreation lands in Newton will be conducted Sunday, April 27. This is an excellent opportunity to obtain an overview of Newton's public open spaces.

Guides knowledgeable in the history, current status, and physical characteristics of the land will give brief descriptions and answer questions. There will be an opportunity for a short walk at some of the areas. A map of the areas and their location in Newton will be distributed.

The tour will take place rain or shine; seats on the bus will be available on a first-come, first-served basis. The bus will leave from in front of City Hall at 1:30 p.m. and return at approximately 4 p.m. The tour is co-sponsored by the Conservation Commission, Newton Conservators, and the Recreation Department.

Areas to be visited are Cold Spring Park, Ordway Park, Edmands Park, Chestnut Hill Country Club, Webster Conservation Area and Houghton Garden, Kennard Conservation Area, Oak Hill (with a view of the Blue Hills and the Charles River Valley), Nahanton Woods, Novitiate, Winchester Street Recreation Area (Infirmary Land), Charles River Pathway (Echo Bridge, Quinobequin MDC Reservation, Cordingly Dam, Leo J. Martin Memorial Golf Course, MDC Reservation at Village Road, Bemis Rolling Stone Dam), Norumbega Park, Auburndale Park and Playground, and Dolan Pond Conservation Area.

Baloon for a book at libraries

NEWTON — This week is National Library Week and McDonald's Restaurants in Newton will be sponsoring the program, "Balloons for a Book." Each child who takes out a book with his or her library card will receive one free balloon.

Get your free balloon at the Newton Free Library Children's Department at the following locations: Newtonville Branch, 345 Walnut St., Tuesday, April 15, from

; Waban Branch, 1606 Beacon St., Wednesday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. April 16, from 1 to 6 p.m.; and the Junior Library, 126 Vernon St., Thursday, April 17, from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Lincoln Day dinner tickets still available

NEWTON — Tickets are still available for the 20th annual Lincoln Day dinner and dance of the Newton Republican Club Tuesday, April 22, starting at 6:30 p.m. at the American Legion Post 440, 295 California St., Nonantum.

The featured speaker is Guy Vander Jagt, U.S. representative from Michigan and chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee.

The event begins with a social hour at 6:30 p.m., with dinner at 7:30.

Reservations must be made in advance, accompanied by payment for the tickets, which are $12.50 each. Tickets are available from Robert L. Tennant, president of the Republican Club, 969-9840; Charlotte Thornbury, 72 Adella Ave., West Newton, 332-2339; and Eveleen Budge, 31 Ithaca Circle, 244-2072.

'Religion and Music' is theme of Mayor's Prayer Breakfast

NEWTON — "Religion and Music" will be the theme of the sixth Annual Mayor's Community Prayer Breakfast to be held at Boston College on Friday morning, April 25, at 7:45 a.m. The breakfast, which is open to the public, will be held in McElroy Commons, Beacon Street and College Road.

The purpose of the breakfast is to unite through prayer the many diverse citizens in Newton and in similar to events held in other communities throughout the country. Spiritual readings will be presented, as well as inspirational messages and music.

Joseph Silverstein of Newton, assistant conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra since 1970, will present a prologue dealing with the close relationship of music and worship, followed by a presentation by the Newton Choral Society.

Silverstein, a native of Detroit, has performed with the Houston, Denver and Philadelphia symphony orchestras. He was one of the winners at the Belgian International Competition in 1959 and won the Walter Naumberg Award in 1960. He is chairman of the faculty at the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood and assistant professor at Boston University, where he has also led the Boston University Symphony to a silver medal in the Herbert von Karajan Youth Competition in Berlin.

The All-City Elementary School Chorus will also perform. In its repertoire is "It's a Small World" sung in Chinese. This segment will be videotaped and taken to Peking. Newton and Peking schools have a cultural exchange relationship.

Of special significance will be the award of the City of Newton Centennial Medallion to Maestro Seiji Ozawa, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Born in Shenyang, China, in 1935 to Japanese parents, Ozawa studied both Western and Oriental music as a child, and as a youth won first prize at the International Competition of Orchestra Conductors in 1959 at Besancon, France. The following summer he was invited to Tanglewood, where he won the Koussevitsky prize for conducting.

After accompanying the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and its conductor, Leonard Bernstein, on their tour of Japan in 1961 he was made an assistant conductor in the 1961-62 season. In 1968 he was named conductor and music director of the San Francisco Symphony, which position he held until 1976.

In 1973 he was named music director of the Boston Symphony and has had an outstanding period in Boston, including orchestra tours of Japan and China, where he established a significant musical and cultural exchange. During this time the orchestra has made several outstanding prize recordings and he has won, among other awards, an Emmy Award for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's "Evening at Symphony" television series. He and his family have alternately resided in Newton and Japan.

Committee members include representatives of the Newton clergy and laity, the City of Newton and its employees, local service organizations, the Newton Symphony Orchestra, the Newton Arts Center, and the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce, through which reservations can be made during normal business hours (244-5300).

Continue case

NEWTON — A 17-year-old West Newton youth was found guilty in Newton District Court Monday of burglary and the case was continued until April 29.

John Cedrone, 17, of 315 Craft St. admitted sufficient facts on the burglary charge Monday.

Officer Francis Fall testified that Cedrone was arrested after a car in which he was a passenger was stopped for going through a red light.

Fall said that Cedrone, after being advised of his rights against self-incrimination, admitted stealing a bag of silverware which was found on the back seat of the car. The silverware was taken from an Eddy street home Feb. 28.

Mann opposes fare hike by 'T'

NEWTON — Mayor Theodore Mann said last week he is opposed to the MBTA Task Force proposal for a 25-cent fare increase if services to riders are not also improved.

"I am very critical of increasing the cost to the consumer without an outside relative increase in services. The MBTA has to be committed to improving the quality of the service, and to make it premium service," said Mann, who wrote a letter to Gov. Edward King expressing his disapproval of the task force's recommendation.

"Many of us (in Newton and Brookline) already share a disproportionate amount of U the cost. We are paying too much and getting too little in return," he said.

The task force also proposed a reorganization of the "T" structure. The reorganization would include a strengthening of the board of directors, the division of Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Robert Foster's job into two positions, and a weakening of the advisory board which represents the MBTA district's 79 cities and towns.

The advisory board presently has control over the budget, but the proposal would hand this control over to the board of directors, as well as control over the selection of the chief executive officer who is now chosen by the governor.

"The governor, by appointment of the director, really controls the MBTA," said Mann. "That's why I also believe that the state should assume the full cost of operation of the MBTA."

Presently, the state assumes the cost of half of the MBTA's deficit.

Mann said that he is not in favor of any change that would not basically benefit the people who ride the "T."

"As long as the management positions are diluted, there cannot be effective management of the system," he said, referring to the split of the positions of chairman and chief executive officer. .

Mann said that three factors must be present in order for the "T" to run successfully: the state should assume the entire cost of the system, the Legislature should take off the constraints they placed on the management of the "T" and "give them back the tools with which to work," and the governor should assume the responsibility of meeting with the unions and getting them to provide needed services at a reasonable cost.

Mann said that he is not opposed to the reorganization "as long as they pay for it and don't charge it back to the cities and towns."

"The advisory board has no real control anyway, just paper control," he said.

Along with the fare increase would come taxes on gasoline and toll roads leading into the 79 cities and towns served by the transit systen' according to the task force report.

"If efficiency can be obtained and if increased ridership is a possibility, then taxes may be the only option, outside of user payment," he said. "I am more predisposed to user payment, but not for inferior service. We should receive the value of a dollar when we pay a dollar."

Police Report

Receiving stolen property charged

NEWTON — A Watertown man and a 16-year-old Newton juvenile were arrested on charges of receiving stolen property Saturday after stolen furs and credit cards were allegedly found in a van parked on Centre Street.

Police say Christopher MacDonald, 21, of Watertown and the 16-year-old were both charged with receiving stolen property and the juvenile was also charged with possession of cocaine.

A resident of Shady Hill Road heard a crash downstairs around 12:20 a.m. Tuesday morning and went downstairs to find a pane of glass broken in the rear door, which was open. The intruder was apparently scared off.

Another resident was awakened about 40 minutes later on Claremont Street, also by breaking glass. Police say a dining room window was broken and five pieces of silverware were taken, apparently by reaching through the window.

Silver and jewelry were taken from an Acacia Avenue home Tuesday. Entrance to the house was gained by breaking glass in a door.

Burglars broke a window in a Lakeview Avenue home between 1 and 4:30 p.m. Tuesday and reached in and cranked the window open. Taken were jewelry and silver dollars.

A Swallow Drive home was ransacked Tuesday and silver and jewelry were stolen. Police say entrance was gained between 7:45 a.m. and 5 p.m. by breaking glass in two doors, one to the porch and the other to the house.

A color television set, jewelry and an undisclosed amount of cash were stolen from a Garland Street home which was entered in an unknown manner sometime Tuesday.

Lock and chain bolts were forced on the front door of a Jefferson Street home Monday and silver jewelry and coins were stolen.

A Gardner Street home was entered in an unknown manner sometime Monday and jewelry was stolen.

Three stereo systems and a television set were reported stolen from Mt. Ida Junior College since April 4.

Silverware was stolen from a Larch Road home between 7:45 a.m. and 8:45 p.m. Monday. Police say the house was entered by breaking glass in a rear door.

An Otis Street home was burglarized Saturday by thieves who forced a rear door with a bar. Taken were Chinese ivory carvings, silver figurines, cameras and silverware.

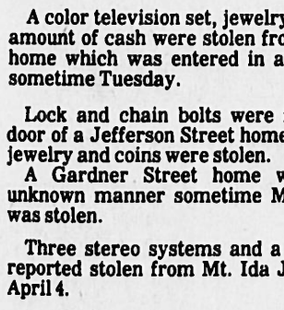

Silver serving pieces and jewelry were stolen from a Sagamore Road home Saturday night between 6 p.m. and midnight. Police say entrance was gained through a window.

Another burglary was reported at a nearby house around the same time. Glass was broken in a rear door and silverware, china, jewelry and figurines were stolen.

An Arnold Road home was burglarized between 11 a.m. and noon Friday and the dining room was ransacked. Taken was silverware.

The Auburn Cleaners was burglarized Wednesday night or Thursday morning and $25 in cash was stolen. Police say entrance was gained through an unlocked window.

Housing rights for handicapped to become law soon, Drinan says

BROOKLINE — Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-MA) last week predicted that his bill to prohibit discrimination in housing on the basis of handicap will soon be made law by the Congress and the President "because the public overwhelmingly supports such a law."

"Housing is a basic right, a right which has too often been denied to those with disabilities," Drinan told the Massachusetts Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities. "Our society can no longer tolerate this type of discrimination."

Drinan said his bill, The Fair Housing Act Amendments of 1980, has already passed the House Judiciary Committee and should be voted on in the full House in a few weeks. The bill would for the first time extend protection against housing discrimination to the disabled, under the provisions of the Civil Rights Act.

Drinan told the group that 72 percent of the 8000 persons responding to his recent district-wide questionnaire favored strengthening our civil rights laws to prohibit discrimination in housing against handicapped persons, just as civil rights laws now prohibit discrimination based on race, sex, religion and national origin.

Drinan said he hoped this measure would serve as a catalyst to bring about equal protection for the disabled in all aspects of life. including employment.

IN FOCUS

...OUT OF EVERY SERVICE DOLLAR IS LOST TO AUTO REPAIR RIP–OFF

Undercover investigators for the Department of Transportation found in a survey of 62 automobile repair shops in seven cities that 53 cents of each service dollar was wasted on needless repair. There were three basic test situations. In , one, a single spark plug in an engine was caused to malfunction. In another, bushings were removed from a suspension sway bar. In the third, a trouble-free vehicle was taken to a repair shop with a request that the brakes be checked.

In 89 percent of the cases, engine repairs were done incorrectly. In the suspension sway bar cases, 44 percent of the repairs were not made correctly. Regarding the trouble-free cars, in 32 percent of the cases repairs were attempted and charges levied in connection with the implied complaint.

By DOROTHY HINES
In Focus Editor

If what's under the hood of an automobile is as foreign to you as the diplomacy of Ayatollah Khomeini, and a visit to a vehicle repair shop is anticipated with the same enthusiasm as an appointment with an oral surgeon, you are not alone.

According to statistics of a recent Roper Poll, 69 percent of consumers feel uneasy about bringing their automobiles to a repair shop and expect to be cheated.

And complaints concerning faulty repairs are the number one source of consumer frustration in Massachusetts.

According to Rep. Gregory Sullivan (D., Norwood-Westwood), 50,000 auto repair complaints, alone, were filed with the attorney general's office and the Boston Consumer Council last year. And during. his six years on Beacon Hill, Sullivan has had more constituents approach him with this type of problem than any other.

With refreshing frankness the young legislator quips, "if you have to go to a politician to get a car properly repaired, we're all in trouble."

When the Norwoodite has attempted to follow up on such complaints, himself, he's found the "process of recourse very poor."

It's not lack of laws on the books, but public awareness and the enforcement processthat is weak.

And the Norwood representative is not indicting the repair industry as a whole, only incompetent members. He's aware that unsatisfactory work is as often due to lack of ability as to fraud.

To turn the unsatisfactory situation around, Sullivan is co-sponsoring with several other legislators, a "Registration of Automotive Repair Shops" bill which would give added clout to existing laws.

The registration bill, a result of redefining past proposals, will, says the Norwoodite, "put real teeth into repair protection laws."

As the young rep sits in his compact, State House headquarters recently and discusses with aide, Rosalind Levine, the prospects of passage, his mood is optimistic.

He anticipates the setting up of a bureau of auto repair with a staff of approximately 40, including professional mechanic-investigators. The bureau would be funded by a registration fee from individual repair shops to operate without cost to the citizenry.

The staff, particularly the mechanics, would have the expertise to mediate with a shop owner for a dissatisfied customer, and the existence of a bureau with suspension powers would act as a deterrent to unscrupulous behavior.

Sullivan, who has a master's in public administration from Harvard, likes to talk about the fine tuning and compromises which go into effective lawmaking.

He begins to describe Chapter 93A law, already on the books, which mandates that auto repair shops provide consumers with written estimates, and requires customer authorization for additional charges over $10. He mentions other specifics of the chapter 93 consumer act which spell out the necessity of redoing unsatisfactory work at no charge and a time limit for execution of repairs.

A consumer armed with this checklist should be in good shape but past performance has sometimes proven otherwise, reports Sullivan.

The better informed a consumer is, the better off he will be; but when it comes down to litigation . the track record has not been good.

The attorney general's office is confined, by limitations of staff,to prosecuting only the most flagrant violations.

When the consumer sues in small claims court results are at best mixed. The complainant must first pay the mechanic , even if unsatisfied with the repairs, before going to court. Otherwise, the shop can keep the auto under a workman's lien.

In court, the complainant and even the judge operate under the hardship of lack of expertise in comparison to the mechanic who can use complicated phrases and terms.

With this common type of scenario, a "Registration of Automotive Repair Shops" bill is a necessity, claims Sullivan.

And the piece de resistance in the auto bureau's bag of tricks would be the "undercover automobile," which could be used to test the honesty and competence of shops with a string of consumer complaints.

The dummy car would be thoroughly checked out by a qualified vocational school and then presented to a suspected offender for "whatever repairs are needed."

If unnecessary work is performed, charges trumped up, or fraud perpetrated, in the legislator's words, the state inspector would have the offender "down cold."

Auto repair registration and undercover checkups have been utilized in California with good results, says Sullivan.

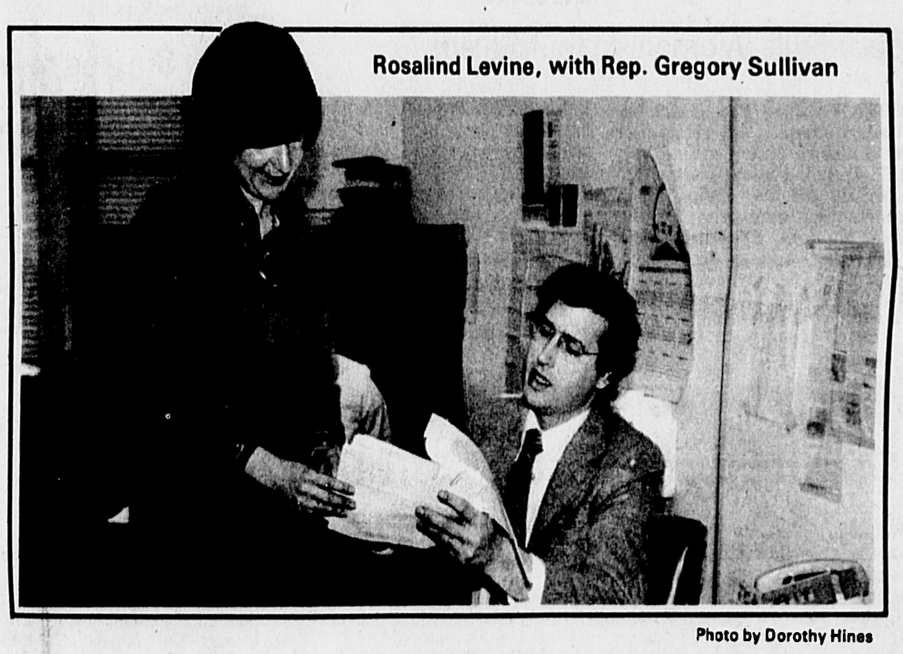

His high hopes for the registration bill are buoyed by widespread support from both elected officials and a colition of consumer groups.

And the Committee on Auto Repair, also, took testimony from industry representatives. George Florentine, of the Independent Garage Owners Association gave helpful information during hearings on the proposed registration bill.

If all goes well, the enforcement legislation could be implemented by 1981. In the meantime, Sullivan suggests that consumers arm themselves with as much information as possible.

Spring automobile inspection is now underway and will check lights, emergency brake, muffler, front wheel alignment, windshield and wipers, horn, directionals, tires and the exhaust sustem. If repairs are necessary, most consumer experts recommend obtaining several estimates of the costs.

From the Boston Consumer Council, an individual may obtain an "Auto Repair Checklist," and "Automobile Owner's Survival Manual." BCC is funded by the City of Boston and may be reached at 725-3320.

KITCHEN CORNER

Mushroom Sour Cream Pie is elegant for brunch, lunch or supper

A pair of mushroom 'pyes'

We've come a long way since the days of merrie England when pies were pyes, and filled with rabbit, parsley, rooks and blackbirds. Now we're apt to make pies we call "quiches," and serve them often for brunch or supper, along with such natural partners as spinach-and-mushroom salads.

But mushrooms are not only great go-alongs with quiches they're delicious right inside all sorts of pies.

Here's a festive "pye," or quiche, that would star at any brunch; Mushroom Sour Cream Pie starts with a sauteing of onions and sliced mushrooms with a filling of eggs, sour cream, salt, a sprinkling of tarragon and black pepper. Swiss cheese is shredded over the top and the pie is baked till firm. Reserved sauteed mushrooms are effectively arranged over the pie after baking.

Another winner is this real old-fashioned Mushroom Pot Pie with the traditional two crusts. It's wonderfully satisfying for Sunday supper. A thickened sauce of chicken broth and cream is added to the sauteed mushrooms and onions. Cooked, chunked chicken, parsley and paprika are stirred in and the mixture poured into the pastry-lined pan. Place a top crust over it and bake till golden.

MUSHROOM SOUR CREAM PIE

12 ounces fresh mushrooms
Pastry for 9-inch pie shell
3 tablespoons butter or margareine, divided
½ cup chopped onion
3 eggs
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon tarragon leaves, crushed
1-1/6 teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ cup shredded Swiss cheese

Preheat oven to 425 F. Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms (makes about 4 cups); set aside. Roll pastry ⅛-inch thick; fit into 9-inch pie pan; turn under and flute edge; prick with fork tines. Bake for 5 minutes; remove from oven. In a large skillet melt 1 tablespoon of the butter. Add onion; saute until tender, about 5 minutes. Remove from skillet; set aside. Melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter in skillet; add mushrooms. Saute until tender, about 5 minutes; set aside. In a medium bowl lightly beat eggs. Add sour cream, salt, tarragon and black pepper; mix well. Reserve one-third of the mushrooms; add remaining sauteed mushrooms and onion to sour cream mixture; mix well. Pour into partially baked pie shell. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake until a knife inserted into center comes out clean, 20 to 25 minutes. Heat reserved sauteed mushrooms until hot. Arrange on top of pie. Let pie stand 5 minutes before cutting.

MUSHROOM POT PIE

12 ounces fresh mushrooms
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup chopped onion
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
½ cup chicken broth or bouillon
½ cup heavy cream
2 cups cubed cooked chicken
¼ cup chopped fresh parsley
½ teaspoon paprika
Pastry for two-crust 9-inch pie

Preheat oven to 425 F. Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms (makes about 4 cups). In a large skillet melt butter. Add mushrooms and onion; saute for 5 minutes. Stir in flour, salt and black pepper; gradually blend in chicken broth and cream. Bring to a boil, cook and stir for 1 minute. Blend in chicken, parsley and paprika. Pour into a 9-inch pastry-lined pan. Place top crust over filling; turning edges under; press to seal. Cut slits on top to allow steam to escape. Place a strip of foil around edge to prevent overbrowning. Bake for 20 minutes; remove foil. Continue to bake until golden brown, about 15 minutes. Serve with a mixed green salad, if desired. CAMBRIDGE — On Thursday, April 24, at 7:30 p.m. at the Holy Trinity Armenian Apostolic Church of Greater Boston, 145 Brattle St., a requiem service will be held in observance of the Armenian Genocide of 1915. April 24 marks the 65th anniversary of the massacre of 2 million Armenians in the Ottoman Empire.

Senator Paul Tsongas will be the guest speaker. Among the guests attending will be State Rep. George Keverian, majority leader of the House of Representatives; Mayor Peter Torigian of Peabody; Major General Vahan Vartanian and Judge John Najarian of Rhode Island.

A memorial concert with the Erevan Choral Society, under the direction of the Very Reverend Father Oshagan Minassian will follow.

Reverend Father Mampre A. Kouzouian and the Parish Council extend an invitation to the community to commemorate the April 24 Martyrs' Day at Holy Trinity Church.

'Israel Reborn' is topic at Temple Shalom service

WEST NEWTON — Israel Independence Day will be celebrated at Temple Shalom of Newton at a special Friday night service on April 25. Guest speaker will be Dr. Lawrence Lowenthal, director of Zionist House, Brookline.

Dr. Lowenthal's topic, "Israel Reborn," is the view of a concerned and involved person with deep roots in both Israel and the United States. Members of the congregation and guests will have an opportunity to meet Dr. Lowenthal and ask questions during a special Oneg Shabat featuring treats from Israel.

Dr. Lowenthal received his education from Northwestern University and earned a doctorate from New York University. He spent several years in the armed forces in Israel and as a teacher at Hebrew University and Tel Aviv University. He currently resides in Brookline.

Jewish psychology topic at Temple Emanuel event

NEWTON CENTRE — Dr. Solomon Schimmel, professor of education and psychology at Hebrew College, will present a lecture on the subject "One Thousand Years of Jewish Psychology" on Tuesday, April 22, at 9 p.m. at Temple Emanuel, 385 Ward St.

The lecture, to which the public is invited, is sponsored by the Combined Adult Education Program of four Newton temples: Emanuel, Emeth, Reyim and Mishkan Tefila.

Dr. Schimmel received his B.A. from City College of New York in 1962 and his doctorate in psychology from Wayne State University in 1971 after pursuing studies in Jewish law and thought at ITRI Institute in Jerusalem and in Jewish history and Talmud at Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

He has published many articles in the fields of psychology and Judaism. His interests include the psychological dimensions of religion and moral education and the development of self-control.

Admission to Dr. Schimmel's lecture on April 22 is free for persons registered in the courses given by the Combined Adult Education program, $3 for all others.

Myerson memorial concert scheduled

MEDFORD — The Tufts Medical Student Aid Association (TMSAA) will sponsor a piano and violin concert Wednesday evening April 23, to honor the late Mildred Ann Myerson of Newton, first president of the organization.

Previously known as the Tufts Medical Faculty Wives, TMSAA was established to provide financial aid for deserving medical students who otherwise might be unable to continue their studies.

Mrs. Myerson, who died in 1978, was the wife of Paul G. Myerson, M.D., retired psychiatrist-in-chief of New England Medical Center Hospital and professor and chairman of psychiatry at Tufts University School of Medicine.

Pianist Andrew Wolf and violinist Arturo Delmoni will perform music by Mozart, Grieg, Debussy, Kreisler and Wieniawski on a program in Alumnae Lounge, Tufts University, at 8 p.m.

Wolf is a Newton resident and director of the All Newton Music School. Delmoni, a resident of New York, is a graduate of the Juilliard School of Music where he studied with Dorothy DeLay and Ivan Galamian under a Naumberg Scholarship.

Prior to the concert, a $500 award in memory of Mrs. Myerson will be made to a fourth-year medical student "who has demonstrated a highly mature and responsible attitude toward patients." The Myerson Award will be made annually from a fund established by Dr. Myerson shortly after his wife's death.

Tickets to the concert are $7.50. For reservations and further information, contact Ann E. Flax, president, Tufts Medical Student Aid Association, 32 Gate House Road, Chestnut Hill MA 02167, or telephone 731-6804.

First Aid course at Red Cross

NEWTONVILLE—The Newton branch of the West Suburban Chapter, American Red Cross will offer a multimedia Standard First Aid course this month at the Chapter House, 21 Foster St., Newtonville.

The course, designed to teach basic skills in first aid and accident prevention, will be given on Tuesdays April 22 and 29, from 6:30-10:30 p.m. Programmed workbooks, films and guided practice sessions are featured, with a $7 charge for text and supplies.

For further information and registration call 527-6000.

The new Sidney Hill Country Club, Chestnut Hill, has announced the promotion of Mrs. Dolores (Dee) Curran from assistant club manager to executive director. Before her years at Sidney Hill, Mrs. Curran was a member of the management staff at the Sheraton Tara, Framingham. She is treasurer of the Food and Beverage Executives of Greater Boston.

Nonantum hosts vacation events

NONANTUM — Two special programs for children are scheduled during Newton Public Schools' Vacation Week at the Nonantum Branch Library, 144 Bridge St.

The Nomad Troupe will perform "The Sky's the Limit," an original comedy set in the 1920's, on Wednesday, April 23, at 3:30 p.m.

Using music, mime, costume, and special effects, the troupe, directed by J.T. Turner, will make this exciting decade come alive. The new but experienced children's theater group has received an enthusiastic response wherever they perform. They recently delighted an audience at the Children's Museum.

Newton Free Library Director and Storyteller Virginia A. Tashjian will entertain listeners, young and old, with her tales, Thursday, April 24, at 3:30 p.m.

Admission is free and all are welcome.

Medical Notes

..Joan Banks of Newton Centre and June McGlaston of Auburndale, both on the staff of the Newton-Wellesley Visiting Nurse Association, have been notified that they passed the examination given by the American Nurses Associate for certification of nurse practitioners. Mrs. Banks and Mrs. McGlaston are twins.

..Dr. Thomas P.R. Hinchey of Newton, chief of neurosurgery, has been elected secretary of the medical staff of Waltham Hospital.

..Dr. Sherwood L. Gorbach of Chestnut Hill is general chairman of the 1980 Alumni Weekend of the Tufts University School of Medicine, to be held May 1-4 in Newport, R.I.

Families sought to host students

This summer, 144 teenagers from Europe, Asia, South America and Australia will be arriving in New England as participants in the Youth for Understanding high school exchange program.

These students speak English, are fully insured, have their own spending money and are eager to become American teenagers for a year.

They will live with host families and attend local high schools after receiving orientation at home and in this country. Youth for Understanding is presently seeking qualified homes in this area for the young people.

Among the incoming students will be Sabine Rietter, an 18-year-old from the Netherlands, who is an outstanding tennis player and also enjoys reading, cooking and music. She is looking forward to coming to America and wants to participate in school and community activities here.

Another student is Jan Larsson from Denmark. He is an avid soccer player and sports enthusiast and hopes to study physical education upon his return from the United States. The 16-year-old also enjoys reading, playing records and gymnastics.

These students look forward to becoming active members of their new families and past YFU host families are enthusiastic about the benefits of the experience. Ragna Spitzer of Brookline, whose family is hosting a Japanese student, said, "It's a learning and growing experience for our entire family. Seeing America through Akino's eyes has given us new insight into our culture and we are making many discoveries about Japan and the different lifestyle there. It's wonderful."

Anyone interested in hosting a student or learning more about YFU can call the regional office in Boston at 267-1141.

LaLeche meeting set

La Leche League of Massachusetts will hold its annual statewide area meeting at the Edward Bellamy School in Chicopee on Saturday, April 26.

April 16 is the deadline to register for the day-long conference, which is open to the public. Plans have been made to grant CEU credits to nurses who attend.

Expectant mothers, nursing mothers, parents of children ranging from tots to teens, and health professionals are invited to choose from more than 40 panel discussions on topics ranging from childbirth to bringing up teenagers. The program includes panels geared for nurses, mothers, fathers and single parents.

Mary White, founding mother of La Leche League International, will be among the guest speakers and will address the positive aspects of pregnancy over the age of 35. A number of films will also be shown.

Registration includes a box lunch and three panel discussions as well as two general sessions. For more information and registration forms, write to Sharyn Seasholtz, 150 Fenwick St., Framingham, Mass. 01701.

For more information about La Leche League call one of the League's hotlines: (413) 733-2253 or (617) 259-0332.

Yoga class is scheduled

Local area residents are invited to sign up for "Living Consciously," an experiential seminar on Kripalu Yoga with Yogi Amrit Desai at Camp Wingate, Yarmouth, April 18 to 20.

Kripalu Yoga "Meditation in Motion" is a unique approach to classical yoga developed specially for westerners by Yogi Desai. He has been teaching yoga in America for 20 years.

The weekend seminar conducted by Yogi Desai is designed to provide an experience on how to transform negativity into creativity, stress and tension into a positive attitude, restlessness into concentration and serenity, and imbalanced living into happiness, harmony and health.

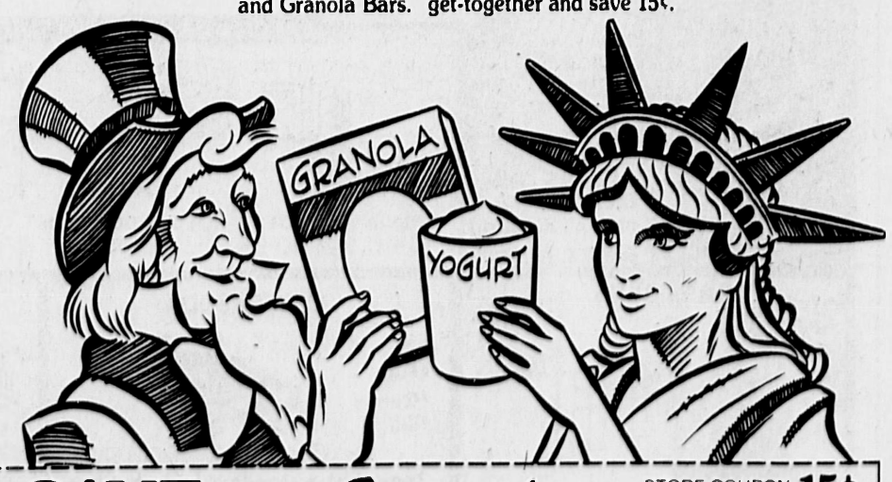

For more information, contact Kripalu Yoga Program, 5 Antonellis Circle, Newton Centre, Mass. 02159, or phone 969-8576.

Bike ride May 18 for Diabetes Association

NEWTON — Plans are now underway for the Sixth Annual Benefit Bike Ride for Diabetes, scheduled for Sunday, May 18. Routes have been mapped out in 20 cities and towns across the Commonwealth, one of which will take place in Newton, between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.

This local ride spans 11 miles, and a rider may repeat the circuit as many times as he or she wishes.

The Bike Ride for Diabetes is sponsored by the American Diabetes Association, New England Affiliate, Inc., and is the association's largest annual fund-raising event. Last year's endeavor netted nearly $40,000 for the ADA-NEA's programs of research, education, and community service and, it is hoped that the 1980 event will realize $50,000 for the current programs.

Riders who raise the most money through sponsorship will be eligible for prize awards.

Anyone interested in securing an entry form or further information about the Newton ride is asked to contact ride chairman Michael Counihan of Newton Centre at 332-2231, or may contact the ADA-NEA, 377 Elliot St., Newton Upper Falls, MA 02164, 965-2323.

Entry forms also may be obtained in stores displaying the Bike Ride for Diabetes poster.

Paul M. Ladoucer, right, assistant vice president of the Shawmut Community Bank, presents the bank's contribution to Newton-Wellesley Hospital's 1980 Development Fund to the hospital's executive director, William C. Christenson. The fund, with a goal of $350,000 contributes to the purchase of needed new or replacement equipment and necessary renovations. The bank's gift brings the total to $260,000.

Business Briefs

..Frederic L. Sternburg of 76 Garland Rd., Newton Centre, has been named "Sales Leader of the Year" for 1979 by the Boston Agency of the Paul Revere Companies located in Chestnut Hill. Sternburg was cited for his outstanding overall sales and service record in the local area during the past year. Sternburg has also been presented with a recognition certificate by company officials.

..Jeffrey Karp, Diana Y. Fai, and William C. Brosseau were recently elected to the Boston Chapter of the National Association of Accountants. The National Association of Accountants is the world's largest management accounting organization with over 90,000 members worldwide, affiliated with over 300 Chapters. The Boston Chapter is the fourth largest in the organization.

..Paul DiVecchio of Northfield, has been appointed as international corporate planner by LTX Corp. of Newton Highlands. DiVecchio will be the liaison between LTX's Newton headquarters, the London and Tokyo subsidiaries, and the worldwide sales representative network.

..Ronald T. Swanick of Ashland has been appointed quality control manager of LTX Corp. LTX is a manufacturer of automated test equipment for the automotive, telecommunications, consumer electronics, and industrial markets.

..Robert J. Ellertsen of Newton has been promoted to assistant executive director of general administration and finance at the Kennedy Memorial Hospital for Children, Brighton. Ellertsen joined the hospital in 1976 as fiscal director and in 1978 was promoted to assistant executive director (fiscal affairs). Ellertsen now assumes responsibility for personnel, inservice education, and the hospital's general service departments as well.

CPR recertification program is offered

BROOKLINE — CPR instructor-trainers due for recertification are encouraged to attend a special program to be held at the American Heart Association's headquarters in Brookline on Wednesday, April 30, from 9 to 10 p.m. The office is located at 112 Cypress St., Brookline.

The program is open to certified CPR instructor-trainers who have a current instructor-trainer certificate and who have taught two courses at the instructor level and two courses at the basic life support level. A registration fee of $10 will cover the costs of materials, mailings and the recertification session.

Instructor-trainers are a vital link in the American Heart Association's CPR network of basic training in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) in the Greater Boston area. The development of new CPR techniques and standards is a significant part of the association's program to reduce premature death from cardiovascular disease. As part of this process, the Heart Association cultivates community resources for training and acts as a catalyst to develop an effective emergency medical services system.

For more information on the CPR recertification program, contact the American Heart Association's Greater Boston Division at 738-4920.

Estate planning seminar answers legal questions

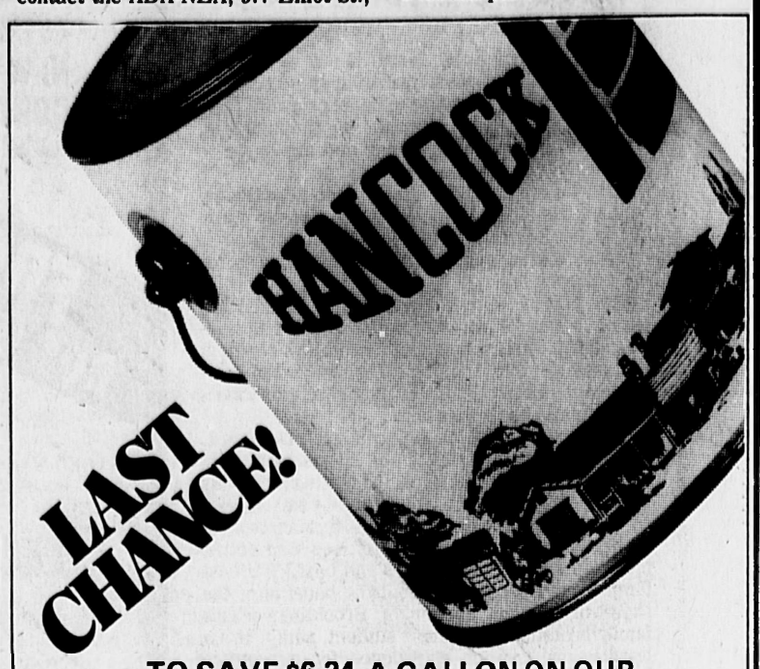

NEEDHAM — Why should I have a will? How can I prepare for estate and gift taxes? What are the benefits of establishing trusts? What assets are included in my estate?

These are some of the questions that will be answered at an estate-planning seminar at the Park Tower Motor Inn in Needham on Wednesday, April 30, from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Sponsored by the American Heart Association's Greater Boston Division, the seminar will feature specialists in law, banking, insurance and investment management who will be prepared to discuss estate planning in layman's language.

Those concerned with planning their estate should register in advance by calling the American Heart Association at 738-4920 by April 23. There is no registration fee.

CUT YOUR HEATING BILLS
ADD A CARRIER HEAT PUMP
Carrier
Carrier's Year-round One heat pump is an efficient, economical heating and cooling system all by itself. It can replace any old, worn-out forced-air furnace.
But if your forced-air furnace (electric, gas, or oil) is in good shape, you can add a heat pump to it — and get really low heating costs! That's because your new combination furnace-heat pump system heats with either the furnace or heat pump. Depending on outside temperature, the system automatically chooses whichever heating method can save you the most money!
Let us tell you all about it. We'll be happy to give you an estimate and a free Heat-Saving Analysis of your home.
BONUS!
$100 FACTORY REBATE
SPECIAL PRE-SEASON OFFER: Buy a Carrier Round One Heat Pump now, and you'll receive a $100 rebate check direct from Carrier Rebate Headquarters when your installation is completed. This offer applies to homeowners only, on Round One units sold and installed between February 1 and April 30, 1980. It cannot be applied to units financed through FHA.

Today's Art

Celebrate April at Jubilation

By VONI WEAVER

"Jubilation," in Piccadilly Square, Newton Centre, is a fine spot in which to celebrate April (unlike T.S. Eliot, but like Chaucer, I enjoy April).

Suzanne Levine and Elaine Powell, the owners, emphasize fiber arts (or fibre arts, especially in N. Centre) but set out handmade works, decorative or useful, in just about every material I can think of — some porcelain and stoneware, Ann Weber and Leslie Ferrin come to mind, woodworks by John McLeod and Richard Rothbard, leather, glass, paper (cards and such), and some jewelry.

In fiber, there are placemats, potholders, puppets, quilts, one of them from an M.F.A. show, scarves, pillows, mythic hanging horses, angels, and moons (with faces), those antic Basket Cases, and Diane Reese's cacti, and that's not all by any means.

These past couple of years, I don't know what's moved, in crafts, like glass. Before, did we have so much excitement, experiment, so many ideas to enjoy in glass? I don't think so.

Now there's handblown sculpture, intricately colored; there are vases, bottles, stemmed ware, etched containers, and even a few fresh notions about what to do with stained glass. You can get an idea of what's happening by going to Jubilation. That's 91 Union St., 10-5, Tues.-Sat., prices range between $3 and $1,000, and the phone number is 965-0488.

Through April 17, the Newton Free Library has had Appliqued Tapestries by Susan Woodman displayed on the first floor. These are bright, clear, big wall hangings.

Also in Newton, Limited Editions has a show of Nancy Mahoney's stoneware (landscape plates, among other things) through May 12. Hours there are Tues. - Sat., 10-5:30, Thurs. evenings until 8, and Limited Editions is on Walnut Street, in Newton Highlands, just over the bridge toward Centre Street (965-5474).

In Boston, the Society of Arts & Crafts, 175 Newbury St., has Dressing Up In Art through May 3, a show of women's clothing and some jewelry, all one of-a-kind, handmade. And the Worcester Craft Center, 25 Sagamore Rd., has Andree Beauregard's Large Scale Tapestry weavings. She's showing for the first time in this country. Gallery hours there are Mon.-Sat., 9-5, Sun., 2-5.

Makes me feel like a Useful Columnist to be able to let you know that a Century of Ceramics in the United States, 1878-1978, will open at the DeCordova in September, thus saving some of us a trip to the Cooper-Hewett in New York City before May 25. This is a show I've ached to see since it opened at the Everson Museum in Syracuse last May. Since then, selected pieces have appeared here and there, mainly at the Renwick in Washington, D.C. Thank you, DeCordova, and whoopee.

That 2½ year Certificate gives you more security...

When you invest in a 2½ year certificate of deposit from Mutual Bank For Savings, you get more than a great rate of interest. You also get the guaranteed security that money market funds just can't offer.

Think about it: money market funds can tell you yesterday's yield, and today's, but not tomorrow's. At Mutual Bank, your high rate of interest is fixed on the date of deposit and guaranteed for the entire term.

Just $250 is all it takes to invest in our certificates of deposit. And all investments, whether small or large, are fully insured at Mutual Bank.

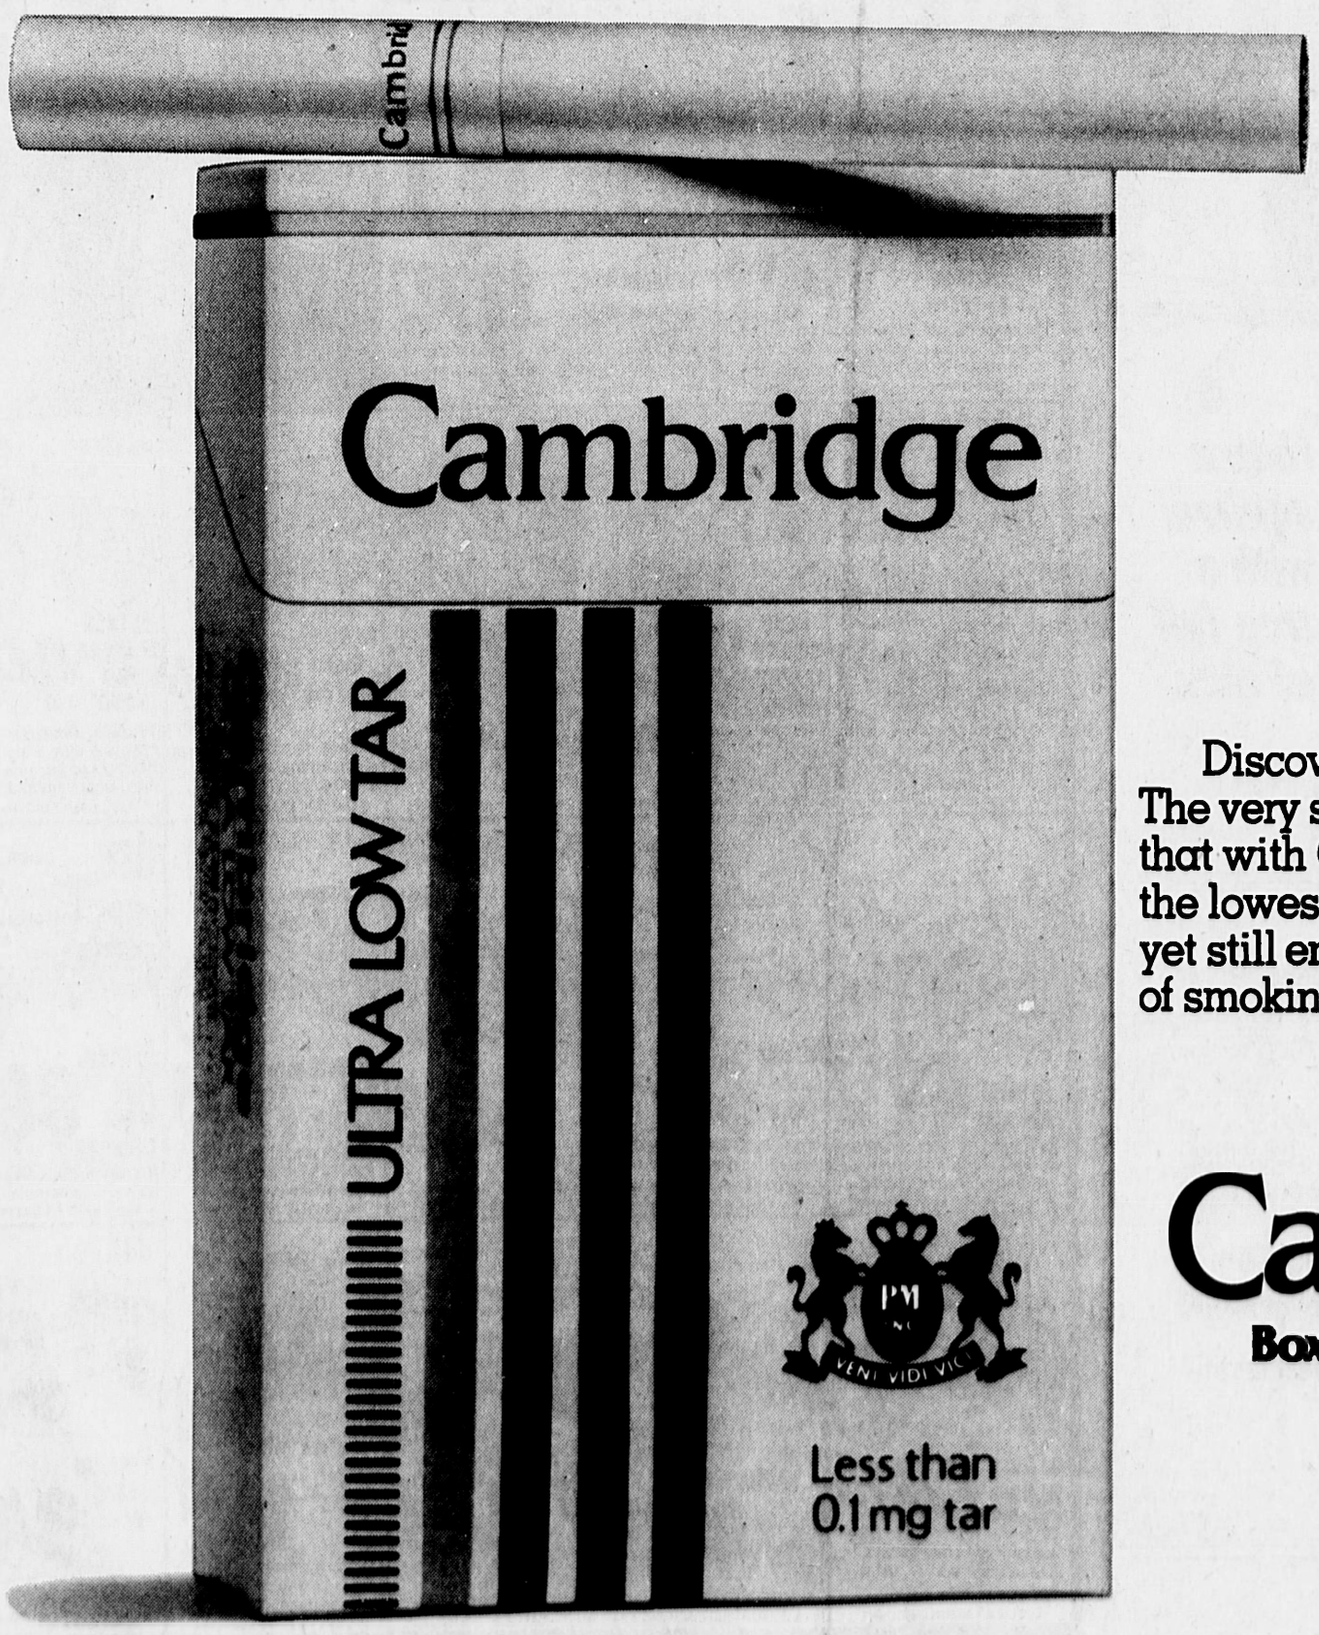

Stop by any office of Mutual Bank for a 2½ year certificate today. And be a bit more secure tomorrow.

Water Staff Positions

The Newton Recreation Department is still accepting applications for Lifeguards and Water Safety Instructors for the 1980 summer waterfront staff at Crystal Lake and Gath Pool swimming facilities.

Those interested in working at any of the Recreation Department facilities for the summer of 1980 must have: Current Senior Lifesaving Certification, Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation Certification, Standard First-Aid and Personal Safety Certification. Interested candidates should fill out applications at the Newton Recreation Department office, 70 Crescent Street, Auburndale. For further information, call the Recreation Department at 552-7120.

Free Golf Lessons For Young People

Pro, Ken Campbell, of the Newton Commonwealth Golf Club is offering free golf lessons for Newton youngsters 10 to 16 years of age. These classes will be held at the Commonwealth Course. Clubs and equipment will be supplied. The classes will be held on six Sundays at noon and 1 p.m., beginning the week of May 12. Call Carol Stapleton at the Newton Recreation Department, 552-7120, to register.

National League Baseball

The Newton Recreation Department's National Baseball League season is scheduled to begin June 9th. This league is for high school age boys and games are played at diamonds throughout the city. Last year there were seven teams playing in the league. Teams entered in the League this season are St. Bernard's, Mosca Club, C & K Club, Newton Centre, Auburndale Sports Shop.

Supervised Courts to Open

The 31 hard surface and clay courts at Burr Park, Newton Centre and Newton North and Newton South High Schools are scheduled to open on Saturday, April 19th. All of these courts may be reserved by Newton residents with current season tennis permits. Weather permitting, there will be attendants on duty to take reservations during the following hours: Newton Centre and Burr Park, weekdays, 5 p.m. to dusk and Saturdays and Sundays, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The lighted courts at North and South High will have attendants on duty weekdays from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Reservations must be made at courtside only.

Those with current permits may reserve one court in a seven day period. It requires two names to reserve courts for doubles play. Those who reserve court time must be present at the designated time, or they will immediately forfeit the court to other players on the waiting list. There are also another 40 hard surfaced courts located throughout the city. They are available on a first come, first serve basis.

Tennis Permits now on Sale

Newton residents may purchase 1980 tennis permits at the Recreation Department office, 70 Ctescent Street, Auburndale, Monday thru Friday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. They may also be purchased at the Hull St. entrance of Newton North High weekdays from 7 to 9 p.m., and weekends from 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. through May 11th. Tiger trackmen sweep

The Tigers, now 2-0, took the top three places in the pole vault, discus, javelin and 220 while also winning 11 other events. In fact, Cambridge's only triumphs came in the long jump and 440.

Presenting a balanced attack, 13 different people entered the victory column for Newton North. Leading the way were tri-captains Jim Magliozzi pole vault and Mike Pendergast (mile). Also winning for the Tigers were Chris Shepherd (triple jump), John Robinson (high jump), Steve Gilson (discus), Steve Gershon (javelin) and Jorge Montoya (low hurdles).

Steve Drew (high hurdles), Glenn Goldman (100), Billy Drew (220), Cam Laing (880) and Vachon (two-mile) were other winners.

The most pleasant surprise for coach Fred Yaitanes, however, was the return of Royce Terrell. Terrell, a three-sport star at Newton North, tore his knee ligaments apart in the Thanksgiving Day football game and had been recovering ever since. Terrell was forced to sit out the season. His return Tuesday was a victorious one, however. Competing in the shot put, Terrell heaved the weight 44-5.75 to finish first while teammate Mike Corsi took second with a personal best of 40-4.

The Tigers saw 10 people record personal bests Tuesday as Billy Drew went 18-5 in the long jump to finish second; Mike Margolis ran a 24.3 in the 220; Laing ran 2:02.7 in the 880 (both winning efforts and Steve Karem made 10-6 in the pole vault, good for third place.

Bob Forrest (25.3 in the 220), Adam Levy (1:53.11 in the javelin), Montoya (39-2 in the triple jump), Magliozzi (13-0 in the pole vault) and Gershon (165-2 in the javelin) also bettered previous marks.

The Tigers will face their first real test Friday when they travel to Weymouth South.

In other action Tuesday, Waltham dropped its second straight meet, 96-49, to North Quincy at Waltham.

Kevin Kramer tied for first in the pole vault with a jump of 11-6 while Paul McClure (440), Brian Moroney (880), Jim Moran (mile) and Ray DiCiaccio (two-mile) also captured events.

Waltham's next meet will be at Quincy on Apr. 29. The Summary:

South stickmen down Wayland

Turning in its best performance of the season Newton South lacrosse team knocked off Wayland ,12-3, Tuesday in action played at Wayland High.

The Lions locked the victory up in the first half of play as they outscored Wayland 10-1.

The Lions scored two in the first quarter when captain Dave Wiesner and Peter Kanellias both scored.

Newton South blew Wayland out in the second quarter as they piled up eight goals.

The Lions' Mark Hernandez, Wiesner, Wise, Mark Sullivan, and Kanellias all scored to build up the Newton South lead.

Brad Mitchell got Wayland on the board when he scored near the end of the second quarter.

The third quarter saw both teams score two goals but it was too little too late for the Wayland team.

The Lions were able to control a majority of the face-offs and this added to the scoring attack as Newton South was able to dominate possession of the ball.

"We finally played up to our potential," said the Lions' coach Paul Murphy.

The win pulled Newton South's record up to .500 giving the Lions a 3-3 record for the season.

A's, Padres, Pirates lead Senior Youth Baseball

By TERRY SACK

The Phillies came from behind in the top of the seventh to beat the Cubs and pitcher Alec Soreff, who had three hits, including a double. The Phils had come into the seventh and final inning trailing the Cubs 4-3 when with two outs, they came back to win 5-4 to even their record at 1-1.

PIRATES OVER CARDS

The Pirates, in their first game ever, gave the Cardinals their second setback in as many games. The Pirates, who were sparked by the pitching of Mark Chalfin and Steve Chapman, got off to an early lead and never trailed after that. The game was broken open in the fourth inning with a five-run outburst by the Pirates, led by a double by Terry Sack, which brought in the first two runs of the five run rampage. The only thing that Cardinal fans had to cheer about all day was a triple by the powerful Matt Cohen. Final score, 9-2.

A'S OVER TWINS

The A's dominated the whole game behind a brilliant pitching performance from Peter Weitzman, who pitched a one hitter. Mitch Doren managed the only hit for the Twins, a double. Steven Shapiro had the biggest hit for the A's, a double. Final score - 4-0.

WHITE SOX OVER CARDS

Pitcher Glen Rosengard had total control of the game, not walking anyone, and only giving up three runs for the Sox. Ricky Hurwitz had another good day (a perfect day at the plate). The only light for the lowly Cards was Steven Stoller, who went 3 for 3. Final score, 13-3 Sox.

A'S OVER ORIOLES

It was a close game all the way, with many big hits for both teams. The Orioles, behind pitchers Gregg Weltz and Corey Rubin, had key hits from John Gill, Bobby Nash, and Eric Vayle. Peter Weitzman had a triple for the A's in the fifth to start a three-run rally. The score was 6-6 going into the bottom of the seventh, when the Orioles Steven Shapiro got on base by an error. After Justin Yoffe struck out, for the second out, Andy Swett walked. Greg Arthur then got on by another error, loading the bases for David Lipsky, who walked in the winning run. Final score, 7-6, A's.

ROYALS AND PADRES TIE

The game was a battle between the base-runners and the hitters. The Padres, who were the base runners, were one hit, while the Royals, who were the hitters, were topped by Stephen Hootstein's perfect day at the plate.

In the bottom of the seventh, with the Padres leading 7-6, Hootstein walked and stole second. After two outs, Eric Freedman walked. Adam Elman then singled up the middle, scoring Hootstein. The game was called due to darkness after the seventh, and will be finished in extra innings on April 27. Score after 7, 7-7.

Track Stickman Keep Rolling On

Newton North's lacrosse team rolled to its fourth consecutive victory Monday as they dumped Lexington High 14-2 in action played at Newton North.

The Tigers exploded for nine unanswered goals in the first two quarters as they opened up an early lead that was never challenged.

Brian Quinn scored three, Karl Hatton two, and Rick Murphy, Chuck Pepper, and Mike Vaugn all added single goals for the Tiger attack.

In the third Quinn scored again, while Lexington got on the board with two.

The fourth quarter saw the Tigers run up four more, as Tom Ackerly pumped home two, Hatton added another, and Larry Chin scored an unassisted goal.

The Tigers' Rich Yerardi was given a rest after the first quarter as the Lexington attack proved to be ineffective.

The Tigers, now 5-1 on the season, will play Hingham on Wednesday in Hingham at 3:30. The summary:

Newton North (14)-g. Yeradi, def. Davis, def. J. Gardner, def. Annese, mid. Acherly, mid. L. Quinn, mid. Bryson, att. Iatrides, att. B. Quinn, att. Hatton.

The rains came

Heavy rains didn't stop Newton North's official lacrosse scorer Carol Collins from performing her duties as she used her umbrella to fend off Monday's foul weather. The Tigers came away with the victory over Lexington on the mud covered field.

NAA quintets ousted

Both the Newton Athletic Association All Stars and the Newton Pony League team fell in the semi-final round of play in the Wakefield Invitational Basketball Tournament Friday night at Wakefield High as Lexington downed NAA 64-42 and Everett stopped the Pony league team 58-52.

The height advantage for Lexington forced NAA to make their first shot or turn the ball over.

Rich Middleton, a 6-1 13-year old, cleared both boards and fed fast break passes out to his team mates.

NAA couldn't cope with the speed of the Lexington squad as all scoring was done from the floor and not one foul shot was taken.

Steve Altman had 24 points and Greg Weltz had 13 to lead NAA.

In Pony League action the game was close all the way to the fourth quarter when Everett's height meant the difference going to the foul line.

Everett shot 10 for 11 from the line in the second half and seven for seven in the fourth quarter.

Newton was one for eight from the foul line in the second half.

Everett had three players in double figures with Mark Fiulli pumping home 16, Steve Bond 17, and Steve Pendewta had 13.

Newton's Scott Anglin was the only one with double figures on the Pony league squad as he dropped in 19.

The two teams were part of a field of 64 teams that had entered the tournament.

Everett (58)-Pendewta 5 3 13, Bond 7 3 17, Totals 24 10 58.

Newton (52)-Anglin 9 1 19, Dixon 4 0 8, Russell 4 1 9, Stubblebum 4 0 8, Spagnulo 4 0 8. Totals 25 2 52.

Steeves ties for Crown In Candlepin tourney

Chris Steeves, 24, of Newton bowled a five-string total of 581 Sunday to finish in a first-place tie with Jean Kiley for the Women's Class A singles title of the $100,000 Massachusetts Candlepin Bowling Championships at Natick.

Steeves, who came in with a league average of 97 from Sammy White's in Brighton, strung together figures of 125, 125, 112, 120 and 99 for her winning total.

Steeves' best game in league play this year has been a 162 with her top three-string effort a 385. For Steeves, a data control clerk in Boston, this was the first time she has placed in the money in three attempts.

Taking fourth spot in the tourney, held at the Fairway Sports World, was Helen Keefe of West Newton (573) with Weston's Debra Cohen capturing fifth place with a 566 total.

Joanne Toppi, 21, of Watertown, placed first in Class B with a 574 score. Toppi, a nurses' aide at Cambridge City Hospital, rattled off strings of 122, 126, 114, 105 and 107.

Toppi, also representing the Sammy White League, came into the tournament with a 94 average, a high single of 120 and a high triple of 350.

In Men's Class C play, Waltham's Mike Yow rolled a 610 total to easily defeat the competition by 21 pins.

Coming in with a high single of 151 from the Wal-lex alleys in Waltham, Yow bested that in his very first string with a 154. Yow picked up seven marks during the string, including two strikes and never had lower than an eight pin count on any of the spares.

His final four strings saw totals of 112, 109, 115 and 120. Yow's average in the Sunday Night Couple's League at Wal-lex was 97 with his high triple being a 379. Last year in his first appearance in the tournament, Yow bowled a 530 and did not place.

North's Natale running well

Elizabeth Natale, a two-miler for the Newton North girls' track squad, was the only female in the top 80 finishers at the No Mean Feat Road Race held recently in Cambridge.

Natale ran the 6.2 mile race with a time of 36 minutes and nine seconds, finishing first in the women's division and 34th overall. It was a family affair of sorts for the 15-year-old sophomore. She competed with her uncle John Natale, a sub-3-hour marathoner, and her father Paul Natale.

Included in the total field of over 500 were approximately 100 women of all ages.

Child gone, law can't help

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The last time Maxine Lautenbach saw her daughter, Deliah, was in 1975. It was the day before the girl's father was to appear in court for a custodial hearing. He never showed.

Now, Miss Lautenbach says, she doesn't know where Deliah is — or even if she is alive or dead.

She says she is just one of "hundreds of thousands" of single parents in such a dilemma.

She blames a tangle of laws and enforcement procedures, refusal of some jurisdictions to consider seizure of children by either parent as a crime, and many police and prosecutors' preference not to get involved in a family matter.

Miss Lautenbach says she spent $3,000 on attorney fees and discussed her case with federal and state prosecutors and even a congressmen. All told her the same thing — nothing could be done until federal law is changed.

"I was constantly depressed for a time," she said. "I was cheated so badly and the law wouldn't help me.

"Everybody had beaten me. The government had beaten me. The legal system had beaten me. Nobody was out there to help me.

"The laws should be changed to help people like me... I want to see national attention brought to this problem — men stealing their kids."

Miss Lautenbach said her daughter was born in 1972 in New York City while she was living with a man who was separated, but still legally married.

"I was receiving welfare for the child and myself and to receive welfare, I was told that a paternity suit would take place," she said. "This suit gave my child her father's last name. If the child had retained my last name, he would have no rights to her. I was told that in order to receive welfare I would have to pursue the paternity suit."

The couple broke up. Miss Lautenbach and her daughter returned to her native Milwaukee. Later, when she went to New York to pick up her daughter after a summer-long visit, the father refused to turn her over.

Then, before a custody hearing, she found him moving and called police and her attorney.

"They said possession was nine points of the law and that if he had possession there was no legal way for them to pursue him if he left the state."

Camp Bauercrest plans anniversary

President Julius Alpert of Camp Bauercrest, a non-profit boys camp in Lake Attitash, Amesbury, has announced plans are being formulated for a reunion commemorating the 50th anniversary of Camp Bauercrest.

Those who were campers or staff members at Camp Bauercrest since 1931 are invited on Sunday, July 27, at 11 a.m.

Attorney David L. Winer, the 50th anniversary committee chairman, and one of the founding fathers of the camp, has appointed Bernard Berenson, a member of the cap staff since 1943 to prepare a list of all campers and counsellors since the first season in 1931.

Those who have been involved should send their names, addresses and years at camp, or call. Bereson: 63 Union St., Chelsea, 02150 (884-5271).

Cathedral '60 reunion

The Class of 1960 of Cathedral High School, Boston, is having a reunion on May 31. If you have not yet been contacted, call one of the following: Frank Hart (479-6771) or Carol (Hogan) Giumetti (449-1017).

Hernandez paces South stickmen

Mark Hernandez did all of Newton South's scoring to lift the Lions past Hingham on Saturday in a lacrosse game played at Newton South.

After a strong defensive first quarter Hernandez got the Lions on the board with his first of four goals. Hernandez was assisted by Mike Duffy.

With Peter Alexander out for interference Hingham's Mark Eckart tied the game at 1-1.

Rightwinger Hernandez, a junior, scored an unassisted goal in the third quarter to give Newton South the lead again.

Hernandez scored again in the third to put the Lions up by two and in the lead for good.

Hernandez took a pass from Mark Sullivan and beat the Hingham goalie with a strong shot.

Hingham's Eckart pulled his team to within one again as he scored an unassisted goal with time running out in the third quarter.

Hernandez scored his fourth goal and Newton South's last when he streaked down the rightwing, took a pass from Chris McManus, and deposited it in the Hingham net.

Bill MacKenze scored for Hingham's final tally of the contest.

Newton South lost the service of Howie Wise when he was injured in the first quarter. The Lions' Peter Kanellias, who got a bad bruise on his thigh during . the Framingham South game, was also sidelined.

"We were always in control, but we couldn't put the Hingham team away," said Coach Paul Murphy.

"We improve with every game because we are a young team,' explained Murphy.

Hernandez, a former midfielder who Murphy moved to attacker after the first game of the season, has scored six goals this year.

DiDuca swings hot bat for Lancers

Newton Catholic combined base hits with heads up base running to score an 11-3 victory over North Cambridge on Friday at Newton Catholic.

In the third inning Newton Catholic banged out three hits and stole four bases to take an early three run lead.

Newton Catholic added more runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings to put the game out of reach.

Mike DiDuca was two for three with a pair of singles and a triple as a substitute.

Mike Murphy turned in a strong . pitching performance as he went four innings and recorded seven strikeouts.

Bentley bows in softball

Eight errors and 14 walks by the Bentley softball team women's knocked the Falcons out Gordon College early as dumped the Bentley team, 15-2, at Wenham on Wednesday.

Gordon jumped out to a four run lead after three, and broke it open with a six run fourth inning.

Bentley's Toby Mead hit a two run homer in the fourth inning.

Bentley now 3-4 will travel to AIC on Thursday.

P. Sullivan bats South softball win

Kim Smith blasted a home run and Patty Sullivan added three hits as Newton South edged Brookline Tuesday, 12-11, in girls softball play at Newton.

Sullivan paced a 13-hit Newton South attack which saw the Lions take a 3-0 lead in the top of the first on two errors and singles by Diana Houlihan and Sullivan.

Brookline quickly tied the contest with three of its own in the bottom of the inning, but Newton South picked up all the runs it would need in the fifth with an eight-run explosion.

Smith led off the frame with a double and Laura Sacks followed with a single. Consecutive singles again by Houlihan and Sullivan produced two runs.

Two errors, a Michelle Miller triple , a Julie Perkins single and a Smith homer finished off the wild frame which ended with Newton South ahead, 12-4.

Brookline made it close with four in the bottom of the fifth, two in the sixth and one in the seventh, but just fell short.

Now 2-0, Newton South will be at Madison Park Friday. The Lions had opened their season last Friday with a 12-6 win over Brookline. The Summary:

American C champs

Pop Warner cops volleyball crown

Newton Pop Warner captured the championship of the Newton Men's Volleyball League as they downed Mr. Bill's 14-16, 15-2, 15-8, and 16-4 on Tuesday night at the Hawthorn Gym in Newton.

After losing the first game Pop Warner came back to take the next three games by pulling out the last game after falling behind 13-4.

The high scorers for Pop Warner were Bruce Beckier with 17 and Nick Valaes with 13.

Mr. Bill's was led by Steve and Mike McNeice who both had 8.

Hess hurls North 2-hitter

Bob Hess hurled a two-hit masterpiece at Framingham North Friday as Newton North opened the season with a 3-0 victory.

Hess threw only 78 pitches in disposing of Framingham with ease, never allowing the losers to even mount a threat throughout the seven-inning affair. He was aided by lead-off hitter Greg Pachus, who cracked out two hits and stole four bases to lead the Tiger' attack.

Newton North provided Hess with the only run he would need in the first inning as Pachus led off with a single.

Pachus then proceeded to steal second and third before scoring on Dennis Berube's single.

The Tigers scrapped together another run in the fourth on two bunts, an error and a single. John Corsi got the single to begin the stanza, moving to second when Charlie Buras reached on an error. Consecutive bunts by John Kenney and Keyes knocked in the run.

The seventh inning had a familiar ring to it. Just like the first, Pachus began with a single and steals of second and third. This time Gary Frechette rescued him with a single.

Now 1-0, Newton North is scheduled to host Boston Latin today.

For Tom Rezzuti, who picked up a win in his first game as North coach, he'll hope to make it two in a row. The Summary:

Newton North (3)-Pachus 4 2, Berube 4 1, Arcese 4 0, Frechette 3 1, corsi 3 1, Buras 3 1, Kenney 2 0, Keyes 3 1, Hess 3 0. Totals 28 7.

Newton North five in tourney romp

Scott Humphrey pumped home 20 points and Lee Gilliam added 18 Wednesday as Newton North opened play in the Arlington Boys' Club Tournament with an 81-48 trouncing of Winchester.

Humphrey and Gilliam led a charge which saw Newton North jump out to a 24-8 first quarter lead and a 42-21 halftime cushion.

Winchester scored 20 points in the final quarter to cut the deficit somewhat, but Newton North was never in serious trouble.

Run for their lives

BOSTON — Riding the crest of the wave of running fever which annually envelopes Massachusetts and the running world every Patriots' Day, the National Run for Life will take place April 26, just five days after the running of the world-famed Boston Marathon.

Sponsored as a fitness and fund-raising program for the American Heart Association, the National Run for Life is conducted collaboratively with the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company.

In 1979, some $800,000 was realized for the Heart Association's research and program activities through over 150 runs which took place nationwide from Maine to Hawaii.

In Massachusetts, plans are already confirmed for runs throughout the state ranging from Cape Cod to the Western Massachusetts area.

Information about participation and involvement in the National Run for Life can be had through local American Heart Association offices located in Pittsfield, Springfield, Worcester, Andover, Boston, Brockton and Hyannis.

National spokesman for the Run for Life is Olympic Gold Medal marathoner, Frank Shorter.

Arthritis group to meet April 21

BRIGHTON—The Brighton Arthritis Support Group will meet on Monday, April 21 at 7 p.m. in the third floor research conference room of the Mother Mary Rose Clinic Building at St. Elizabeth's Hospital. The group is a self-help vehicle for arthritics, family members and anyone interested in learning more about the rheumatic diseases.

The program, a service of the Massachusetts Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation in conjunction with the Department of Community Health, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, is open to the public without charge. Meetings are held the third Monday of the month, when health care professionals address treatment, rehabilitation and needs common to the arthritic.

Additional information about the support group is available from Valaree Crawford at the Arthritis Foundation, 59 Temple Pl., Boston, 542-6535.

Simple and inexpensive ways to save hundreds of dollars on your electric heating bill will be demonstrated on Tuesday, April 22 at 8 p.m. in the Eliot Church parlor, 474 Centre St., Newton Corner. The free program is being sponsored by the Newton Citizens Commission on Energy. George Woods, above, aresidential energy auditor with the Home Energy Centers in Needham and an associate member of the Energy Commission, will present a slide show and demonstration called "Insulate Yourself Against High Fuel Bills— Low Cost, Do-It-Yourself Ways to Save Hundreds of Dollars in Energy Costs."

'Rumpelstiltskin' and Crystal Lake are part of spring arts program

AUBURNDALE— The Arts in the Parks program is offering two special events for spring vacation.

On Wednesday, April 23, at 10:30 a.m., The Gerwick Puppet Theater will be presenting "Rumpelstiltskin" at the Newton Centre Hut on Tyler Terrace. The puppet show is being sponsored with the Special Needs Program of the Newton Recreation Department. Admission is $1.

On Thursday, April 26, naturalist, author, and photographer Sue Jacobson will be presenting a program entitled "Nature in Newton." She will explore the wildlife, vegetation, and natural environment of Crystal Lake, as Newton joins in the celebration of Earth Week.

The program will be held at the Crystal Lake bath house on Rogers Street in Newton Highlands. Preregistration is necessary. Cost is $1.50. Make checks payable to Arts in the Parks, and send to the Newton Recreation Department, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale, Mass, 02166. The program will be held rain or shine.

Senior Citizen Luncheon set for May 21 at Post 440

NEWTON — This year's Annual Senior Citizen Luncheon will be held on Wednesday, May 21, at American Legion Post 440, 295 California St., Newton, and will begin at 12 noon.

A luncheon of turkey with all the trimmings will be served by city officials and department heads, who will be acting as waiters and waitresses. Entertainment will be provided by national accordion champion Robert Pozzi. Dick Albert, Channel 5 Meteorologist, will also be a featured guest.

Tickets for the luncheon are $3.50 and may be purchased at Newton Corner Senior Drop-in Center, 191 Pearl St.; Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner; Newton Community Service Center, 429 Cherry St., West Newton; Newtonville Senior Drop-in Center, 41 Austin St.; Newton Highlands Denior Drop-in Center, Hyde School, 68 Lincoln St.; Recreation Department, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale; Department of Human Services, Newton City Hall; Nonantum Multi-Service Center, 48 Silver Lake Ave.

Tickets are available on a first-come, first-served basis, and absolutely no tickets will be sold at the door, so make your plans early.

Free transportation will be through the generosity of McDonald's of Newton and the Newton Recreation Department, and will be available to those who need it. Senior citizens who need transportation should call Department of Human Services at 552-7170 after they have purchased a ticket, and between May 7 and May 14 so that arrangements for transportation can be made.

The Council on Aging and the Department of Human Services want to extend to every senior citizen in Newton an invitation to come and participate in a very successful and enjoyable luncheon.

Rally set April 19 against animal experimentation

BOSTON — The Coalition to End Animal Suffering in Experiments (CEASE) and Friends of Animals, Inc. will demonstrate against the use of live animals in experiments on Saturday, April 19.

The demonstration will call public and Congressional attention to WORLD DAY FOR LABORATORY ANIMALS, which is internationally observed each year on April 24 to commemorate the millions of animals who die worldwide in laboratory experimentation and commercial testing.

The April 19 demonstration in Boston is endorsed by the Fund for Animals, New England Anti-Vivisection Society, American Fund for Alternatives to Animal Research, and many local Massachusetts humane societies.

The group will assemble at the Prudential Center in Boston at noon on April 19 and march to the Boston Common, where a rally will be held featuring animal rights and civil rights activist Henry Spira.

Spira exposed and helped to end a 20-year series of experiments on cats at the Museum of Natural History in New York, and he also stopped experiments on pigs which were designed to investigate various methods of torturing human prisoners of war. His most recent effort culminated in the repeal of New York State's Metcalf-Hatch Act, which had for many years forced pounds and shelters to hand over their animals to laboratories for experimentation. Spira is currently engaged in a national campaign to outlaw a standard animal eye mutilation procedure (the Draize test) which is almost universally used in toxicity tests of commercial products.

The Boston demonstration highlights growing public concern about the inhumane treatment of animals in scientific research and commercial testing. More than 100 million animals are killed annually in American laboratories alone, and about 85 percent of these animals suffer and die without anesthetics, according to CEASE.

Amy Pederson of United Action for Animals, Inc. will speak about some alternatives to animal experimentation during the April 19 rally on the Common.

The Coalition to End Animal Suffering in Experiments is a Boston-based activist organization dedicated to establishing institutional and legislative reforms that will end animal suffering in the name of science. CEASE was founded in 1979 and represents the Massachusetts branch of the Animal Rights Network, which also has affiliates in Connecticut, Hawaii, and Washington, D.C.

Friends of Animals, Inc. is the largest anti— animal exploitation organization in the United States. Founded in 1957 to combat any sort of animal abuse, Friends of Animals has chapters in Massachusetts and several other states.

TRAVEL GUIDE

Travel Talk

By Josephine Arria

Planning a summer trip abroad? Get your passport early. The U.S. Government expects to issue passports to three and one-half million Americans this year. Although the State Department is able to issue passports within a day in emergencies, normal procedures may take as long as a month. Passports can be applied for at many post offices, courthouses and at any government passport agencies in the following cities: Boston, Stamford, New York City, Philadelphia, Washington, Miami, Detroit, Chicago, New Orleans, Houston, Seattle, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Honolulu.

Traveling oftentimes presents unusual and different rules, regulations or customs. Your experienced travel agent at BARCLAY INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL SERVICE, INC., 305 A Washington St., Newton Corner, is here to assist you in understanding and meeting all such regulations customs so that your trip will be trouble-free and enjoyable. We are the professsonal travel agency that takes the worry out of your journey. Open 9-5:30 Mon.-Fri., 'til 8:30 Thurs. and 9-1 Sat. Tel. 244-8460. All stand- 9-1 Sat. Tel. 244-8460. All standard credit cards accepted.

TRAVEL TIP: If a passport is stolen or lost, report it immediately to both local police, the American consulate or a passport office.

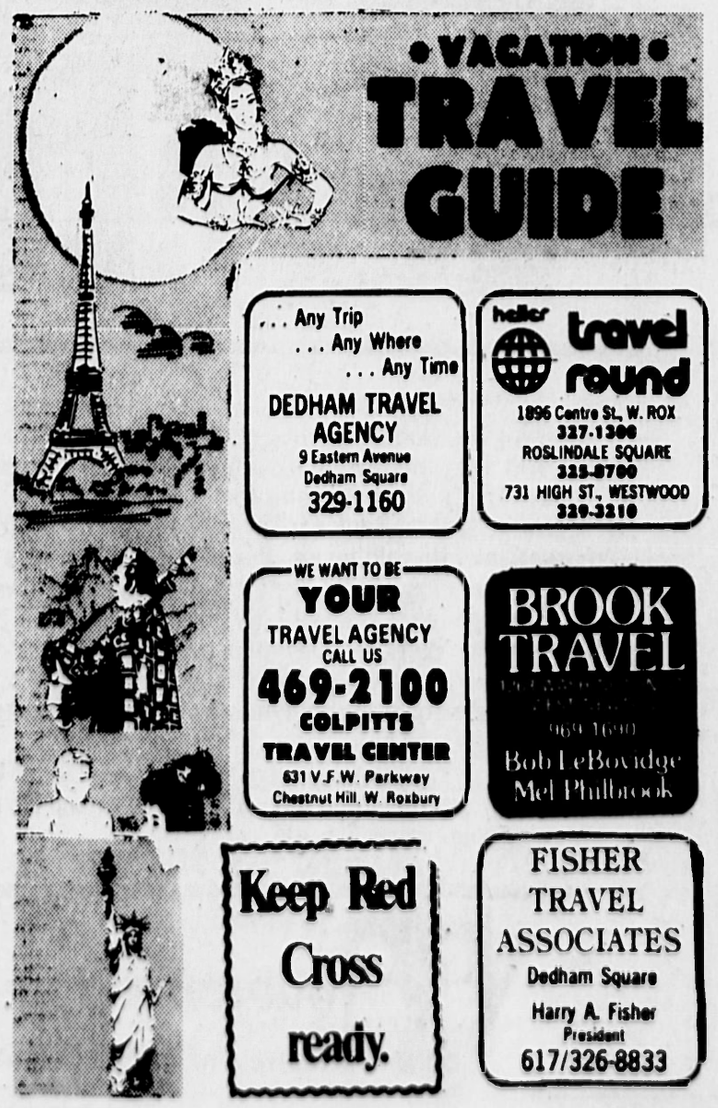

Tips on air travel

If your summer vacation is likely to involve air travel, now is a good time to start planning.

The increasingly competitive airline industry is offering a variety of reduced-rate ticket arrangements, and continuing government deregulation is leading to ever broader competition.

But Consumer Reports says planning ahead may be necessary to benefit from some discounts. (Note: Sometimes only a small fraction of seats on a given flight are set aside for cut-rate traveling.)

In fact, a number of discount plans require that you make reservations weeks in advance. And, with some, you have to pay in advance. (Even if it isn't mandated, you might want to pay in advance to beat the next round of fare increases. If you have unpaid reservations, you may have to pay the higher price when you pick up your tickets.)

Wheels are rolling to benefit MARC

Tricycles, 10-speeds and unicycles will be rolling out in full force on Sunday, April 27, when the Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens (MARC) will be holding its ninth annual "Ride-a-Bike To Benefit Mentally Retarded Citizens."

Thousands of cyclists in over 100 local Ride-a-Bikes in cities and towns throughout Massachusetts will participate. Riders ask sponsors for pledges for the mileage they cover.

Organized by the Massachusetts Teachers Association, the Ride-a-Bike has raised over $1.7 million since it began in 1972. Money raised through the Ride-a-Bike allows MARC to continue its many advocacy services for the Commonwealth's 160,000 mentally retarded citizens.

For more information, contact MARC at 217 South Street, Waltham, MA; (617) 891-6270.

Mayor Mann meets with Charlotte Fine (l.) and Voni Weaver (r.) to discuss plans for Springfest, the annual festival of arts and crafts sponsored by the Newton Cultural Affairs Commission. The festival will be held on May 18 at Newton City Hall.

Discovering your roots

FRAMINGHAM — Persons of all ethnic backgrounds who have an interest in family and-or local history will be welcome at the meeting of the Middlesex South Chapter of the Massachusetts Society of Genealogists at the new Framingham Public Library, 49 Lexington St., Framingham, on Saturday, April 26, at 1:30 p.m.

Rudolph Currier, newspaper columnist, will speak on two topics, "Early Events in Concord" and "Solving Problems in Family History." There will also be reports on legislative developments and the chapter's plans for May and June.

The public is cordially invited to attend all chapter meetings of the society, usually on the third Saturday of each month, October through May, in a different town or city to be announced. For regular meetings, there is no admission charge.

For further information about the society, write to P.O. Box 215, Ashland, MA 01721.

Auto guide tells how to avoid rip-offs

BOSTON — Secretary Eileen Schell today announced the release of a new consumer pamphlet, Consumer's Auto Repair Guide. The six-page publication outlines consumer rights in dealing with auto repair shops, auto body shops and retail stores which offer automotive services.

Secretary Schell said, "According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, consumers waste $20 billion on unnecessary, inadequate, incompetent and fraudulent auto repairs. That waste is equivalent to $180 per car. It is important that consumers protect themselves by understanding and asserting their rights under the Attorney General's Vehicle Regulations. Our pamphlet describes these rights, as well as effective procedures to follow to resolve complaints."

Under the Attorney General's Motor Vehicle Regulations, Massachusetts consumers are protected against most common auto-repair-related problems. For example, consumers have the right to an authorized written estimate; the right to an agreed upon price for repairs within $10, the right to an itemized bill, the right to have shoddy repair work corrected at no charge, and the right not to be charged for repairs which have not been made.

Consumer's Auto Repair Guide offers advice on how to select an auto repair service, how to explain repair problems to a mechanic, and how to file a complaint. Pamphlets are available at no charge by writing or calling Auto Repair Guide, Office of Consumer Affairs, One Ashburton Place, Boston, MA 02108, 727-7780.

Scout News

By DORIS HIGBEE

Happy news from Pack 304, Carr School, Newtonville. Although our pack got off to a late start this year the Cubs have been doing a terrific job.

We had our first pack meeting with 12 Cubs receiving their Bobcat Badges. From Den 2, Alex Laufer received his Wolf Badge.

In February at the Hawthorn Gym we held our Pinewood Derby. All Cubs did an outstanding job building their cars. The cars were so good that many elimination races had to be run to achieve our goal of one winner. Congratulations, Tommy Gordon — job well done.

On March 15 we had a booth at the Boy Scout Expo held at Wellesley High School. "How Many Nails Will Sink Our Boat?" was our contest. We always had a lot of excited players, and fun was had by all. For participating we received an Expo Ribbon.

For the third year in a row our Window Display won a ribbon. This year it was for third place.

On April 3 our Cub master, Jerry Gilmore, led a very impressive ceremony as the following boys received their badges and awards:

Den 1 — Leader Nancy Holland and Assistant Leader Mary Saunders. Wolf Badges: Jeffery Holland, James Olson, Michael DeSimone, Shawn Pitts, Billy Saunders, Billy Lutrel, and Stephan Mearts.

Den 2 — Leader Doris Higbee and Assistant Leader Peggy Laroche. Wolf Badges: Jonathan Goodman, Derek Higbee, Joseph Laroche, Michael Leone, and Jerry Useem; Bear Badge: Alex Laufer; Service Star: Alex Laufer; Arrows: Jonathan Goodman, gold; Derek Higbee, gold and one silver; Joseph Laroche, gold and one silver; Michael Leone, gold and three silvers.

Webelos — Leader Bill Gillette. Webelo Badges and three Activity Pins: Bobby Burkinshaw, David Gilmore, Bobby Lawrence, Mike DeLuca, Tommy Gordon.

From all of us a "very well done," and a special thanks to Mike Leone from Den 2.

Daniel Braverman given scholarship by British

BOSTON— Daniel Braverman of 118 Glen Ave., Newton, is one of 30 Americans to be awarded a British Government Marshall Scholarship, according to an announcement from the office of the British Consulate-General in Boston.

The prestigious award entitles winners to two or three years of all-expenses-paid study at a British University of their choice. The scholarships were founded in 1953 to express British appreciation of American help to Europe under the Marshall plan.

Braverman, who holds a master's degree from Harvard University, plans to study Chinese politics at London University.

Police escapee gets suspended sentence

NEWTON — A Dorchester man who pulled a loose bar out of his cell and escaped from the Newton police cellblock March 31 was found guilty of escape in Newton District Court Monday and given a six-month suspended sentence.

Paul Personeni, 20, of 118 Milton Ave., Dorchester was awaiting transportation to the House of Correction at Billerica when he escaped. He had been sentenced to three months in Billerica for violating the conditions of probation imposed when he was found guilty of harassing a woman by telephone.

Personeni was found guilty of harassment by Judge Monte Basbas March 4, placed on probation and ordered not to have any contact with the complainant, a Natick woman employed in Newton.

He appeared in court March 31 because he had reportedly telephoned the woman again and once followed her home from work. He was stopped by Natick police when he followed the woman home and was found guilty in Natick District Court March 27 of possession of a dangerous weapon and of marijuana, failure to stop for a police officer and operating to endanger. He was sentenced to three months and he appealed.

At the surrender hearing March 31, Judge Basbas sentenced Personeni to three months and that afternoon he escaped, turning himself in to police the next morning.

Defense attorney John Salsberg has filed a motion to revoke and revise the the three-month sentence and he argued Monday that Personeni should undergo an evaluation at McLeans Hospital.

That motion will be heard April 25.

West Newton Savings Bank elects 3 new corporators

WEST NEWTON — West Newton Savings Bank has announced the election of three new corporators and the promotion of one new officer, each representing one of the communities served by the bank. The announcement was made by Robert P. Lurvey, president, at the bank's annual meeting.

Nancy Concannon of Waban has been elected corporator of the bank. She is currently second vice president of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company's Corporate Operations Staff. A trustee of Newton-Wellesley Hospital Association and of Regis College, Concannon also serves on the boards of directors of the Boston YWCA and Continuum, on the advisory committee of the Greater Boston Executive Program at MIT's Sloan School, and on the advisory board of the Undergraduate School of Business at Suffolk University.

Also elected corporator is Robert A. Lemire of Lincoln. Currently president of Lemire & Company, Lemire is active in the area of land use. He serves as chairman of the Lincoln Conservation Commission, is a governor's appointee on the Massachusetts Agricultural Land Preservation Committee and has authored a book entitled: "Creative Land Development: Bridge to the Future."

The third newly elected corporator is Thomas R. Jackson of Weston. Currently a vice president, Jackson has also served West Newton Savings Bank as assistant treasurer. Prior to his West Newton tenure, he was an officer at New England Merchants National Bank.

Marilyn H. Woodworth of Wayland has been promoted to assistant treasurer at the bank. Prior to her appointment, Woodworth held the positions of teller, customer service representative and is currently manager of the bank's Lincoln office. A graduate of the Rhode Island School of Design, she has completed courses in accounting, advanced savings banking, home mortgage lending and savings bank life insurance.

Land Use Committee to hear petitioners

NEWTON — Thirteen petitions from 10 different petitioners will be heard in public hearing before the Land Use Committee tonight, promising another overcrowded evening.

The Newton Historic Preservation Association, owner of the Bigelow House on Oak Hill, will ask to be allowed to convert the building to five instead of four condominiums.

According to John Howard, president of NHPA, Channel 2 television, which is restoring the historic house as a "This Old House" series, thinks there should be an apartment whose price is within possibility for an average viewer.

The NHPA bought the old house from the city for $10,000 for conversion to condominiums to preserve the building, designed by architect H. H. Richardson in the 1880s. The proceeds will go to buying and preserving another historic building in Newton.

The Boston Catholic Cemetery Assn. has a petition to legalize two free-standing signs on Lagrange Street.

Mount Ida Junior College and the Preschool Experience Inc. have petitions before the committee for site-plan approval. The Preschool Experience is a new nursery school at 1091 Centre St., Newton Centre.

Mount Ida wants to add two classrooms to an existing building on its campus at 777 Dedham St., Newton Centre.

George Naddaff is back before the Land Use Committee with a petition to make a two-story carriage house at 109 Bellevue St. into five legal apartments. Naddaff previously asked for seven apartments.

Oldco Realty Corp., Old Colony Knitting Mills and Greenfield's Inc. have petitioned for amendments to a previous, uncomplied-with order of the Board of Aldermen about improvements to a nonconforming business use at 40 Glen Ave., Newton Centre. They also want a special permit for a free-standing sign.

The United Methodist Church of Newton is asking for zoning of land at 430 Walnut St., Newtonville, from unzoned to Residence B. The church is buying a building of the former Newton Junior College for use as a church. The property will also need site-plan approval for use as a church.

Permission is also being sought by the church to exceed height limits. The building will be 43.5 feet high.

Ald. Susan Schur will transmit a petition of the Newton Upper Falls advisory committee to change the zone of property at 1225 Chestnut St.

Stephen O'Brien has submitted a petition for extension of nonconforming use to allow apartments in a house at 73 Elm Rd., Newtonville.

June Ouellette is seeking renewal of a special permit for a nursery school at 258 Cherry St., West Newton.

The hearings of the Land Use Committee start at 7:45 p.m., aldermanic chamber, City Hall.

Ancient 'lost wax' method to be shown at workshop

NEWTON — Several events are planned by the members of the Newton Art Association during the month of April. On Thursday, April 17, at the regular meeting held at the Women's Workshop, 72 Columbus St., Newton Highlands at 7:30 p.m., Allan A. Davidson of Rockport will be the guest artist demonstrator. An internationally famous sculptor and painter, he will lecture and demonstrate the "lost wax" technique in sculpture.

Considered by critics and his colleagues as the prototype of the Renaissance artist who works equally well in all media, Davidson's work is highly regarded in Europe as it is in the United States. Many of his bronze sculptures as well as marble, paintings, and graphics are in major collections and museums. His ballerinas, horses and figures in bronze have been compared to the work of French impressionist Edgar Degas.

A member of many national art organizations, he is an extremely popular lecturer on fine art subjects. An expert in the lost-wax method of sculpture, he plans to demonstrate to Newton artists and explain a technique that is more than 4,000 years old.

Bronze sculpture via the lost-wax method was employed by ancient biblical artists from the beginning of recorded history. It is the oldest form of art known to man. From the earliest Romanesque to modern-day sculpture the lost-wax method of producing a small or large monument in bronze has changed very little except for refinements in casting methods.

At the conclusion of the demonstration and lecture, there will be a short social hour and refreshments will be served. The public is cordially invited to attend. There is a small guest fee of $1 to non-members. There will also be a "mini" exhibit of sculpture done by the members on view on the same evening. Also, the 31st annual exhibit of paintings done by the members of the Newton Art Association is now being held at Bloomingdale's Fashion Store. Fifty paintings are on view through Saturday, April 26.

On Friday, April 25, Walter Marks will demonstrate the technique of portrait painting.

90 days for burglary

NEWTON — A West Newton man was sentenced to 90 days in the House of Correction in Newton District Court Monday after being found guilty of burglarizing a Newton service station March 17.

Lee Higgins, 21, of 12 Cottage Place admitted sufficient facts on charges of burglary, larceny and failure to stop for a police officer. A charge of assault and battery with an automobile was dismissed.

Officer Nancy Caruso testified that she responded to a call of a burglary in progress at Keefe's Tire Center at 979 Watertown St. shortly before midnight on March 17. She said that Higgins was found in the station under a pile of clothes and that a hydraulic pump, wrenches and other tools were found in a car nearby to which he had the keys on his person.

Officer Paul Allen testified that after Higgins was booked, he attempted to drive away in the car. Allen said he signaled to Higgins to stop, but that Higgins kept on going, striking him in the hand.

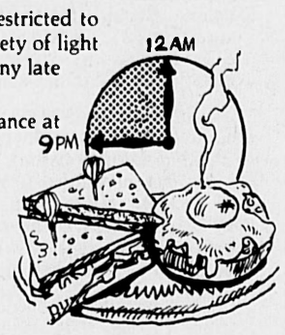

Judge Monte Basbas sentenced Higgins to 90 days and gave him a nine-month sentence suspended for two years. He also fined Higgins $50 on the charge of failing to stop for a police officer.

Dr. Benson to speak at N-W Hospital April 29

LOWER FALLS—Dr. Herbert Benson will give the first program of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital's 1980 Fried Lecture Series on Tuesday, April 29 at 8 p.m. in Usen Auditorium of the hospital. His topic will be "New Behavioral Approaches to the Practice of Medicine."

Dr. Benson, director of the Division of Behavioral Medicine at Beth Israel Hospital, was one of the early investigators to apply biofeedback and meditational techniques to the therapy of medical disorders using a controlled, scientific approach. He is the author of two books, "The Relaxation Response" and "The Mind Body Effect," as well as more than 50 articles in medical literature.

The program is open to the public free of charge. The Fried Lecture Series is endowed by the late Dr. Anton Fried, emeritus chief of the Medical Service at Newton-Wellesley Hospital, to bring outstanding medical men to lecture at the hospital.

Lottor fills Brandeis post

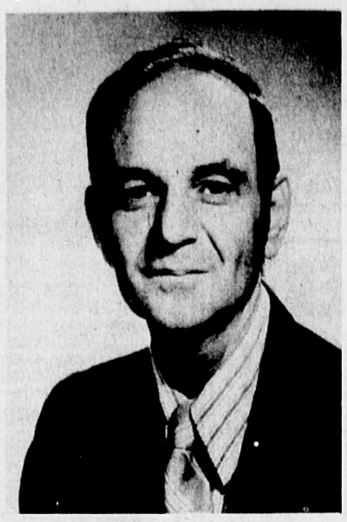

WALTHAM — Sanford M. Lottor of Newton has been named director of continuing studies at Brandeis University.

In his new post, Lottor will be responsible for a variety of academic programs, including adult education, summer school, and special campus workshops, seminars and conferences.

Lottor came to Brandeis in January 1978 as director of alumni relations and later served as director of management programs at the Center for Public Service at Brandeis.

Before joining the Brandeis community, Lottor spent 10 years at the State University of New York (SUNY) in Buffalo. At the time of his departure, he was assistant dean and director of the Center for Management Development at SUNY's School of Management.

Lottor holds bachelor's and master's degrees from New York University. His long career in the field of higher education has involved him in such activities as teaching, development, governmental relations and student career guidance. In addition, he has been a consultant for several state, county and community projects.

New SSI program for disabled children

NEWTON — A new project at the Massachusetts Office for Children is the Supplemental Security Income-Disabled Children's Program which is now operating out of the regional office at 425 Watertown St. in Newton. Families of children up to age 16 who are receiving supplemental security income are now being contacted regarding their eligibility for the program.

In addition to the SSI cash benefit which income-eligible disabled children are already receiving, this new program will provide coordination of the services in which the child is enrolled. It will also identify additional services which could be beneficial to the child and assist parents in obtaining and monitoring these services.

The Regional Coordinator of the SSI-Disabled Children's Program is Mary Dailey, a Newton resident, who previously worked as a child advocate in the Norwood area office of the Office for Children.

The regional office in Newton covers 40 cities and towns in the suburbs south and west of Boston. Interested individuals and organizations are encouraged to write or call collect at 727-2532 for more information.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

REALTORS in 17 cities and towns in southwestern Norfolk County have launched an anti-vandalism campaign as this year's "Make America Better" project, enlisting the support of fifth and sixth grade students in their area.

As part of the program, the REALTORS are showing a film on vandalism at the more than 40 schools participating in the project. After viewing the film, distributed by the National Association of Realtors, the fifth and sixth graders are asked to create anti-vandalism posters, expressing their feelings on the subject.

A winning poster will be selected at each school to be displayed in a public place, and the winning students will be presented awards during the REALTORS' "Private Property Week", April 15-21.

The program is being conducted by members of Council I & M, a regional organization of the Brokers Institute, a division of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

Edward F. Smith of the Audrey C. Fields office and Karen Glaser of the Florence Kates office in Canton are coordinating the project as co-chairpersons of the council's Make America Better Committee.

Council I & M represents REALTORS in Bellingham, Canton, Dedham, East Milton, Foxboro, Franklin, Mansfield, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Milton, Norfolk, Norwood, Sharon, Walpole, Westwood, and Wrentham.

115 Vacation Property For Sale

CAMELOT(S)
DON'T HAVE TO COST A LOT
Make your winter dreams come true this summer by building your summer home on the finest location on the "Gateway to the Cape".
There's a lot of Camelot on this 30,300 sq ft of prime waterfront land in Wareham. It's on a beautiful, breathtaking knoll overlooking the sparkling Weweanic & Marion shore.
Yet it's only a 50 minute drive from the Greater Boston area even on the busiest of traffic weekends since you don't have to go over either of the clogged Cape Cod Canal bridges.
This Camelot is the nicest area left on the Upper Cape. A one minute walk to a private sandy ocean beach on one side while there's just a saltmarsh between you and the river on the other.
You can build your own private dock riverside or just stroll across the road to an Atlantic inlet and a spectacular view of Buzzards Bay.

WE NEED COMPUTER OPERATORS!

Stop & Shop Data Center, located in our modern facilities in North Quincy, is looking for experienced Computer Operators and Senior Computer Operators. We need qualified people ot work with our two 370/158 OS Systems. Background must include 1 to 5 years of IBM JCL experience. On-line IMS experience is beneficial. As we will soon be converting to MVS, knowledge of MVS is a plus.

To make contact easier for interested applicants, we will have special telephone coverage (463-4328) on Thursday night, April 17, 1980, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and again on Friday morning April 18, 1980, from 7 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. Of course, you can call any day during our normal business hours to discuss these openings. Do call us at 463-4328.

Our Computer Operators and Senior Operators are on a 3-day work week. We offer competitive salaries, and our excellent benefits package includes a dental plan. We are located near Rte. 3 and 128 in North Quincy, and we have plenty of free parking. The MBTA Red Line is across the street, Sound convenient? WE ARE!

If you are unable to call our special telephone coverage on Thursday night, April 17, 1980, or Friday morning, April 18, 1980, and can not call us during usual business hours, please send your resume (including salary history) to:

EXPERIENCED TELLERS:

BE ONE OF THE FIRST

TO WORK WITH OUR NEW IBM AUTOMATED TELLER SYSTEM.

Tellers, your life could be a lot easier! That's why The First National Bank of Boston has installed new IBM behind-the-counter teller equipment at all offices. We're one of the first commercial banks in New England to have it and you can be one of the first to use it.

Here's how it works. An on-line computer gives each teller a direct line to a customer's account, almost instantaneously on a TV screen. It's faster, there's less chance for error and fewer headaches for you.

At the end of the day the special "Electronic Settlement" function speeds cash out procedures. It's more accurate than the old system and saves time. In fact, it's up to 50% faster. So your accounts are settled and you can be on your way home before you know it.

It's just another way we are making teller jobs easier and more efficient. That's why we say, "Being One of The First Has Its Advantages".

Experienced Tellers are invited to call Kathi Murray at (617) 434-2306 to arrange an interview. Or just come right to our Employment Center at 100 Federal Street, Boston, Monday through Friday, from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

12 million boat people

NEW YORK (UPI) — They came, 12 million boat people of Europe, in flight from the terror of the pogrom, the jackboot of the oppressor, to the low-slung chunk of landfill in the harbor of the greatest city in the new homeland.

They were Russian and Irish, Poles and Italians, Lithuanians, Greeks, Germans, Czechs — possessed of the genes and the tongues that were to make America a nation of nations.

In all of their villages and cities in the old country, they had heard of this place in the gray water between New York City and New Jersey, in the shadow of the Statue of Liberty. Ellis Island — they called it the "Isle of Tears."

Ida Herschlag, a girl of 20, the rabbi's daughter from Dembitz, Poland, remembered racing up from her berth in steerage on a cold day in 1921 as the big steamer chugged down the Narrows past the green ridge that was Brooklyn, past the glitter of Manhattan, past the big statue of the lady with the torch.

"Oh, it was so beautiful. Oh, It was so wonderful. The big buildings and all the lights and the bridges," she said. "And the beautiful, beautiful statue. Never had I dreamed of such things, never. Oh my goodness, I was so happy."

But for Mrs. Herschlag and the others in the floodtide of immigrants before the era of the quota, the promise of the new world had to await the 38 questions of the interrogator and the glower of the medical inspector.

The first and second-class passengers, on the presumption that their ability to pay more made them more eligible, were given their landing cards aboard ship.

Only the passengers in steerage — some paid as little as $10 for the passage — were put on the barges to be taken to the island.

They were herded into the baggage room of a red and white brick building where they could check their luggage while the process of becoming an American was begun.

But Michelle Shebanie of the National Park Service, which now has custody of the island, said, "Most people held on to their luggage, what little they had. They were terribly afraid of anybody in a uniform."

The men in the uniforms hung numbered tags around their necks. Then it was up two flights of stairs to the 200-by-100-foot "Great Hall" with its 56-foot arched ceiling where the medical inspectors waited at the end of as many as 20 lines.

"It was like a cattle-run," Ms. Shebanie said.

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

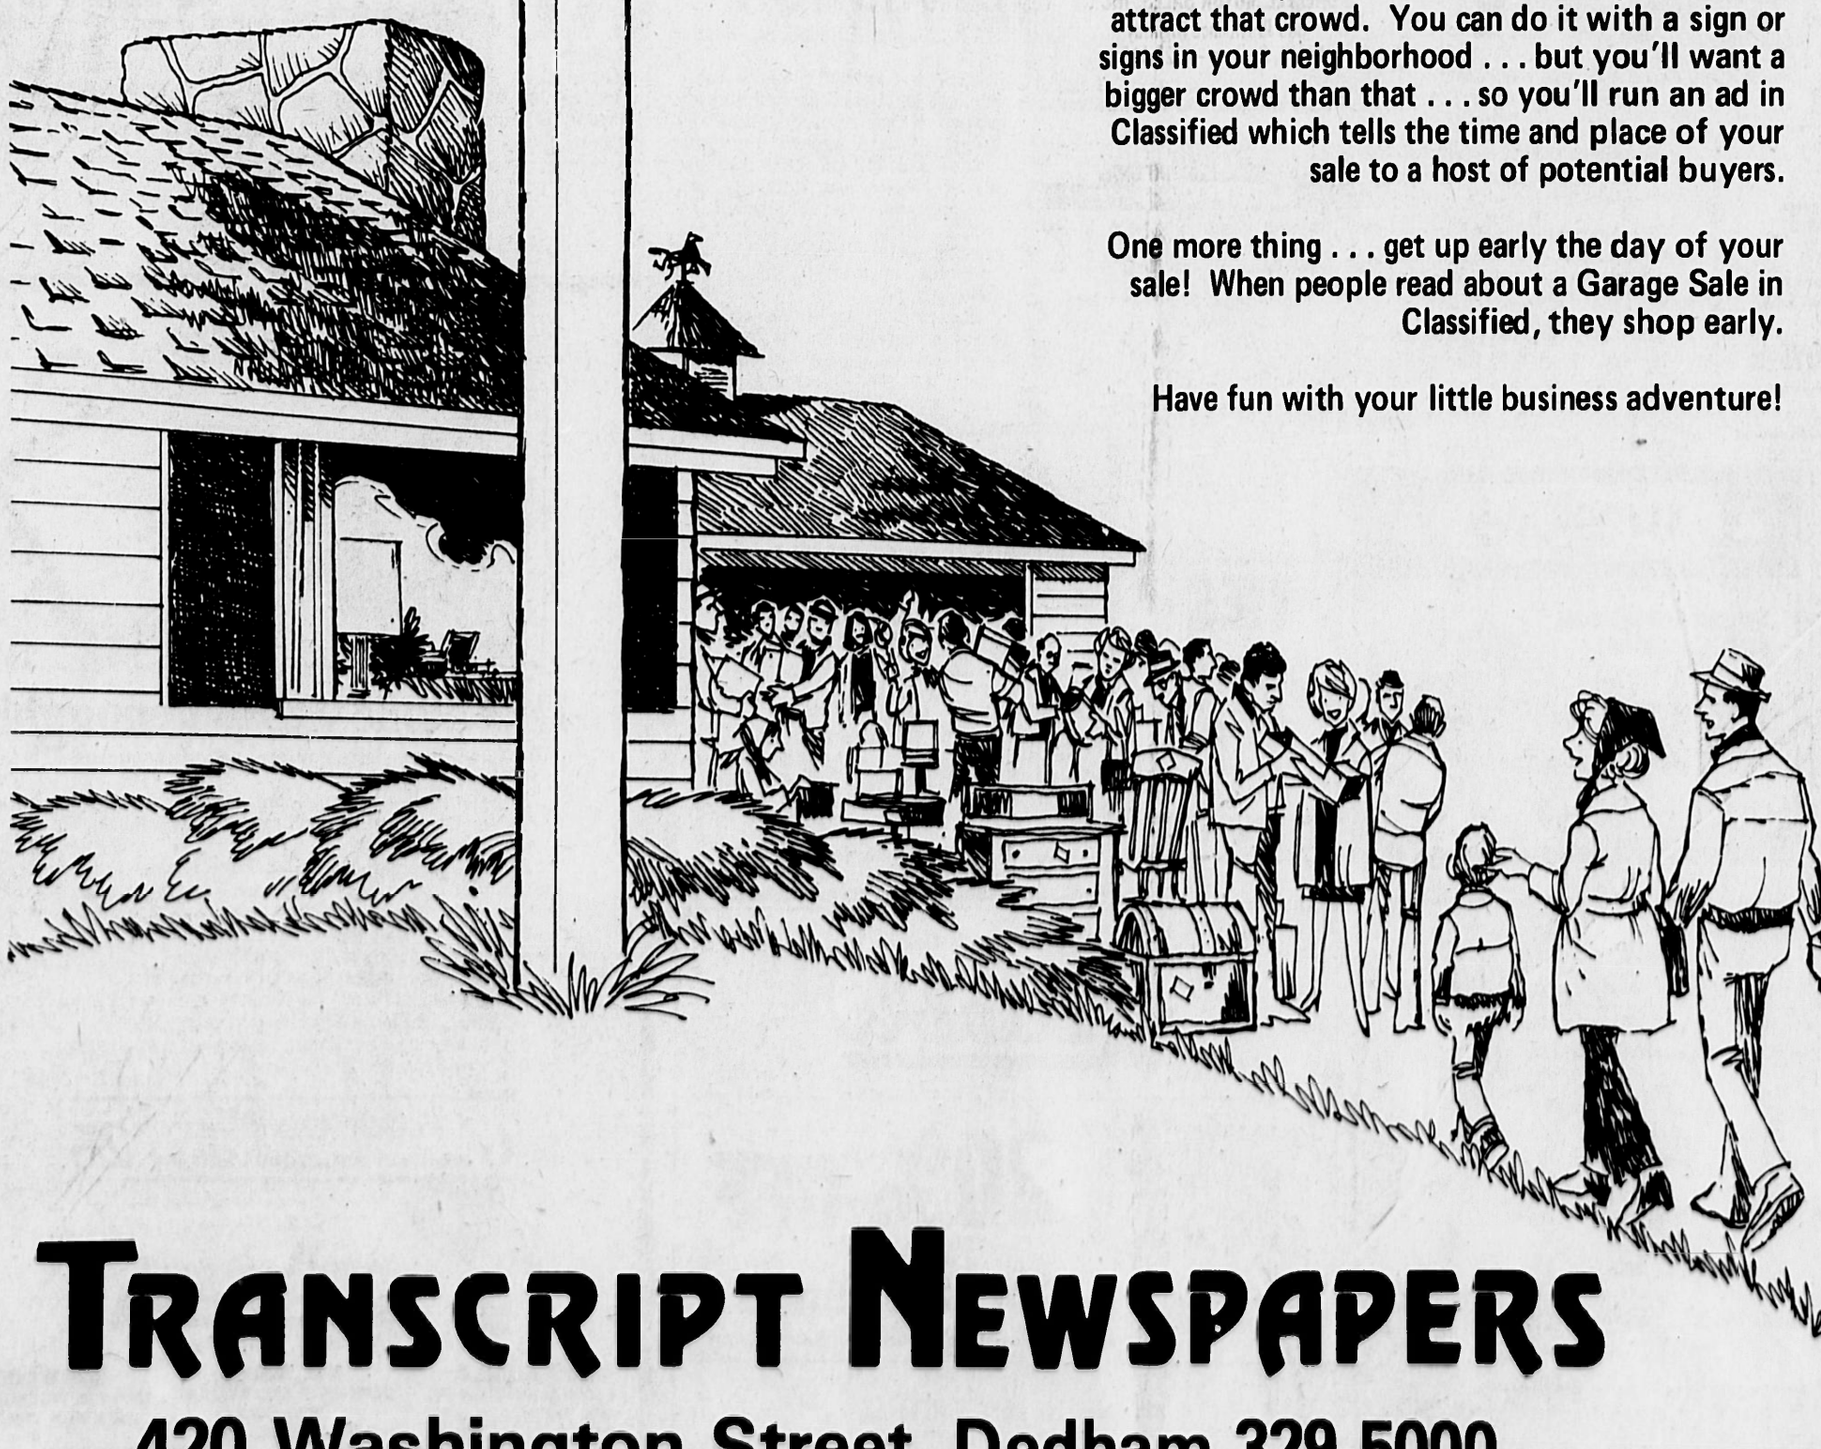

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing . . . get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

NSO to perform 'American in Paris'

NEWTON — The final subscription concert of the Newton Symphony's 1979-80 season features a light, popular program suited for a May evening.

The concert opens with the "William Tell" Overture by Giacomo Rossini. Written in 1829 for Rossini's last opera, this piece has become so well-known that its novel brilliance in orchestration, harmony and concept has become lost to us.

Next on the program, the NSO welcomes its second Celebrated Artist-Master Class celebrity, as flutist Julius Baker joins the orchestra in a performance of Mozart's Concerto in G Major, K.313. Baker is principal flute of the New York Philharmonic and a teacher at the Juilliard School.

Baker will also perform the Concertino for Flute, Strings and Percussion by the president of the Juilliard School, Peter Mennin. This piece was written in the early 1940s while Mennin was a student at the Eastman School of Music. It is characteristic of his early works in its rhythmic exuberance and folk-like harmonies and melodies.

To close the program, NSO Music Director and Conductor Michel Sasson has selected a favorite of American concert music, "An American in Paris" by George Gershwin.

The concert will take place on Sunday, May 4, at 8 p.m. at Meadowbrook Junior High School. On the day of the concert at 1 p.m., Julius Baker will conduct a master class with selected flutists at the All Newton Music School. For tickets and information for both events, call 965-2555.

Newton School Committee turns down state budget cap

NEWTON — The School Committee this week, with some reluctance, unanimously voted to exceed this year's state-mandated budget cap.

Despite its unpopular connotations, the vote was necessary if the Board of Aldermen is to appropriate $184,255 requested by the committee to cover some of the cost incurred as a result of a December fire at Warren Junior High School.

After more than one call to the state's "tax cap hotline," Budget Director James Eagan said, city officials decided the required two-thirds vote to exceed the cap would be necessary, although the city will be reimbursed through insurance for the costs of the fire.

The appropriation will put the budget $34,659 over the cap for this fiscal year. Total budget for the year will be $36,475,343.

The state legislation calls for taxation limits as well as appropriation limits. The Warren appropriation will increase the fiscal year 1981 appropriation limit, but will be charged against the same year's tax levy.

New phone service for legislative information

BOSTON — Call the Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) at 523-2458 to learn about State House actions affecting your community.

MAPC's new 24-hour legislative information service alerts callers to upcoming hearings on bills impacting greater Boston communities and upcoming votes on municipal matters. News about federal and state agnecies also is provided.

The general public and local officials are encouraged to call the phone service. The service supplements "Up on the Hill," MAPC's legislative newsletter. For a free subscription to "Up on the Hill," write MAPC Library, 44 School St., Boston 02108.

MAPC is a regional planning council made up of chief elected and appointed officials from 101 cities and towns, 12 state agency representatives and 21 gubernatorial appointees representing minority and consumer interests. Supported by federal grants and funds from member communities, MAPC works on issues important to the greater Boston region.

Housing, land use, transportation, economic development, water quality, energy, hazardous materials, air quality and solid waste are current target issues of MAPC involvement.

Diet alone was not enough!

"After I stopped smoking, I couldn't believe the amount of weight I was gaining.

I tried to lose weight by joining a weight control group. They gave me a good diet and I got weighed regularly, but something was missing.

Finally, I got smart and joined Gloria Stevens. Not only is the diet good for me, but the exercises that are geared to my body are helping me lose inches while losing pounds.

Now I know what was missing from the other program. It's the support and caring of the technicians.

At Gloria Stevens, caring is an everyday fact.

I see the results every time I look in the mirror. I've lost 25 lbs. already and feel the best I have in years.

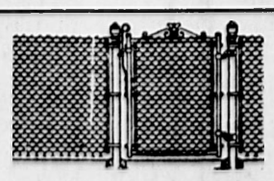

You can try the other programs, but when you're really serious, you'll come to Gloria Stevens."

Florida deposition to be taken for check case

By STEPHEN HARTSHORNE
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Attorneys for Diana Ossinger of West Newton, charged with stealing over $24,000 from her former employer, Newton Mayor Theodore Mann, and the assistant district attorney prosecuting the case will travel to Florida soon to take a deposition from a Largo, Fla. woman who is expected to confirm the fact that Ossinger was in that state Feb. 20, 1979 when one of Mann's paychecks was cashed in Newton.

Ossinger, 39, who served as Mann's personal secretary for seven years, is accused of cashing 58 of his payroll checks which he allegedly gave her to deposit in his credit union account. All of the 58 checks she is accused of stealing were found to have the restrictive endorsement, "For deposit only" written on the back and crossed out.

The check cashed Feb. 20, 1979 was not mentioned in the 44 larceny complaints brought against Ossinger by Newton police, but it too had the restrictive endorsement on the back crossed out.

At a show-cause hearing on the complaints March 19, defense attorney Terry Segal called it "the thirteenth chime of the clock which casts doubt on the other twelve."

At a hearing held in Waltham District Court Tuesday, Judge Kevin Doyle granted Segal's motion to take a deposition from Elizabeth McCann of Largo, Fla., provided the defense pays Assistant District Attorney John Lawlor's expenses. Court rules allow for such depositions under "exceptional circumstances," as long as the defense pays the cost of the deposition, which includes the expenses of a representative of the Commonwealth.

Lawlor opposed the motion, saying, "The circumstances are not exceptional at all. The witness just doesn't want to come."

"I would like the opportunity to cross-examine this witness on the stand. I would like to cross-examine her at the time of trial," he said.

"There are no exceptional circumstances. There is nothing here that couldn't be taken care of by an interstate subpoena."

Ossinger said Tuesday that McCann is employed in a sales job and would lose commissions if she had to come to Newton for the trial.

Lawlor also said that defense attorneys would be able to hire counsel in Florida who would be familiar with court rules there while the Commonwealth would not be able to do so.

Judge Doyle ruled in favor of the motion, citing not only the convenience of the witness, but the convenience of the court. He explained that many trials are continued because witnesses are unavailable.

Judge Doyle also said that the defense's hiring Florida counsel is not likely to have any effect on the trial.

After Judge Doyle's ruling, Lawlor asked that the deposition be taken using videotape. "I feel the finder of fact (the judge who hears the case in district court) and, eventually, the jury should have the benefit of this witness' demeanor," he said.

Segal said that he had no objection to videotaped testimony, but that it is three times as expensive as a

New police overtime policy

By STEPHEN HARTSHORNE
Staff Writer

NEWTON — Two studies of police overtime, conducted by Comptroller Lawrence Marino and by Lt. John Salemme of the Newton Police Department, have resulted in the implementation of several new procedures for recording the hours logged by police officers for court time and regular overtime.

In an April 16 memo to Marino, Mayor Theodore Mann and the Board of Aldermen, Chief William Quinn said he has incorporated Marino's suggestion for recording overtime with recommendations made as a result of Salemme's study of overtime accounts.

A permanent court log book will be kept in the police prosecutor's office, Quinn said, and officers will be required to sign in and out for all court appearances.

Officers will also sign court cards, which will now be consecutively numbered, and these cards must be validated by a superior officer, if the case is in Newton District Court, or by a district attorney in another court.

These cards used to be different for district and superior court appearances.

Quinn said that all bureau commanders are now responsible for seeing that all overtime is recorded on a "master sheet" which is sent to the payroll department.

In an April 16 general order to all bureau commanders, Quinn said, "Overtime will not be paid to officers or civilian employees whose names do not appear on the sheets."

At the suggestion of Marino, the Police Department will develop a computer program to record all extra time worked including daily and weekly overtime, court time and extra detail payments to officers.

Marino suggested the computer program would be "a valuable management tool to the police and would minimize the possibility of clerical error in postings."

Marino also commented on the documents given him by Ald. Richard McGrath in February which prompted his review of police overtime. Those documents included three court cards for officers involved in undercover work in December.

"Regarding the three court cards that prompted my involvement, I have found that they were, indeed,

Cable TV decision in summer

NEWTON — The awarding of the cable TV license will take place this summer, Mayor Theodore Mann said Thursday.

The question of the extra inducements offered by the three companies selected by the mayor's cable TV advisory commission has apparently been resolved to the mayor's satisfaction.

"As long as the extra benefits are used to service the use of cable, in-kind benefits are in order," the mayor said.

The three firms recommended by the commission to the mayor are Continental Cablevision, Warner Amex, and Teleprompter. The mayor will probably select from the three, but may award the license to any of the eight companies that submitted applications.

A final report from the advisory cable commission says that the cable TV licensing process was designed as a competitive process, with the requests for proposals "expressing minimum system characteristics."

The companies not recommended submitted applications "not as competitive," according to the report. The five cable companies were Bay State Cablevision, Rollins Cablevision, Colony Communications, American Television and Communications and Newton Metrovision.

These companies were listed as having various deficiencies, principally limited programing options, vague training proposals for local origination programs, and less local equipment.

The top three had programing capability, the facilities and the financial backing that set them apart, the mayor said.

Continental has offered $1 million over the term of the 15-year license for construction, staffing and equipping a "media center" for cable TV and the library.

Warner Amex has offered $800,000 over the liecense term for the library or other nonprofit cultural endeavor.

Teleprompter would set up a nonprofit foundation funded by 15 percent of its profits for the purpose of improving communications skills. This could amount to $1.5 million over the term of the license, according to Teleprompter.

Fire position questioned

NEWTON — Fire Chief Edward B. Reilly, Jr., says he has a lieutenant he doesn't need, but some aldermen disagree.

A lieutenant is no longer necessary to oversee the department's fire protection bureau, Reilly says. The bureau will be decentralized with more responsibility for station captains.

The Public Safety and Transportation Committee, reviewing the Fire Department budget for the coming fiscal year, has asked the mayor and Reilly to reconsider the decision.

Aldermen on the committee contend the city's fire protection is being weakened for financial reasons. The position will not be eliminated, committee Chairman Mark White said, but following an anticipated retirement, the job will remain vacant.

Included in the proposed budget are upgrades for three lieutenants and a captain' that were originally vetoed by the administration as too costly.

Reilly said he was told he could include the upgrades if he could find a way to stay within Mayor Theodore D. Mann's budget guidelines.

The committee will also recommend that the more than $4,000 in special compensation for the upgrades be cut from the budget.

Still intact is a plan to create a fifth position in the Wires Department. The alarm system has grown, Reilly said. Boxes should be tested and cleaned every 60 days. He said the boxes in Newton are tested once a year.

Alderman Richard McGrath was on of the committee members who objected to elimination of the lieutenant's position. He said "professional fire protection is being weakened because of fiscal decisions."

McGrath said the Police Department was cut by 22 officers a year ago for financial reasons, and that a fire pumper was taken out of service several years ago "not because it's good strategy, but to save money."

Reilly was asked if he would still eliminate the lieutenant's position if the upgrades and the additional wires position were not factors. Reilly said he would; that the workload in fire prevention has shifted, and that the new arrangement will result in a better program.

Alderman Paul Daley also said fire protection is being reduced for financial reasons. He questioned whether assigning fire prevention duties to the

A different sort of tune-up

By STEPHANIE GIBIAN
Staff Writer

NEWTON CORNER— Pamela Emerson has a poster hanging up in her workshop that shows a couple, circa 1890, kissing on top of a piano. The caption underneath the picture reads: "Try this on your piano!"

Pam laughs when she looks at that poster, although smooching atop pianos is one thing she would never condone among her students in her seminar on the grand piano.

"I do have a section in the seminar on what not to do with a piano, though!" she said.

Actually, Pam's seminar, conducted in her Newton Corner home, deals with the mysteries and workings of the inside of the grand piano. In addition to learning about the technical aspects of the instrument, her students also learn how to take care of it.

"One thing I try to get people to acknowledge is that the piano, even though it is a massive thing, is a delicate precision instrument," she said. "The seminar appeals mostly to people who own or want to buy pianos and to serious musicians, but there was one man in the seminar who was a piano mover! I guess he thought that he could really benefit from getting to know the piano a little better."

Although Pam is a tuner and technician, she stressed that she does not give the seminar for the purpose of teaching people how to tune their own pianos. That is something that takes years to learn, she said. Rather, she teaches her students about hammer blows, wippen flanges, regulating screws, and capstan screws, so that they will have a better understanding of the instrument enabling them to recognize a serious problem when it does arise and know what to do about it.

"You really can't just learn to tune a piano at home," she said. "You need a teacher standing over you saying, 'Yes, that's right; no, that's wrong" hundreds of times. Learning to be a piano tuner takes a lot of schooling and a lot of money to back it up."

"The real purpose of my seminar is to teach people to be intelligent as to what the piano is, how it works, and what needs to be done to it from time to time," Pam continued. "I also include a special section on buying pianos. We talk about what they want in terms of their own needs, if they want a second-hand, restored piano, or an upright. There are various options open to anyone who planning on buying a piano."

The complexities of the grand piano are made larger than life (almost) in the "grand action model," a sort of a cross section that shows everything that goes into the working of one key, from the smallest screw to the key itself. The entire piano action contains 12,000 parts, a fact which Pam said never fails to impress her students.

Pam has two such models in her basement workshop which she uses for her seminars, in addition to numerous slides. Understanding "action regulation" can be an in-

Wares Cove dredging tabled

NEWTON — The Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) has tabled the dredging of Wares Cove in Auburndale after more than three years of planning.

Wares Cove, a popular swimming spot as late as the 1950's, has become choked with silt and water lilies. The city has been interested in the dredging because the cove borders Auburndale Park, the most heavily used park in Newton.

MDC Commissioner Linda Plaut, a Newton resident, said the commission supported the project when first proposed at a cost of $50,000. By the time the dredging came before the commissioners it was estimated to cost $240,000.

When the dredging and removal of muck finally went out to bid as a combined contract, there was only one bid for $345,000.

"We had to decide if it was worth it," Mrs. Plaut said. "We said it wasn't. The reasons for doing the cove were not compelling enough."

There were complaints the MDC delayed the project, Mrs. Plaut said, but she added the MDC is very understaffed. "I don't think anyone ever wanted to spend $240,000. I understand people are angry, and I can sympathize with them."

Ward 4 Alderman Carol Ann Shea doesn't think it makes sense to abandon the project. She is the author of a resolution approved by the Board of Aldermen reaffirming its support for the dredging and urging the MDC to begin work this season.

The MDC petitioned the board in August, 1977, for permission to dredge the cove. Permission was granted, and later the city won state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) approval to deposit the muck at the former Rumford Avenue landfill.

Mrs. Shea contends the dredging will greatly increase public enjoyment and use of Wares Cove and will result in greater flood water retention for the Charles River.

The dredging is of particular concern to residents on Islington and Kingswood Roads who raised money to help the city prepare engineering plans.

City Engineer Paul Giunta said after the $345,000 bid last fall, the MDC decided not to award a contract, and revised plans to bring the cost into line. The MDC also had other funding priorities, he said..

Mayor Theodore D. Mann and state Reps. David Mofenson and A. Joseph DeNucci have contacted the MDC, and Giunta hopes the agency will reconsider its decision to table the project.

Rita Barron, executive director of the Charles River Watershed Association (CRWA), said she shares the MDC concern with committing so much money to a although she supported the dredging when single project' it was estimated to cost $50,000.

Mrs. Barron attended the meeting of the MDC commissioners when the dredging was dropped from the agenda, and she said she suggested instead that there be a feasibility study on dredging a number of the coves on the Charles River.

Many of the coves on the river share the silt and vegitation problem, she said, although nearby Auburndale Park has focused attention on Wares Coves.

The coves are not natural water bodies, but marshes into which water at the time of the construction of the Moody Street Dam in Waltham.

There are some possibilities to cut the cost of the project, Mrs. Barron suggested. The MDC requested a single bid for dredging and removal of muck to Rumford Avenue. The time between those two operations may be as much as two years and contractors are unwilling to commit themselves to two-year projects' she said.

If there were two bids, for dredging, then removal, lower costs might be possible.

Last summer when the MDC was looking for suggestions to cut costs, Mrs. Barron suggested construction of a beach at the cove to make the cost more palatable.

She also said Alfred Ferullo, MDC director of the Division of Environmental Quality, would like to use a machine at the cove that can remove deep-rooted pond lilies. If the roots are removed, the sediment may move out of the cove.

The major problem, and cost, is not the dredging but the removal of the muck. If the sediment were left at the cove it would cut the cost, although DEQE has reportedly examined the soil and found it contains heavy metals.

The city has a sewer line that runs across the northern end of the cove that may exacerbate the problem, Mrs. Barron said' and although homes in the area are now sewered, there were cesspools and septic tanks.

Mrs. Barron said she hopes the impasse won't be broken by political pressure, but on the merits of the project.

Davis sale price questioned

NEWTON — The Finance Committee could not come to an agreement on the sale price of the Davis School Thursday night and held the matter over for action on May 1 at 9 p.m.

The committee set a minimum price of $350,000 for the sale of the Carr School for reuse as a private school and added a condition that the community have some use of the building, including the gymnasium. After the Carr School price is approved by the Board of Aldermen, bids will be sought. No firm offers have been made.

Several additions were attached to the sale of the Carr School by the Finance Committee. The school may be reclaimed for a "public purpose" with three years' notice to the purchaser, with the city paying the original sale price plus the cost of capital improvements made by the purchaser.

The city will also have the right of first refusal if the buyer decides to sell the school, with the same repurchase terms. If the buyer sells to anyone other than the city, and the new purchaser pays more than the city would have paid to repurchase, the city would share in the profits. Finally, the sale to another zoning-exempt organization would need the approval of the Board of Aldermen.

Ald. Wendell Bauckman tried to apply the same conditions to the sale of the Davis School and ran into trouble immediately.

The Newton Community Service Centers should not be subject to having to sell the Davis School back to the city at any time, several aldermen believe.

Ald. Robert Tennant said that such a clause, no matter how long the notice might be, would be a severe threat to the NCSC "because they'd have no place to go."

Ald. Donald Budge feels the repurchase clause is unnecessary because there will be one for the Carr School and because the alterations to be made by the NCSC may be so extensive as to make repurchase not worthwhile.

Bauckman still thinks there may be another peopulation explosion of children that will necessitate the reuse of Carr by the city.

Ald. Edward Richmond, chairman of the Finance Committee, want the new purchaser to pay for the outstanding bonded indebtedness on Davis — about $600,000.

He suggested the NCSC pay $200,000 down and pay the rest at $5000 a year for 25 years, then $8000 a year for another 25 years.

This suggestion was unacceptable to everyone else on the committee.

Ald. Donald Budge proposed another arrangement that needs work but came closest to satsfying everyone. His idea would make the total cost about $275,000.

Between meetings, the NCSC will have another go at an installment plan purchase and reconsider the repurchase suggestion.

Newton man wins historical award

John Howard

NEWTON HIGHLANDS — John N. Howard of Newton Highlands has been given a 1980 Preservation Award by the Massachusetts Historical Commission.

The Preservation Awards are given annually by the commission to individuals and groups who have shown a unique concern for the preservation of the Commonwealth's historic and prehistoric resources. Nominations for awards come from local historical commissions, societies, elected officials and others.

'Dr. Howard is the ideal example of a concerned and dedicated preservationist," said Secretary of State Michael Connolly, chairman of the commission. "From personally handcarrying documents to actually living in the endangered Bigelow House, to caring for its surrounding property and to lending a substantial sum of money for the purpose of the Nathaniel Topliff Allen House, Dr. Howard has unselfishly furthered preservation in the city of Newton and the Commonwealth."

Aldermen had problem maintaining a quorum

NEWTON — For a while it was touch and go with getting a quorum of the Board of Aldermen TuesdaY night so that any business at all could be transacted.

There never were more than 15 members present. Some were away on family vacations during the school vacation week; others were attending the Republicans' belated Lincoln Day dinner Tuesday night.

Because zoning changes require 16 affirmative votes by the board, rezoning of land on Chestnut Street, Upper Falls, was held until the next board meeting.

In other Land Use Committee matters, the board approved the conversion of the Bigelow House to five, not four, condominiums; approved construction of two new classrooms at Mount Ida Junior College; approved a free-standing sign and alterations to previously approved plans for Oldco-Greenfield's at 40 Glen Ave., Newton Centre; approved a changed design for the 43-unit Newton Community Development Foundation apartment building for the elderly on Sumner Street, Newton Centre; and held everything else.

Other business included a no-parking-anytime zone on Auburn Street, north side, from Lexington Street 30 feet west; approval of out-of-state travel for the comptroller and city treasurer to Arizona, a non-ERA state (the board's resolution against such travel does not take effect until July 1); an appropriation of $316,675 for unanticipated energy costs; and $75,003 for three used rubbish trucks to be bought from Watertown.

The meeting started late and adjourned at 9:10 p.m., if not a record, close to it.

A get-acquainted party for Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees was held Sunday at the Eliot Church in Newton and these youngsters took time out to frolic on a jungle gym behind the church.The so-called "New Americans" met to socialize and share common problems, according to Jane Merrill, chairman of Mayor Theodore D. Library begins vacation loans

NEWTON — The Newton Free Library has a year round vacation loan policy for Newton residents who can give a specific address where they can be reached by mail. Books can be borrowed for two month periods and during the summer the loan period can be extended to three months, with books always due back on a Wednesday.

With certain exceptions, such as reserve books, rental books, seven day fiction and non-fiction with an imprint of one previous calendar year, and books in constant demand, all library books can be borrowed for this extended period.

Vacation loan privileges are extended to children and children's literature as well as adults. Ask at your nearest library for details of this popular program.

Readers make use of the long-term vacation privileges to develop new leisure time pursuits, to broaden their knowledge in specialized fields, and to keep up with world affairs and cultural activities. Library patrons are invited and encouraged to browse and to request help from the reader's adviser at the Main Library.

Business zone asked for Our Lady's shrine

NEWTON CORNER — A Newton businessman has petitioned the Board of Aldermen for a business zone for the land on Washington Street across from Our Lady's Church that is now occupied by a shrine to the Virgin Mary.

The land is owned by the church, which, along with other Catholic churches, has been told by the Boston Archdiocese to sell unneeded land.

John M. Marshall, whose business is Alumabilt Inc., has petitioned for a Business B district. The land, which backs up to the Turnpike, is now in Private Residence district.

The shrine was started in 1955 by a parishioner who is now 93 years old. Over the years he has maintained it and added to it.

Members of the Newton Corner Advisory Committee are opposed to any more stores on that particular part of Washington Street, one of the few open strips left. The entire parcel contains 29,850 square feet of land.

The committee, whose purpose is to represent the neighborhood in community-development programs, has tried to enlist the aid of the Conservation Commission to keep the land open.

The Conservation Commission will discuss the matter at its meeting Thursday night at 8 p.m. at City Hall' although there seems little the commission can do except recommend that the city acquire the property.

The builder of the shrine has reportedly been offered a space on the church grounds to build a smaller version of the shrine.

Aldermen discover unauthorized position added to police budget

NEWTON — Creation of an unbudgeted position in the Police Department may lead to an overall policy for the city barring mid-year staff changes or salary increases.

The Public Safety and Transportation Committee reviewed the fiscal 1981 police budget Thursday and discovered the position of statitician had been added at a salary of $12,893.

The position does not appear in the current fiscal year budget but was created, filled and funded about eight months ago. Money to fund the new position was taken from a patrol account.

The committee voted to recommend the position be cut, with some aldermen adding Chief William F. Quinn should come back to the Board of Aldermen with a supplemental request as if it were a new position.

Quinn said he had cleared the new position with the executive department and personnel departments, but had not informed aldermen.

City Comptroller Lawrence Marino said he did not know of the position until the police budget was submitted. A new position or an upgrade, he said, would not show up on the weekly payroll.

According to Marino, current city ordinances do not require a department head to come before the board with a new position once the board has approved the department budget for a given year.

Alderman Richard McGrath will propose a rider to the fiscal year 1981 budget that will prohibit a change in the number of employees or a change in any salary without prior approval of the Board of Aldermen. The language of the amendment was suggested by Marino.

Marino said he strongly recommends adoption of staffing ordinances. That is the only way, he said, to prevent changes in positions after a budget is approved.

In other major action, the committee will recommend a cut of $35,000 in salary accounts in anticipation of vacancies. Quinn said the committee should budget in full for the 212 officers on the roster.

The city's Chief Administrative Officer James Hickey argued against the cut. A similar cut has been proposed for the Public Works Department but Hickey said that department can afford to leave positions vacant.

It does take a long time to fill police vacancies, Hickey said, but vacancies also result in increased overtiMe. As a compromise, Hickey suggested putting the $35,000 into a reserve account, because he said the money will be needed.

Marino said historically the department has had four or five vacancies during the year, and he suggested the figure of $35,000. As the economy worsens, Marino said, there may be fewer retirements, but he said if the $35,000 is needed it could be found in other accounts.

The committee also recommended placing about $100,000 earmarked for the purchase of new cruisers into a reserve account, that will block use of the money without aldermanic approval.

The decision hinged on a disagreement over the estimated mileage of the cruisers to be traded. The justification for the appropriation in the budget lists several cars to be traded that will have between 50,000 and 60,000 as of January, 1981. McGrath, and other committee members, questioned whether 1980 models with that mileage should be replaced.

Quinn said the department plans to trade the cars in the worst condition. He said he would not trade a car with 70,000 miles.

Hickey said the explanation provided in the budget was "a dumb mistake, frankly." The request should not have been tied to specific vehicles, he said, adding he has been assured the department never traded a vehicle in that mileage range.

Aid to ease parental stress

NEWTON — Recognizing that special training is needed to help families where child neglect or abuse is suspected, the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health, Region West, recently awarded consultation and education funds to the Intercommunity Homemaker Service of Newton. The grant will be used to train Homemaker-Home Health Aides in the area of Childrens' Protective Services.

By going into homes on a regular basis, Homemaker-Home Health Aides can relieve parents of daily stress contributing to strained relations with their children, and can assist them to better manage their homes.

The training program, to begin in late April, will be conducted by Nancy Hoit of Hingham. Mrs. Hoit is president of the board of directors of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and a trainer of volunteer Parent Aides.

GIVE TO MARCH OF DIMES

Newton to have its own civil service lists, tests

NEWTON — Newton may soon have its own Civil Service examinations and lists of prospective employees.

According to Ald. Robert Tennant, the aldermanic Administration & Planning Committee agrees with Personnel Director Edith Meisser that a new position of Civil Service coordinator would be a good idea.

Besides that, Tennant said, the state has told the city to establish the job and pay for it, too.

The new position appears in the fiscal year 1981 Personnel Department budget at $14,476 salary.

Tennant said the position would allow the city to give its own examinations and maintain its own lists of employees eligible for Civil Service jobs.

The arrangement would allow prompt filling of vacancies in the Police and Fire departments, as well as the regular labor force.

Departments must now wait until state examinations have been given and lists sent to the communities. This procedure has led to long delays in filling vacancies especially in the two public safety departments.

Tennant said Meisser is in favor of the new position and reported that most department heads and the mayor are also in favor of the addition to her department.

Ex-Hamilton students are holding their own

NEWTON — Test results for former Hamilton School students one year after the school closed show no decline in achievement scores.

The study by Dr. Vincent Silluzio, school director of research and planning , is the second look at the effect of school consolidations.

A follow-up study of Memorial students after one year at the consolidated Memorial-Spaulding School found "no evidence to support the often expressed belief that school consolidation has a negative effect on the intellectual development of students," Silluzio said.

Achievement gains of Memorial students either exceeded or eW.ualled gains made the previous year in the unconsolidated Memorial School.

Similar data is available for Hamilton School students who were transferred to Angier or Williams Schools in September, 1978, and the data sum.gests the same result.

Reading and mathematics STEP (Sequential Tests of Educational Progress) test scores, with one exception, show that Hamilton students achieved at levels equal to their classmates in all grades tested at both Angier and Williams after controlling for mental ability and achievement the year before.

Compared to their own previous scores, in 10 of 12 groups tested at Angier and Williams, Hamilton students achieved at significantly higher levels than they had the year before' Silluzio said. Two tests were administered in each of three grades in both schools.

Scores for Hamilton students, before and after consolidation, improved in every instance, except for the mathematics score for the fourth g.rade at Williams School where the score dropped from 93-95 to 89-92.

Indictments expected

Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti is wearing several hats and appears to be a man for all seasons in the investigation by a special blue ribbon commission of alleged corruption in connection with the awarding of state and county building contracts.

He is, of course, the chief law officer of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

By virtue of that position, he is a member of the commission conducting public hearings expected to continue at least for the remainder of the spring.

While sitting with the commission at a public session, he heard testimony about a contribution made to one of his campaigns. He denied any wrongdoing in connection with the contribution, and it appears there was none.

Bellotti is one of the prosecutors to whom the commission may turn over the evidence it obtains when it concludes its deliberations early next summer.

State House documents disclose that Bellotti was one of three sponsors of a resolution calling for the commission.

The other two were Reps. Andrew H. Cord Jr. of Hollbrook, a Republican, and Philip W. Johnston of Marshfield, a Democrat.

Although the wording of the resolve is such as to give the impression that the principal purpose of the commission is to recommend the enactment of new laws to prevent a repetition of the scandals that have marked the awarding of some state and county building contracts in the past, it seems evident that the commission members expect to uncover evidence that will lead to indicments and the prosecution of public officials.

An unusual tactic was employed to compel former state Senator Joseph DiCarlo of Revere, who with former state Senator Ronald Mackenzie, Burlington Republican, served a year in a federal prison for allegedly extorting $40,000 from the MBM Co., to answer questions before the commission.

DiCarlo first was granted immunity by the commission. Then an opinion was obtained from a Supreme Court justice who said in substance, that since DiCarlo had been granted immunity and would not be prosecuted in court, he could not use the Fifth Amendment to decline to answer questions on the ground that he would incriminate himself by doing so.

The Supreme Court jurist declared that DiCarlo could be sent to prison for contempt of court if he refused to answer questions directed at him by commission members or if he failed to answer them honestly.

Although DiCarlo was bitterly angry at the action of members of the state Senate in expelling him from the body after his conviction in federal court on extortion charges, persons close to the former Revere solon assert that he would not have answered the questions of the blue ribbon commission except for the ruling of the Supreme Court justice that he could be sentenced to prison if he refused to do so.

My Turn

One man's run to the Pru

By ANN CARTER

Boston Marathon runner 221 chortled as he sat in our kitchen and read the morning-after stories of the race in the Boston Globe. "I made the headlines!"

Leading a column called Marathon Notebook was a story of the "good samaritan" who sprayed runner "John David Knox" with a cooling stream from a hose so strong that it knocked out his contact lens.

The real "John David" —actually James David—Knox lost not a contact lens but the cap of a tooth, damaged earlier in a hockey qame. The rest of the story was accurate.

He fell to his knees to hunt for it. The crowd helped and someone asked, "is this it?" He handed the small plastic cap to Knox, who pushed the cap back in place after the race.

The important news about Knox lay in the small print listing the time of those who crossed the The finish line. He had hoped to break the 200 category. official results placed him as number 114. Studying the times of those around him, he marveled, "If I hadn't had trouble with the tooth and the cramps, I might have broken the 100!"

The heat bothered him all along the line. He began taking water at the second mile. It gave him intermittent cramps which, at one point, were so painful that they hobbled his running. Mercifully, they suddenly ceased. He ran into the final stretch feeling easy again.

At the last corner, he studied five runners ahead of him, decided to make a "private little race" with them, and passed four in one block.

"I thought the fifth might see my shadow pulling up beside him," Knox said. "I made a sudden lunge so he wouldn't know I was there, and pulled ahead. I was able to see my time on the scoreboard as I crossed the finish line."

This was Knox' eighth marathon, his first in Boston and more interesting and challenging than any other because of the reputation of "the Boston" and the tensions built up by the presence of so many runners.

He plans his race with reason and intelligence. He is 35 years old, and has had the experience of having to drop out of a race. He avoided it this time by months of preparation in Collingwood, Ont., where he lives. Starting last January he ran 75 to 85 miles a week, whatever the weather.

"There's never much time during the day, so I usually run around the neighborhood from 9:30 to 11 every night. Sometimes my wife says, "Do you have to run in this bad weather?", but I think it gave me the stamina to do well, because the heat would have gotten me otherwise."

He laughed. "My shoulders even got sunburned yesterday."

His morning-after breakfast included eggs, bacon and coffee, which he had not allowed himself the day before. Orange and tomato juice, cold cereal with non fat milk and whole wheat toast and jelly qave him the sustenance he needed for running. His high carbohydrate dinner the evening before the race was topped off by a banana before bed, but bedtime was not too early. " I'd only wake up too early in the morning." Besides, he had to a watch the hockey game Sunday evening on TV.

His race preparations were methodical but made with anticipatory joy. He took a short run before dinner Sunday to work out the kinks from the flight from Toronto and the waiting in line for numerals in Boston. .

The morning of the race he donned white running shorts piped in red and embroidered with the owl symbol of the school where he teaches geography. His running shirt bore the initials of the Hamilton, Ont., Athletic Club. Over these he wore layers of outer wear which he could shed as the weather dictated.

Before leaving, he called radio station CKBB in Barrie, ONT., which relay had asked him to some background material for their news coverage of the Marathon. After the race, he called his wife and filled in CKBB on his prowess and impressions, the "pandemonium" at Hynes Auditorium and the tremendous mob of runners.

"They really need to tighten up the rules. There must have been almost 8000 runners if you count those without numerals. They were even peddling false numerals at the back of the crowd."

After the race, he gave up waiting at Hynes for the final results and tried to board the T for Newton. Two cars filled and left before he could get aboard. "People saw my running clothes and talked to me. A woman —she was old enough to be my mother— said I must be tired and gave me her seat."

He managed to spring lightly up the stairs of our house for a shower. By now he could allow himself some beer, which revived him further. He thoroughly enjoyed the TV coverage of the Marathon, pointing out his position and comment ing on his fellow runners. It was hard for him to understand how Rosie Ruiz could have placed first to Jacqueline Gareau's second, when none of the women runners had been aware of Ruiz' passing them.

He found the Boston Marathon a hard course with no stretch where he could "put himself on automatic pilot" and run easily, letting up on the pressure from the crowds of runners and spectators. But he was glad he had run it.

Heartbreak Hill was not a big problem, it has the same gradient as the hill Knox runs on at home. He has been running since he was five, racing other children to school, then, as his running ability emerged, running up the escarpment which divides his home town of Hamilton into two levels. He also plays hockey and enjoys baseball and skiing.

As he headed for the airport to pick up some Boston souvenirs for his children and board the plane for Toronto, he was already wondering how to persuade his school board to allow him time off for the Boston Marathon again next year.

Meanwhile,he'll have the cap properly replaced on his tooth.

Mandatory registration for the draft

By ROBERT DRINAN

WASHINGTON, D.C. — On Tuesday of this week the House was scheduled to consider reinstating mandatory registration for the draft of young men age 19 and 20.

Last fall a similar proposal was soundly defeated in the House of Representatives. Those of us opposed to registration are expecting a much tougher fight this time around. In the fall, the President joined us in opposing registration, but the mood of the country since Iran and the invasion of Afghanistan has made him an advocate of the plan. President Carter says mandatory registration would be a sign of strength to the Soviets. I do not agree.

Does anyone truly believe that if we had draft registration, the Russians would not have invaded Afghanistan? Would the militants in Tehran have acted any differently? Rather than showing unity to our enemies, I believe draft registration will serve to reopen old wounds that divided this nation 10 years ago.

And what is to be gained by this massive expenditure, this tremendous violation of the privacy rights of millions of Americans? Even the Administration admits we would save only seven to 14 days in an emergency. The Selective Service has told the President that all that is needed is a plan for registration, and not registration itself.

Draft registration is a bad idea, but I fear that with the current militaristic mood of the country in an election year, it may possible become law.

Carter's Gas Tax

My Subcommittee on Environment, Energy, and Natural Resources has been hearing testimony on President Carter's proposed fee on imported crude oil and gasoline. The evidence strongly indicates that this 10 cents-a-gallon gasoline tax is not an effective conservation method, and will greatly fuel inflation.

While cutting consumption by only 10 percent, this tax will cost consumers a staggering $10.3 billion! The 100,000 barrels per day that we save would come at a cost of $280 per barrel, adding three-quarters of one percent to the inflation rate.

I also fear that heating-oil users in the Northeast will end up paying more because of this tax. The Department of Energy (DOE) is supposed to ensure that the tax falls on gasoline alone, but DOE's record of inefficiency and lack of concern for consumers makes me doubtful.

This week I joined in cosponsoring legislation to stop the implementation of this tax. Also, in the Energy Subcommittee, I voted to subpoena Energy Secretary Duncan to appear before the subcommittee with documents relating to the tax — documents which the Administration has refused to give us.

Daycare for seniors

Wednesday the House Select Committee on Aging, on which I serve, will hold hearings on the controversial subject of whether or not the federal government should encourage development of adult day care programs.

A recent Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) study indicated that such day care programs may not be a cost effective alternative to nursing homes. However, others disagree. Along with HEW officials, the Aging Committee will hear testimony from Ann Klapfish, director of Adult Health Services in Massachusetts. Ms. Klapfish believes that adult day care is not only more cost effective, it is physically and emotionally better for the senior citizens involved. Massachusetts, with 45 adult day care programs in operation, has been a leader in this area.

I intend to examine the arguments of both sides very closely at the Aging Committee hearing.

Newsroom Searches

Two years ago the Supreme Court ruled that police could conduct surprise searches of a newspaper's offices and files without showing any unlawful activity by the newspaper's employees. I felt that that ruling represented a severe threat to our country's tradition of freedom of the press, and so I introduced the Press Protection Act of 1978.

This week the full Judiciary Committee approved an expanded version of my bill to ban these kinds of unreasonable surprise searches not only in newspaper offices, but in doctor, lawyer and other offices as well.

The Judiciary Committee action is a clear victory for freedom of the press, and for our first and fourth amendment rights. I am confident that the full House will approve this measure, and insure the future of press freedom in the United States.

The cable TV experiment

Boston — Cable television in Massachusets is at the threshold of an expansion and an experiment whose importance has been almost universally missed — and Jeff Forbes is standing guard at that threshold.

His job is to insure that cable television, as it spreads across the Commonwealth, doesn't take subscribers to the cleaners.

This week Forbes takes the first formal steps towards limited deregulation of cable television in Massachusetts.

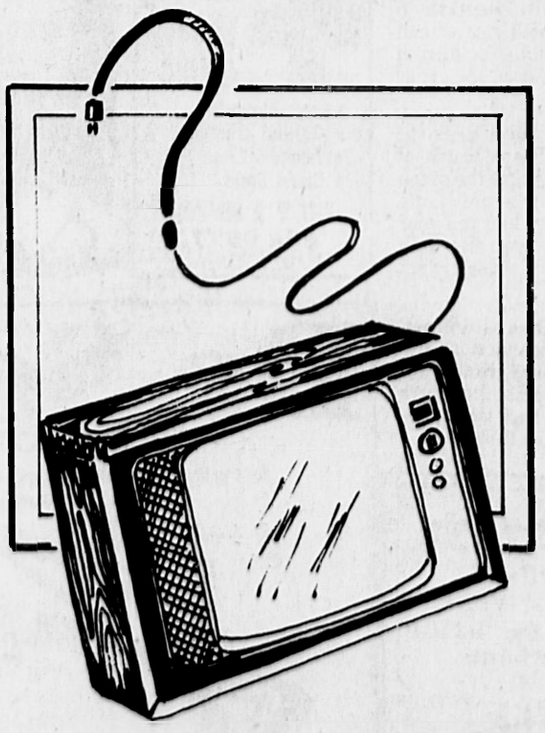

Next to come in short order will be rules for granting local CATV franchises; rules governing crossownership of cable systems by newspapers in their circulation area; criteria for deciding whether sufficient alternative television competition exists in a given area to warrant suspending governmental rate regulation.

Thirty-eight-year-old Forbes doesn't mind biting bullets. Leaning back expansively in his chair one rec ent afternoon, putting his feet up against the desk, running his hands through his dark hair as if to consolidate his thoughts, he talks of breaking new ground.

"There's a long and grand tradition of government activism in this state," he begins, trying to put his initiatives in perspective, "but I believe the marketplace, not government intervention, is the best way to set rates and protect consumers from price gouging. Why can't things be done in a different fashion? Why follow the rote rules of earlier regulatory philosophy in the common carrier field? There are times in life when an assertive frontal assault is needed to do what is necessary."

As a Republican, Forbes cut his political teeth as administrative aide to former House minority leader Frank Hatch. Then for eight years he was executive director to seven part-time members of the Massachusetts Community Antenna Television Commission. Last year he MCATC was re-organized by statute into a single-member full-time commissioner. "Because he's good at the job," Gov. Edward King named Forbes to the $26,500 job and gave him a lean and able 10-member staff.

The legislature and the Governor also gave Forbes the discretion to suspend cable television rate regulations in any areas where he determined that adequate competitive TV programming was available.

Forbes and Co. soon mapped out procedures to insure that every step in the arcane process of local franchise-granting would be open to public scrutiny. Doomed for good were the days when fast-buck speculators nailed down a franchise by romancing local selectmen and offering outrageous in-kind services — would you believe, building a new fire station? — to sweeten the franchise deal. Today, there are public hearings at every step of the way. Local officials must explain in writing why they grant a franchise and why losing applicants are rejected.

Today cable television is operating i;n 85 Massachusetts communities. Six more are under construction; a hundred applications are awaiting approval. Lured by the potential bonanza, scores of large and small corporations are springing up every week to get in position to apply for a franchise. Some may even be straws for big national conglomerates using what one insider calls the "rent a citizen" approach to achieve local viability.

Looking 24 to 36 months ahead, Forbes sees a two- to three-fold growth in cable television hookups, from today's 300,000 subscribers to tomorrow's 750,000. Ultimately, as this technological revolution spreads and as energy-conscious consumers demand their entertainment smorgasbord without ever touching the accelerator pedal, there may be near-saturation of the state's 1.8 million homes.

Notices go out this week for a 10 a.m. pubilic hearing in Boston's Faneuil Hall on May 12 to get comments on the detegulation proposal. Next day comes Amherst, then Pittsfield on the 14th and Barnstable on the 16th. After two weeks of review, Forbes and staff will issue formal binding rules and begin to apply them statewide.

Forbes is convinced cable system operators are not stupid enough, by charging too much, to kill the goose that lays those golden eggs. "They could blow it if they overdo it," he hints offhandedly. And given the openness required throughout the decision-making process, local citizens can be assured, he says, that politically-wired operators won't get the inside track on a franchise, then milk it unmercifully.

"I'm confident, by and large, in the due process fairness the procedure afford all applicants," he declares.

Nationally, only California has moved to deregulate cable TV and that was last year, by statute, not by administrative decree as here. In the Golden State's limited experience, it seems rates changed little if at all.

Subscribers will always have the option, Forbes points out, if rates get excessive or if the economy continues to squeeze family budgets, of cancelling their cable contract and going back to the old rotor antenna or rabbit ears to bring in the big three networks and a couple of local independents. Or they can toy with the new technology of direct home programming via satellite, a system that leapfrongs over costly cable connections.

In the lst analysis, if his faith in competition is misplaced or if unscrupulous cable operators exploit their franchise for all it's worth, Commissioner Forbes has the authority to step in, revoke any franchise and go back to Square One, to the "grand tradition of government regulation."

Not only will Massachusetts subscribers be watching the outcome of this experiment in the marketplace; so too will cable television owners and subscribers throughout New England and the country.

Opinions

A unique farewell

To the Editor:

Through the centuries the dictionary has held that the adjective "unique" applies exclusively to any thing or any creature that is the only one of its kind in existence.

Now, in the press, on TV and in ordinary conversation we have, would you believe it, a bizarre contradiction —degrees of uniqueness.

There is "very unique" — more one of a kind than just one of a kind. There is "somewhat unique" — partly one of a kind. There is "a little unique" — a little, just a bit of unique.

For ages "unique" has been a unique word. It stood in lofty, solitary grandeur among over a half million other words.

But general debasement is a way of life in America, so it is not so surprising that many words of the magnificient mother tongue have degenerated into moronic, meaningless things.

Affordable day care

To the Editor:

While it is obviously expressed through the media that the profile of working women has indeed sparked many changes in American life style, our community is yet unaware or indifferent to a serious need, i.e. affordable, accessible, and highly adequate day care and after school care for the children of working people.

The upcoming elementary school consolidations have made compulsory the dissolution of the early morning day care for kindergarten children of the Horace Mann school, and the very commendable Plowshares day care program at the Franklin school (which will not be permitted relocation in the Cabot school). There are at least 50 families affected by these changes, most of whom do not know where their children will find day care for the summer or September.

I will begin my eighth teaching year in the Newton schools this September and have two children aged 10 and 4.

I work with tremendous satisfaction, fulfillment, and financial need. It has not been easy to find really good child care without paying close to half of my year's salary (very little of which, surprisingly to most, is tax deductible).

At last, I have found a program of child care whose philosophy is actually a working element, a program that does take time for each individual child's needs. As an objective observer, the Plowshares program has given the words "day care" new dignity and a professional dedication to children that is paralled by its very fine and caring staff.

As a parent of a child in the program, I am secure when I go to work in the morning and am constantly reassured of my child's security at Plowshares by the smiling face he displays and wealth of experiences he relates to me.

Plowshares is an intensely caring program and serves a section of the city that would otherwise have little or no provision for fine child care at rates affordable to average income families and single parents.

Because of lack of space or reasons unknown, Plowshares has been refused a relocation and merging with the Cabot school day care program; it has been refused relocation at Davis school, and as yet has no place to go. I am angry! Relocation outside this area means transportation costs and higher day care rates and for most of us involved — a tremendous financial burden.

Affordable, comprehensive day care is a real need that will not decrease. In fact the need grows greater every year as economic demands grow greater. Newton recognizes the needs of housing the elderly and relocating the Newton Community Service Center. Why can't we deal realistically with the current and future needs of workinq parents?

Marie White,
Auburndale

You can't win

To the Editor:

Sometimes you can't win . . .

We have been told to conserve gasoline. It doesn't take patriotism to reduce my driving. The increased price of gas has contributed to making me more conscious of ways to eliminate trips in my car. Now the news reports seem to indicate that I've been too good.

Reports have filtered into the news media that there is so much gasoline available now that dealers are being told to reduce prices (a few cents but still a reduction) and increase hours. My question is where is all this gasoline coming from? What is going to happen this summer? All of a sudden just when I want to get in my car and go to the Cape, gas lines will reappear and we'll be told that we should slow down our consumption.

The President says "stop borrowing and inflation will go away." I'm willing to give it a try. When State Street Bank informed me that they were about to charge a $10 "membership fee" I cut up my VISA and told them I'd had enough.

Yesterday I received a form letter saying that I should give them another chance. To get me to take the card back the now says they'll rebate my fee if I cancel a new card they want to send me prior to the expiration thereof.

What gives? I thought those guys were crying poverty up at Beacon Hill saying this was not a profitable enterprise. If the bank is losing money they're sure trying real hard to lose more money. Could it be that they really aren't losing all the money they alleged a few short weeks ago?

I say "keep your card State Street Bank. Maybe the other financial institutions here in the Bay State will think twice before they attempt to institute a membership charge."

To the oil companies I say "hold onto that gasoline for a few months. I'll be ready to take a larger ration during the summer. Don't try and manipulate me by pushing the gas now. Just when I back in the habit of enjoying my car again, you'll push those prices even higher and point to your storage there saying just isn't enough to go around."

Happy Earth Week

To the Editor:

Is Earth Day — Earth Week still relevant? Is the environmental movement still alive and well? The answer to both questions is a resounding "yes."

Ten years ago thousands of citizens made speeches, led marches, conducted teach-ins, ran clean-ups, and even buried automobiles to call attention to the fact that we are ruining the life support system on which we are all ultimately and completely dependent.

During these past 10 years, many environmental goals have been institutionalized: government laws and programs have been designed for environmental protection, citizen organizations . are working steadily within the system to protect people from natural resource degradation, and there is a growing understanding by the general public that there is a connection between our treatment of our natural resource base and our own personal health and well-being. The Charles River Watershed Association has been deeply involved in all three areas of environmental action and education.

This year's Earth Day national focus is on community-based activities. CRWA's contribution to Earth Day 80 and the second environmental decade is promotion of our Adopt-A-Brook program, an unusual opportunity for varied community interests to work together on a coordinated program in their own watershed.

The objectives are to provide a measure of local care and control over the 80 brooks that are tributary to the Charles River while introducing the adopting groups to the principles of watershed management and local decision making. A descriptive flyer and some simple guidelines are available from CRWA on request.

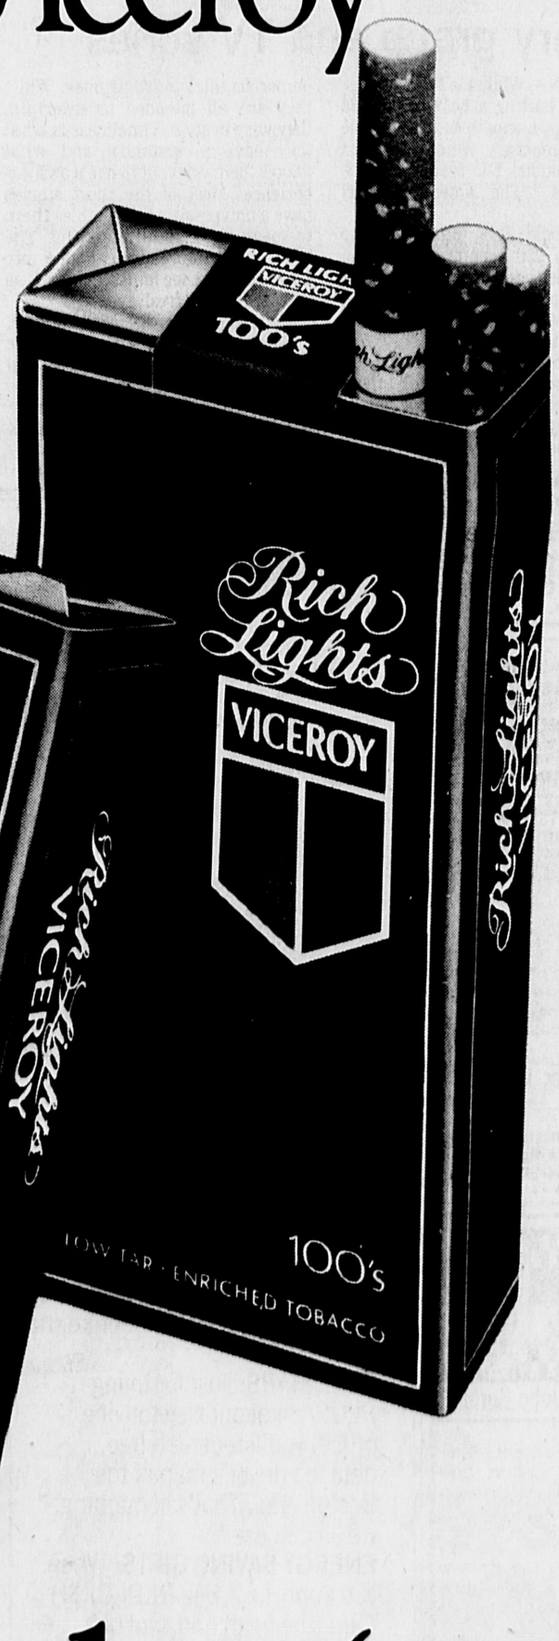

The observance of Earth Day's tenth anniversary and the development of an environmental agenda for the next ten years were the focus for a four-day Environmental Decade Conference sponsored by the Conservation Foundation in Colorado recently. As CRWA's executive director I was privileged to be asked to participate.

Because of the magnitude of the issues discussed and the shared concern for national environmental and economic health in the years ahead, a full report of the conference and its conclusions is being prepared by CRWA for its members. We welcome requests for copies from other interested citizens in the watershed as well.

While the Charles River Watershed Association, now in its fifteenth year, is dedicated primarily to the protection and sound management of our river and its drainage area, we recognize our responsibility to the larger picture. After all, the Charles can only be as healthy and beautiful as the world around it and surely we are all an integral part of both the small and the larger world. CRWA salutes the environmental movement in its maturity and encourages every citizen to keep plugging. There really is heartening progress. Happy Earth Week!

Rita Barron,
Executive Director
Watershed Association

Sculpture, crochet, pysanka on display at Main Library

NEWTON — Selected examples of stone sculpture, needlepoint, quilting, crocheting, stained glass, and decorated pysanka, (eggs) by faculty and students in Newton's Arts in the Parks program are featured in the glass cases at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, through May 4.

According to Linda Plaut, director of Arts in the Parks, and Kathryn Miles, assistant director, the instructors and students selected works which represent the best from each class.

A miniature piano with a bench, Hebrew letters, a little girl wearing a bonnet who sprinkles flowers with a watering can, a mirror framed by a peacock, and a clock, make up the stained glass display, which includes works by instructor Nancy Golden, and the students Tom and Cleo Gradja, Evelyn Roberts, and Helen Clare.

Instructor Betty Feinstein included a large framed needlepoint design, "The Frayed Edge." Rowena Fisher made a Japanese kimono, which is hand-embroidered and embellished with hand-crafted beads and antique crocheted lace. She also included a crocheted vest made with needlepoint yarn. Cindy Rubin's crocheted work is also on display. Quilting instructor Nancy Halpern selected a doll's quilt with a night scene that features a full moon. Tania D'Avignon displays hand-painted Easter eggs.

Adrienne Lowenthal is exhibiting stone sculpture. With the exception of one lone female figure, her small sculptures consist of several figures, adults and children, crafted from a single piece of stone.

Arts in the Parks offers programs for all ages including courses in music, arts, crafts, and yoga. Arts in the Parks also coordinates trips to the Symphony and to museums, sponsors performances, and in the summer, offers many outdoor programs.

Main library hours are Monday-Thursday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Fridays 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturdays 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sundays 1 to 5 p.m. The library will be closed Monday April 21, Patriot's Day.

Cable TV

All three will provide special portable equipment, dual 52-channel residential and institutional networks, a choice of three levels of service, studio and mobile facilities beyond those required by the request for proposals, and "rates which appear reasonable," according to the commission's report.

One of the firms not recommended by the commission, Newton MetroVision, deliberately did not include any of the extra inducements, according to Metrovision President James Salter, and may raise legal questions on their propriety.

Salter said he feels the so-called in-kind benefits are "inappropriate, illegal and immoral."

If the license is awarded this summer, cable TV should be a reality in Newton in 1981.

The service rates offered by the three recommended firms are all around $7 and $8 dollars a month for the basic service, with fewer channels at lower prices and special entertainment channels at extra cost.

Subscribing to cable TV is optional.

Library group and TV series

NEWTON — While the Newton Free Library is hosting a book discussion group twice a month to discuss the best contemporary American short stories, Channel 2 is featuring a 13-part series, "The American Short Story."

The Newton Free Library group focuses on 20th century American short stories, while the Channel 2 series includes stories written during the 200 year period of American literary history.

The Newton Free Library book group chooses stories for their literary merit, entertainment potential, and psychological and social insights. The stories range from humorous tales to tragic ones. While they are all intended to entertain, they vary in style. Timeliness is what they have in common, and what makes them relevant to one's own experience. Most of the short stories have a universality that enables them to speak to different situations. The hope is that the reader can step into the drama and see himself, as well as the story, with a fresh eye.

Elizabeth Teitel, discussion leader, welcomes interested people. The group will meet Monday, April 28, and Monday, May 5 at 7:15 p.m. at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner. For more information call 552-7145.

CAR Talk
by John Borelli

There is a difference between car polish, sometimes called cleaner or pre-waxer, and wax. polish removes oxidized particles of pigment from the surface and exposes the paint beneath while leaving a film on top to make the paint shine. Wax applies a protective coat over the finish to maintain its brilliance and guard it from deterioration. There is also a wide variety of combination, or one-step polishes and waxes in liquids, pastes, gels (or pre-softened pastes) and spray foams. Most experts say that a body polish followed by a coat of hard paste wax gives the best protection.

Protection is important when it comes to the xpensive automobiles of today. It is a fact that vehicles adequately protected by a reliable alarm system are less likely to be stolen than unprotected ones. NEWTON CAR RADIO, 873 Walnut St., Newton Centre, offers the sales and installation of auto alarms whose quality is recognized to the extent that your insurance premiums may be reduced. valuable asset to the pianist, because it teaches him just what a precision instrument a piano really is.

"It is a very complicated system of levers and ratios. We go through a lot of action regulation specifications," said Pam. "For example, the basis of good regulation is even key level. A pianist depends on perfect alignment of parts and consistent quality of materials. One of the things that people can learn to check themselves is whether the hammers are properly spaced, if they are the proper distnace away from the strings."

Pam also teaches her students how to be wary of poor workmanship, and she shows many slides demonstrating the difference between careful and sloppy work.

"This business is a lot like the used car business," she said. "There are a lot of poorly trained people around who call themselves piano technicians, yet who leave a trail of serious mistakes. There are a whole lot of unscrupulous sellers and rebuilders around. You have to learn to be careful. The best way to find a good piano technician is to ask a piano player."

Pam got started in the piano tuning business when she inherited an 1893 Steinway from her grandmother. She had been a music major at the University of California at Santa Barbara, so she knew that the piano was in "horrible shape."

"One day, I thought to myself, 'Ah, ha! I can fix this myself!'" she recalled. So she enrolled in the New England School of Stringed Keyboard Instrument Technology, studying under William Garlick. She completed her training in 1972 and went to work at M. Steinert and Sons as a tuner and technician.

"I remember thinking that it was sort of a 'Eureka! This is what I'm going to do!" she said. "After that I was hired as the principal tuner and technician at the Boston University School of Music. While I was there I noticed that the piano majors didn't seem to know anything about their instruments. So, my fourth year there I conducted a grand piano seminar for graduate piano majors and I discovered that they were very enthusiastic about it."

Since her departure from B.U. in 1977, Pam has been an independent tuner and technician in the Boston area. She is married to independent film producer Austin Lamont, who is president of the Boston Film-Video Foundation. Her two children from a previous marriage, Rapheal and Michael, live with Austin and Pam in their Newton Corner home.

stations will improve the program.

Daley mentioned the removal of two pumpers from service in recent years and said "Many people feel anything less than what we have now is not sufficient."

One of those pumpers, Engine 5, was periodically taken out of service as a way to cut down on overtime payments required by minimum manning clauses in the firefighters' contract with the city.

Reilly said the engine will stay in service under a new contract because the department will have some flexibility in manning.

Although the position will remain on the books, it will not be filled, and Alderman James Miller believes that may be a violation of city ordinances that give the mayor and the Board of Aldermen the authority to determine the compliment of the Fire Department.

Former City Solicitor Howard Levine was of the opinion the executive and legislative branches of government determined the number of men in the department, but that only the mayor had the power to fund a position.

Chairman White said that the board can reduce a budget, but cannot increase a budget, and that once a budget is approved the mayor has the authority to determine how the money will be spent.

Overtime

honestly misdated. However, I have also found that the charging of the time worked to 'court time' was not properly done," Marino said.

"Only a small portion of time was spent in court that day. In fact, some officers were not in court at all that day, but were writing reports in the station."

Quinn said he has instructed all bureau commanders "that officers' activities pertaining to investigations and stakeouts which ultimately lead to arrests and subsequent court appearances must be carefully scrutinized to ensure that payments for such activities are paid through the appropriate accounts."

All overtime is authorized by the bureau commanders, except in the Patrol Bureau, where the responsibility has been given to the patrol lieutenants.

"It is difficult to ensure an equitable distribution of overtime when, in many cases, the vacancy which requires the use of overtime occurs at the last minute when an officer reports off sick," Quinn said. "However, the patrol lieutenants do attempt to keep the distribution as equitable as possible under these conditions."

"The patrol lieutenants have notified all officers that if they feel they have been overlooked to come to them and let them know about it and an adjustment will be made."

stenographic deposition.

Judge Doyle ruled that videotaped testimony would be acceptable, but he said the cost of the video equipment should be paid by the prosecution.

Lawlor said after the hearing that he has not yet decided whether to videotape McCann's testimony.

The significance of the Feb. 20, 1979 check was brought out at the show-cause hearing March 19. At that hearing Det. Sgt. Gerald Lawrence testified that that check had the restrictive endorsement crossed out, but that it was not mentioned in the larceny complaints because, "The mayor could have cashed that check himself."

At that same hearing Segal asked Mann whether he had ever crossed out the restrictive endorsement on a check and cashed it.

"I could have done it," Mann said. "I have no specific recollection of doing it."

When asked whether he might have crossed out restrictive endorsements more than once, Mann replied, "Not 44 times."

At the hearing in Waltham Tuesday, Judge Doyle also granted a prosecution motion to have the defense make available records of all Ossinger's bank accounts and a defense motion requesting ledgers from the treasurer's office where the checks were allegedly cashed.

"Seven years ago I decided my body could use some toning up, even though I've never been what you might consider overweight.
I did some serious checking into various salons and programs to find exactly what I was looking for. There were many to choose from, but only a few of them are still around.
I wanted convenience, as my time is very important to me. I wanted service, not just promises; and I wanted results. Basically, I was in good shape. I wanted to get in better shape and stay that way.
Seven years ago I found Gloria Stevens. I've never been disappointed.
Gloria Stevens just keeps getting better and better. And so do I!!"

Police Report

Auburndale store robbed at gunpoint

NEWTON — The Cumberland Farms store at 345 Auburn St. was robbed of $1,320 Tuesday evening by two men who forced the manager, a clerk and a customer into the bathroom and fled.

Police say two men entered the store around 5:30 p.m. when the manager was counting the day's receipts. One of the men stood by the door and the other approached the counter and said, "All of it."

The manager asked if the man wanted the change, and he replied, "Just the bills." According to police the man by the counter was holding what appeared to be a .38 calibre snub-nosed revolver.

The man then ordered the manager, a clerk and a customer into the bathroom and told them to wait there for ten minutes. In about four minutes the manager came out and called police.

The man with the gun is described as between five feet, eight and five feet, ten inches tall, medium build, with shoulder-length black hair and a mustache, wearing a red plaid shirt, dungarees and boots.

The lookout is described as six feet tall, medium build, with shoulder length blond hair and a small beard on his chin, wearing a brown striped shirt and jeans.

While checking the Auburndale area for robbery suspects, Officer Thomas Frost found two men who reportedly matched the descriptions of the suspects.

Frost searched the two men and found a hypodermic needle and syringe on one of them. In the car, he found a teaspoon with a yellow residue and assorted pills.

Kevin Mahoney, 24, of 45 Prairie Ave. was arrested for possession of a Class B controlled substance and possession of a hypodermic needle and syringe.

Police say Mahoney and the other man in the van were not connected with the robbery.

Silverware, jewelry and two television sets were stolen from a Dedham Street home between 3:30 and 4:15 p.m. Tuesday. Police say entrance was gained through an unlocked front door.

A service station on Watertown Street was burglarized Monday night and 17 inspection stickers were stolen. Police say the Adams Atlantic Station was entered after 5 p.m. Monday night by breaking glass in the front door.

Thieves broke into a Highland Avenue home Monday night by breaking glass in the front door with a rock. Stolen were silverware and jewelry.

Silverware and jewelry were also stolen from a Dexter Road home over the weekend. Police say entrance was gained by kicking in a cellar door.

A Lindbergh Avenue home was entered Sunday by slashing a rear screen door. Taken was $135 in cash.

A Webster Street home was entered in an unknown manner Saturday night and a color television, a gold watch and two cameras with four lenses were stolen.

Legislators want positions restored to Newton budget

NEWTON — Reps. David J. Mofenson, David B. Cohen and A. Joseph DeNucci, along with Sen. Jack H. Backman have called on Mayor Theodore Mann to restore a target area social worker and two resource mobilization senior citizen social workers, who are to be dropped from the City's Human Services Department because of federal funding cuts.

According to the legislators, Mayor Mann has deleted from the FY81 budget $38,000 needed to pay the three people who serve some 500 families annually, as well as an additional 1000 seniors in Newton. The target area social worker terminates on April 25 and the two social workers dealing with seniors terminate in June.

Rep. Mofenson said, "I hope the mayor will reverse his decision and insert this $38,000 into the budget. To do otherwise leaves families and seniors near helpless victims of a budget process more concerned with items such as street planning than with human needs. Attempts to help these individuals will fall to agencies whose already overburdened staff cannot provide the personal and innovative outreach services they need."

Rep. Cohen said, "This is a prime example of municipal government being penny-wise and pound-foolish. In the long run, it will cost the city more to meet new problems arising from service cutoffs than to pay for the persons now working to provide needed family and elderly support services. In a time when the federal government is making unconscionable cuts in human service programs, it becomes important for the city to maintain those advocacy programs that provide and coordinate needed services. These three persons, I believe, are cost-efficient and in the long run may save Newton many times the salary they receive."

Rep. DeNucci said, "How many times must we see those people in our city who most need help be asked to bear the burden of service reduction policies by the mayor and his advisors? If money needs to be cut, it should not be from the already slim Human Services Department budget. I call upon Mayor Mann to reverse this decision in that it represents an insensitive ordering of priorities, and to insert the money necessary for the continued funding of these three vital community workers."

Sen. Backman said, "It would be unfortunate if the city of Newton, which has been a leader in providing outreach to families in need and to senior citizens, should now cut back this excellent program by discharging dedicated, needed personnel who previously have been paid through federal funding."

Housing rehab program taking new applications

NEWTON — The Newton Housing Rehabilitation Fund, a Community Development activity, will begin its sixth period of application taking May 5.

The new application period will end May 30, 1980. Homeowners are invited to call the Newton Housing Rehabilitation Office at 552-7140 and make an appointment with the staff to discuss their request. The NHRF program is described in the brochure entitled "Newton Housing Rehabilitation Fund—We're Here to Help," available to all interested persons.

The brochure includes a map showing each eligible area — Newton Corner, West Newton, Nonantum, Auburndale, Newtonville, Upper Falls, Lower Falls, Newton Highlands and Thompsonville. The brochure also describes the eligibility requirements and the types of financial assistance available.

Depending upon an applicant's financial condition and the types of repairs proposed, a homeowner may receive one of two types of assistance:

1. A direct grant of up to $6000 to correct conditions dangerous to health and safety (the grant is available only to very-low-income homeowners).

2. An interest-reduction payment to reduce the interest on a loan from a local bank to 3 percent.

At present, work has been completed or is under way on over 300 homes. More than $900,000 has been spent.

The staff will be pleased to take applications and to answer questions about the Newton Housing Rehabilitation Fund and to assist residents in dealing with problems related to home improvement work and home improvement financing.

"WHEN IT COMES TO ESTATE ADMINISTRATION SERVICES, YOU CAN DEPEND ON US."

Frederick W. White
Vice President

Choosing the right executor is one of the most critical steps in planning your estate. The wrong choice can result in delay in settlement and in increased expense.

That's where we can help.

Shawmut offers complete estate settlement service when we are named as executor or when we are asked to settle the estate as agent for the executor named in the will.

We have the experience in investments, in record keeping and tax return preparation to insure the selection of the most efficient and least costly ways of settling an estate.

Making your plans happen is our objective. If you want to learn more about how we can be helpful in matters involving estate settlement, call or write Frederick W. White, Vice President, at 292-2650.

IN FOCUS

They want to light up your life

By DOROTHY HINES
In Focus Editor

When members of the Boston Youth Theater hit the boards on April 30 in the two-year-old dramatic company's production of "I Am Boston," they hope to do for Mrs. Sherman and her pig what Longfellow did for Paul Revere.

With a little public relations attention from the original comedy, the young thespians anticipate putting the "little people" of the Colonial era on the historical map.

Explains Newton's Meg Sewell, who will portray Mrs. Sherman, "I Am Boston" spotlights little known Colonials who, also, aided in making the city and state what it is today.

"Believe it or not," exclaims the Newton High South senior, "Mrs. Sherman and her lost pig led to litigation which resulted in Massachusetts' bicameral form of government."

And the theater company's salute to Boston's 350th birthday is jam-packed with other delightful historical anecdotes.

"I Am Boston" is the third production of BYT, which is dedicated to providing professional opportunities for Greater Bostonians, age 15 to 24.

The drama organization springs from the desire of two Boston women to create a place where budding actors can continue to practice and perfect their craft.

Artistic director, Elaine Koury, and production manager, Loretta Chmura, both former faculty members at Boston's English High , love theater and working with kids.

Mrs. Chmura details that the women saw "so much really good talent going through the schools," and were aware of how few opportunities existed for the 15 to 24 age group, who were too old for children's theater and not ready to compete with seasoned professionals.

"Many school systems teach theater arts," continues the production manager, "but there was no transition vehicle to take the maturing artists through their growing years."

When she and Meg Sewell stop to chat briefly about the upcoming production, their enthusiasm and affection for the nascent BYT is contagious.

Mrs. Chmura recalls with awe all that went into a year of preplanning, before incorporating the non-profit theater group in 1978.

She lauds the many professionals who provide service in kind—the law firm, board of directors and many others already working in the performing arts.

Needhamite Len Schnabel, a teacher of design and technical theater and head of dramatic arts at English High was hooked in early on.

Loretta Chmura of Roslindale

He knew Elaine Koury from teaching and admits to delight at "giving some incredibly talented kids an opportunity to shine."

And it's not only the actors and actresses— the productions of BYT offer a chance for his high school students to gain "hands on" experience.

He's quick to point out that there's always a larger backup crew than cast on stage.

The professional lighting designer,with some husbandly pride, describes the creative contribution of his wife, sculptress Amy Robison, who was called up to provide set design for last year's , "Night Excursions."

She successfully "crossed fields," translating her sculpting ability to designing stage settings, and now is busily at work on "I Am Boston."

For the Needham couple, "it's exciting to work as a team on the show."

Schnabel characterizes the apprentice actors as "really commited, exuding energy," and his description aptly fits Meg Sewell.

The soon-to-be-graduated Newton High scholar admits to "doing as much as possible in 24 hours towards her theatrical career," while keeping up with other responsibilities

She'll be ensemble acting in the Boston jubilee play, and, also this Spring, directing her senior class presentation, Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew."

Her directorial chores encompass casting and production, as well as on stage leadership.

But Meg takes it all in stride, pointing out she's been performing since nursery school. Professionally she appeared with the Boston Lyric Stage, as Dolly in "You Never Can Tell," and last year was the Newton South lead, Queen Aggravain, in "Once Upon A Mattress."

Newtonite Meg Sewell

The teenager lists as one source of inspiration her drama coach, Janet Rogers, member of the Boston Shakespeare Theater. Another is Elaine Koury.

All 12 members of this year's cast come with much professional training; they have discipline and devotion to their work, but, says Meg, "Elaine brings out the best in us."

"It's an incredible experience," continues the adolescent. "Elaine gives us a situation, allows us to improvise; then we rework and rewrite."

"That's not to say, 'I Am Boston,' isn't finished," cautions Ms. Sewell. "When the director ceases polishing, it's a completed work."

And, interjects Roslindale native Chmura, "we did a lot of investigation, it's thoroughtly researched! but fun not stuffy."

She outlines a potpourri of comic and dramatic events, including a revisit to Boston by Alexander Graham Bell, a tale of the original tall ships, an early woman's libber extolling the freedom of pants for women, and the melding of immigrants and Yankees when strange names and accents mingled.

"But most of all," says the woman who's been described as BYT's best audience, "it about the human sprit's ability to meet change and grow.

"It's a piece built for people in this young age range, and there's a light touch to it."

"I Am Boston" will play at the Modern Theater, 523 Washington St., Boston, from April 30 to May 11. For ticket information call 266-4181.

Ellen McCarthy has scholarship from Waban Woman's Club

WABAN—Ellen Joan McCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McCarthy of 145 Winslow Rd., has received this year's Waban Woman's Club Scholarship. She is interested in marketing and management and plans to attend Bentley College in September.

The award was announced at the April 14 meeting of the Waban Woman's Club at which Ellen and her mother, Evelyn McCarthy a club member, were guests of honor.

Ellen has received two awards for excellence in German. She has been a Newton South cheer leader, a member of her class play and is active in the CYO.

The Waban Woman's Club Scholarship is funded by money raised by the club and through interest from the Ada D. Powell Scholarship Fund, a family-established memorial to a past president of the club. The scholarship is open to any Newton Public School student. For more information call Liz Cody at 964-4214.

Jr. League to open Burr Estate for 10th Decorators' Show Tour

MILTON—The doors of the I. Tucker Burr Estate in Milton will open April 28 for the tenth annual Decorators' Show House and Garden Tour sponsored by the Junior League of Boston, Inc. Tour will continue seven days a week to May 18.

The house, at 175 Milton St., was the residence of the Burr family for 50 years. 44 New England decorators are using the latest techniques in design and color to create the look of the '80's inside the main house.

Mrs. Burr's former art studio will house the Boutique, which will resemble an old country store. 140 consignors will present a carefully selected variety of hand crafted items, regional food specialties and gifts for adults and children.

Fourteen Boston area nurserymen and landscape architects are transforming the gardens of the 24 acres. The original carriage house is a few steps away from the front door, and formal gardens lead off the living room down to the swimming pool area.

This year's Cafe Pineapple will be set in the carriage house, serving light lunches and dinners of quiche, salads and desserts.

Tickets for the Tour are on sale now at $5 prior to the opening of the house. They will be $6 at the door. For information call 443-3513.

Toll free directory available

CLAVERACK, N.Y. (UPI) — Don't tell Paul Montana the free enterprise system in the United States is gone forever.

"Anybody who tells you that free enterprise is dead is full of baloney," says Montana, 68, a diversified businessman in Claverack, 30 miles south of Albany.

He has good reason to feel that way. An extensive traveler, he has parlayed his telephonic frustrations with the airline and hotel industries into a profitable venture.

Montana publishes Toll-Free Digest, a nationwide directory of "800" toll-free telephone numbers. The 1980, 250-page guide, the eighth yearly edition, was released recently. It contains more than 25,000 listings in 638 categories, from "abrasives" to "yachts," of numbers people can dial without charge to reach hotels, businesses, government agencies and public services.

"I'm not a publisher by any means, but I was frustrated," Montana said in an interview.

"I do a lot of traveling. When I'd call the airlines long distance, they'd put me on hold and I'd sit there with a dead phone in my hands, wasting my money."

The last straw came when he tried unsuccessfully to find a Utica hotel's 800 toll-free number and ended up making a toll call instead.

"I was exasperated," said Montana, who drives a car with license plate number TFD-800. "I said, 'Someone should put all of the toll-free numbers together in one book.'

"My wife said, 'If you're so smart, do it yourself,'" Montana said.

So he did — with the help of his wife and two sons, Paul and Gary. They compiled a list of every toll-free 800 number they could find — in magazine ads, sales brochures and every other imaginable source.

"It's a tremendous undertaking," Montana said. "You can't just get a number and put it down. You have to check each one out three times."

The first issue of 34 pages sold for $2 on newsstands. It contained only 2,639 numbers.

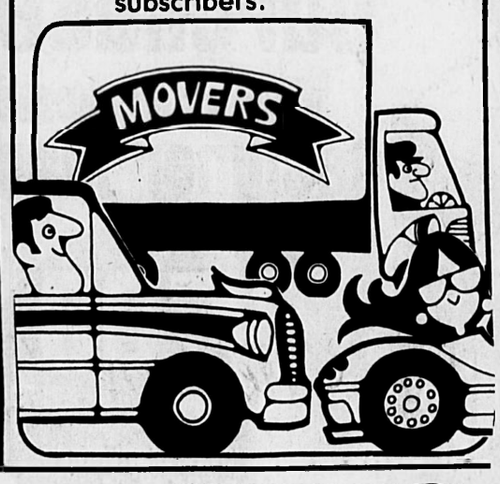

"When we first came out, it was primarily a travel and leisure directory," says Montana, who also sells appliances, runs a car wash and is a gasoline distributor in this tiny community of several thousand people. In addition, he heads Off-Track Betting in Columbia County and is a member of the Taconic Park and Recreation Commission.

"We found out, though, that you've got to have numbers that housewives and businesses can use.

R.I. bay's future studied

NARRAGANSETT, R.I. (UPI) — Narragansett Bay, a 27-mile long Rhode Island waterway carved about 12,000 years ago by an ice age glacier, will get close scrutiny this week in a program focusing on its future.

Dozens of researchers and public health officials gather Thursday at the University of Rhode Island's Narragansett Bay Campus for discussions with citizens groups concerned about dangers facing the state's premiere natural resource.

Twenty-four environmental, ecology, fishing and citizen groups are sponsoring the three-day workshop, which was suggested by aquatic biologist Clarence M. Tarzwell who spent half a century studying the bay.

Tarzwell said he believes the forum will be the most comprehensive discussion on the bay ever held in the state, and will explore its potential as well as its dangers.

Discussions will include water quality, the flow of sewage and other impurities into the bay, and how fast pollution is spreading.

"The pollution is getting worse and it is moving down the bay. The oysters are gone and the scallops are decreasing," said Tarzwell, 73, former director of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Water Quality Laboratory in Narragansett.

The conference highlights will include a 47-minute color film, including underwater footage, which was recently produced by Save The Bay, one of the sponsoring groups.

Tarzwell said he hopes the forum will give citizens' groups new data to help plan their programs and result in a list of concerns that will provide direction for future research.

Other sponsors include Ecology Action for Rhode Island, the Audubon Society, Concerned Citizens of Rhode Island, the Rhode Island Bottle Bill Coalition, the Rhode Island Shellfishermen's Association, the Point Judith Fishermen's Cooperative, and the League of Women Voters.

Youths cite gap to fill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of 25 of America's young people said in a report Monday "there is an immense communication gap" between adults and youth and called for creation of a national Chamber of Youth.

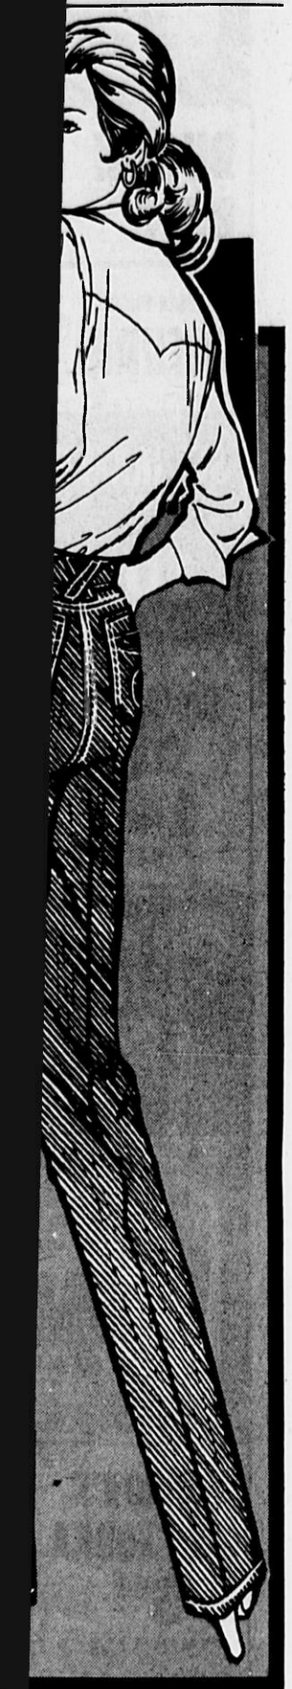

The Children's Advisory Panel to the U.S. National Commission on the International Year of the Child presented its findings in a report to President Carter.

The youths, aged 10 to 18, met twice in Washington to discuss problems facing America's youth.

Turkey dinner at Union Church

WABAN — On Wednesday, April 30, at 6:30 p.m., The Men's Club of the Union Church in Waban will sponsor Congregation Night for the entire church family and guests. A three course gourmet roast turkey dinner will be served by Group 3 of the Women's Association. Mrs. Matt B. Jones is in charge of the dinner arrangements and Mrs. Joseph M. Clough and Mrs. H. Donald Norstrand are the group leaders.

At 7:30 p.m. Eleanor Boylan's Puppet Players will present "The Lovely Art of Puppetry." A noted New England puppeteer (and former Newtonite), Mrs. Boyland will perform several short plays, talk informally about how puppets are made and operated, and demonstrate the three major forms - glove, rod and string puppets.

Others assisting with the dinner are members of the Senior High Youth Fellowship who will wait on tables, and John W. Waalewyn, Lyman H. Ziegler, and Dr. John W. Lewis III who will serve as meat carvers. Officers of the Men's Club are president, James E. MacDonald; vice president, George R. Vasoncellos; treasurer, Philippe B. Bricout; and secretary, R. Laning Humphrey.

New rules for boat owners

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After nearly 10 years of proposals that at times have enraged the nation's boat owners, the government is ready to issue final regulations controlling the discharge of sewage from pleasure craft.

The rules became effective Jan. 30. They will apply to an estimated 1 million boats. Over the years the regulations have been made more lenient than earlier versions that would have required costly — and boat owners say impractical — methods of dealing with the problem.

The Coast Guard regulations apply only to boats equipped with heads.

They do not require pleasure boats to have a head. Any owner of a pleasure boat who wishes is allowed instead to use a portable device that can be emptied on shore in an approved facility. Overboard dumping of sewage from carry-on devices is strictly prohibited.

If a boat is equipped with a head, it must as of Jan. 30 be a Coast Guard approved "marine sanitation device" that chops up and treats waste. The result must be no visible solids in the discharge, and a low fecal bacteria count.

Holding tanks are also permissible. The tanks allow no discharge and must be pumped out on shore.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the owner of a boat with an old-style head that does not chop or treat the waste, or does so only slightly, could elect to disconnect it permanently instead of replacing it with a newer sanitation device.

He emphasized the disconnecting must be permanent. Merely unhooking a hose that could be reconnected in 10 minutes would not count, the spokesman said.

In addition, regulations allow the use of a by-pass device permitting direct discharge of untreated waste when the boat is being operated out of U.S. waters — that is, more than three miles off shore.

The by-pass devices, called "Y valves," must be installed in such a way that they cannot be used accidentally when the boat is in territorial waters. The Coast Guard spokesman said this means that only the person in charge of the boat can have control of the by-pass device.

"There must be some sort of physical constraint, such as a lock on the valve, or just taking the handle off and keeping it in the (captain's) pocket," he said.

In the early 1970s the Coast Guard and the Environmetal Protection Agency toyed with regulations that would have required higher levels of treatment and, in some cases, the use of holding tanks. Boat owners complained that marina facilities for pumping out holding tanks were largely unavailable.

The new rules were originally issued in proposed form about five years ago. They have since been modified.

In some U.S. waters absolutely no sewage discharge is permitted from boats. These include landlocked lakes, reservoirs and streams as well as certain areas — about 15 or 20 in all — which the EPA has designated as "no discharge" sites.

Pope to beatify 'Virgin Indian'

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II will beatify a 17th century American woman known as "The Virgin Indian" and four other persons next June, a church official has disclosed.

The official said Monday that American Indian Catherine Tekakwitha, Canadians Maria Gyart and Bishop Francis de Montmorency-Laval, the Rev. Joseph Anchieta of Brazil and Guatemalan monk Peter de Betancur will be beatified by the pope in Vatican ceremonies in front of St. Peter's Basilica June 22.

In Roman Catholic practice, beatification is the final step in the process leading to sainthood. Those who are beatified are called "blesseds of the church."

Catherine Tekakwitha, born in 1656 in what is now New York State, was among the first American Indians to convert to Christianity. She died at the age of 24 near Montreal, Canada.

Church biographies say she was permanently disfigured by smallpox at an early age and never married — a curiosity among local tribes that earned her the title "The Virgin Indian."

According to the biographies, the young woman was baptized a Roman Catholic at the age of 20, an act that caused her to be shunned and threatened by her tribe and forced her to move to Canada and live among the growing group of Christian Indians there.

Because of the charitable and missionary work during the last four years of her life, Indians of the region called her "The Lily of the Mohawks."

He builds his boats to preserve a part of history

Boat builders Jay Vanger, left, and Chris Perdue

BEAUFORT, N.C. (UPI) — Geoffrey Scofield loves to build boats, but he cares little for them once they are finished.

For Scofield, what matters with the skiffs and dinghies he builds at the Hampton Mariners Museum is that he is preserving styles of boat construction dating to the Vikings.

And by working on the boats, he says, one can learn much about how they handle and why they were built a certain way.

"We can't understand why a man built a fishing village on a particulr spot of the Outer Banks rather than the mainland until we know how he used his boats," he said. "In many cases we don't know. We don't know how their whaler handled in the surf, for example. That's why we'll have to build one."

The wiry, 36-year-old Englishman teaches four 12-week courses in boatbuilding per year. He and museum Director Charles McNeill say similar programs exist on the East Coast only at Mystic Seaport, Conn., and Bath, Maine.

While McNeill puffed on his pipe and whittled a stick of cedar, Scofield walked around his tin-roofed shop, pointing out the boats being built. One is the Essex, a 12-footer where the long edges of the planks overlap rather than form a flat surface. That design has been around for 2,000 years, Scofield said.

Local residents are invited to concert

FRANKLIN — The Southeastern Massachusetts Community Concert Band will perform on Sunday, April 27, at 7 p.m. at the Franklin Junior High School Auditorium under the direction of John J. Judge of Canton.

This is the band's second annual spring concert entitled "A Musical Rainbow." Sunday evening's performance will bring to Franklin and nearby communities a musical mosaic ranging from festive marches to Broadway selections, from classics to Dixieland jazz and from military band arrangements to children's favorite movie themes.

Included in the performance will be selections from "West Side Story" by Sondheim and Bernstein; "Second Suite in F for Military Band" by Holst, "Dixieland Jamboree," arranged by Warrington and "Con Certino" by vonWeber, a clarinet solo performed by Anne Codman of Millis.

Other selections include "Muppet Movie Medley" by Williams and Ascher, "Symphonic Portrait," by Rachmaninoff and "Thundercrest March" by Osterling.

Mental errors hurt Tigers

Newton North played a strong game physically but was lax mentally Tuesday and it cost them as Cambridge Rindge & Latin ekked out a 4-2 win in eight innings at Newton.

The Tigers, now 1-3, received another solid pitching effort from starter Bob Hess, who held once-beaten Cambridge to just six hits while striking out 10. But they hurt themselves on the base paths as three runners were picked off first by Latin's Paul McGaffigan.

"We were just sleeping. That's all there was to it," said a chagrined Tom Rezzuti. "We've been making mental errors all year and I really don't know why. I just don't think the kids are into the game. They're not thinking, not taking it seriously enough."

The Tigers only managed five hits of their own on this day but they still were able to recover from a 2-0 deficit with single runs in the third and the seventh to send the contest into extra innings.

After Cambridge scored twice in the top of the third, Gary Frechette singled home Bob Kenney (walk) to cut that to 2-16 in the bottom of the frame.

Hess, who was beaten in another fine effort last week (2-1 in eight to Brockton), and MCGaffigan then hooked up in a pitcher's duel for the next four innings.

Just when it appeared Hess might suffer his second straight 2-1 defeat, the Tigers rescued him in the last of the seventh. Greg Pachus led off with a single and was replaced on the basepaths by Jim Marchione.

Marchione promptly got into scoring position by stealing second, and then moved to third on John Corsi's sacrifice bunt. The tying run came home seconds later when Chris Buras' grounder to short was mishandled for a critical error.

Thus the contest went into extra innings, but not for long. A Single by Joe Rossini and a Hess walk to Bob Harshburger gave Latin runners on first and second. After Hess got Jack Gilford to fly to right, Cambridge scored two runs when Manny Alves' grounder skipped through the legs of the second baseman and into rightfield.

"Those are the kinds of8 things that have been happening to us," sighed Rezzuti. "But the physical mistakes I can live with; it's the mental ones that are frustrating."

The Tigers have now gone through a stretch where they played three teams (Brockton, Boston Latin and Cambridge) which combined had one loss. The Tigers have dropped all three, but by a total of only four runs.

"We have the talent, I'm sure of that," said Rezzuti. "Right now we lack the confidence. We're not sure of what we can do and that has us hesitating. When we do that we get caught."

Youth Soccer fall signup opens Mon.

The Newton Youth Soccer League, Inc. will be starting registration for it's sixth Fall season beginning April 28. The co-ed league is designed for girls and boys in grades three through eight to learn the game of soccer in a low-key manner.

Recently, the new Board of Directors was elected to oversee the arrangements for the 1980 Fall season.The new officers are: President Chuck Redmon, Vice Pres. Ted Loughlin, Secretary Bruce Marquis, Treasurer Marc Voldins, Asst. Treas. Gunta Voldins, Clerk Fred Wilcon. The Board consists of: Al Becker, Mike Bettman, David Redmond, Cranston Rogers, Lewis Schultz, Barbara Trelstad, Dee DeeWilcon, and Gerald Zeitland.

Each child who joins the League is provided with a full uniform and plays a ten week season commencing in September when school begins. Every team has one practice during the week, and a game on Saturdays. The season ends with an awards night where each participant receives an award and is served refreshments.

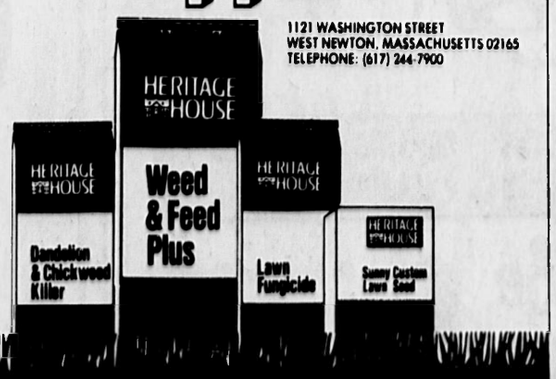

Because of the limited number of children who will be able to play in the N.Y.S.L., Inc., registration forms must be returned as soon as possible. The League is divided into three co-ed divisions- grades 3 and 4, 5 and 6, 7 and 8. Each division will be limited to the first 360 children who apply. Registration forms will be distributed in all Newton Schols beginning April 28th. Registration will be by mail onl;y and closes May 15th. All Newton residents are eligible to play whether they are in public or private school. If you have any further questions, please call 964-7827, only between 4:30 and 8:30 p.m.

Tiger net team in 3rd win

Newton North's tennis team had to play without the services of its number one singles player, Bobby Bernstein, on Tuesday and still extended its winning streak to two games by knocking off Cambridge 4-1.

The Tigers' second singles man, Robbie Goodwin, defeated Horace Reid,1-0, 6-4, 6-3.

Dave Birmingham, Newton North's third singles player, knocked off George Phear, 6-3,2-6, 6-3, to give the Tigers two points from the singles competition.

The Tigers picked up two more points in doubles competition to win the match.

Tom Karoff and Steve Taylor downed Larry Archer and Will Dunham, 6-1, 6-0, and Howard Lerner and Simon Floyd stopped Mark Parise and Will Brancuzzi, 6-1, 6-0.

On Friday, Newton North won its first match of the season by downing Brockton, 5-0, at Brockton High.

Robert Bernstein, Andy Bernstein and Dave Birmingham won their singles matches to give the Tigers an early lead.

The Tigers wrapped the match up in the doubles competition by taking two contests.

The doubles teams of Steve Taylor and Tom Karoff and Howard Lerner and Simon Floyd, both won matches to give the Tigers a convincing victory.

Newton South's tennis team took two singles matches and two doubles matches from Wayland High on Friday to win the match, 4-1, in Dual County League action played at Newton South.

Jim Sharton defeated Stan Lewis, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1, and Jim Rosenthal downed Rob Keeler 6-1, 6-1' for Newton South's two singles matches.

Ted Scovell and Mark Grodberg defeated Jeff Donahue and Stan Gwozdz 6-3, 7-5, and Dave Lifisitz and John Sandberg knocked off Carl Craven and Don Kiradjieff 6-2., 6-2, to wrap up Newton South's victory.

Newton South is now 2-0 in league play and 6-0 for the season.

Newton South will host Concord-Carlisle on Apr. 28 in a Dual County match up. Both teams were co-champs in the league last season. The Summaries:

L. Natale sets 2-mile record for North girls

Sophomore Liz Natale broke her own record in the two mile run to highlight Newton North's 70-48 Suburban League girls' track victory over Weymouth South Friday at Dickinson Stadium.

Natale stepped the distance in 11:17.3, besting her previous standard of 11:34 set a week against Cambridge-Rindge.

The Tigers had two double winners in the Weymouth South meet. Sherry Levin, high-scoring center of the title-winning basketball team last winter, copped both the javelin and the 100 yard dash. Sophomore Jeannie

Aries, Castellanos bat South to 2nd DCL win

Paul Aries ripped three hits and drove home four runs and Kevin Castellanos added three singles of his own Monday as Newton South captured its second straight game, 11-1, over Lincoln-Sudbury.

The Lions, now 2-1, had picked up their first win of the year Friday when they defeated Bedford, 10-5, at Bedford.

Aries led a 17-hit Lion' attack Monday which saw his club move out to a 4-0 lead in the first before adding two in the fourth, one in the fifth, one in the sixth and three in the seventh.

Castellanos' three hits led to two RBI's and two runs scored. Senior righthander Harry Raphael notched the win, his first in two decisions, going five strong innings before being replaced by Castellanos.

An explosive first inning led to victory on Friday as the Lions shocked Bedford with six runs in the opening frame. Doubles by Mike Dwyer and Mike Kasten keyed the rally while Rapheal led another strong hitting attack (13 hits) with a two-for-three afternoon.

Dwyer went the distance to pick up his first win, allowing eight hits and fanning six.

While the Lions were enjoying a successful holiday weekend, Weston's three-day journey consisted of nothing but misery. The Wildcats saw their record drop to 2-4 with three consecutive losses to arch-rival Wayland on Friday, Medway on Saturday and Concord-Carlisle on Monday.

Wayland began Weston's headache-filled weekend with a crushing 10-4 win. Medway followed the next day with an even-worse 10-1 drubbing and ConcordCarlisle took it to the Wildcats Monday, 9-6.

Concord jumped out to a quick 4-0 lead after two Monday before Weston was able to recover. Dave . Murray (two hits) got one back in the third with a single, scoring Rob Cornell, who had doubled.

The Wildcats scored two more in the fourth, but unfortunately, Concord had tallied three in the top of the inning, leaving the score at 7-3. Peter Noonan drove home both runs with a single, scoring Phil Sullivan (walked) and Rick Hall (double).

Weston almost recovered in the seventh. Trailing 9-3, the Wildcats scored three runs before being retired with the bases loaded. Hall began the frame with a single and moved to second on Noonan's walk. Jamie Ferrelli scored one run with a single, Dave Murray walked to force in another and John Lynch singled for the third. But Mike Ryder got Mike Powers to strike out for the final out.

The Wildcats were never in Friday's game with Wayland, falling behind 3-0 in the first inning and 7-3 after four.

Rick Hall (four hits) , Murray (three) and Powers (two) were the only bright spots for Weston. The Summary:

Anita Bryant faces hard road ahead

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Entertainer Anita Bryant says her life was "turned upside down" by her 1977 opposition to a gay rights law, but if she had it all to do over again, "I would still do it."

She said that decision cost her $500,000 in television contracts, including a sewing machine-sponsored variety show, scores of bookings, thousands of dollars in cash outlays and threats of personal violence.

"Initially, the bookings dropped off to nothing," she said.

"Where before, you didn't have to worry much about how you spent your money, all of a sudden, I had to start buying choice meat instead of prime," she said.

She and her husband, Bob Green, and their four children still live in the sprawling, moorish mansion with its tropical garden, giant goldfish and swimming pool on a patio overlooking Biscayne Bay. Fittingly, the house is a few blocks off Miami Beach's Arthur Godfrey Road. She got her first big break singing on a Godfrey show.

"Financially," she said, "it still is a struggle. We're coming back, slowly but surely. I guess because the children had been through so much we were determined to hold onto the house. I felt that was important because they had so many anxieties and all the frustrations and I felt it was important that their home not be changed.

"It's taken its toll, but it's been rough," the one-time Miss Oklahoma said.

Anita — she prefers that to Miss Bryant or Mrs. Green and sometimes introduces herself as Anita Bryant Green — looks younger than her 40-odd years. She is small-boned, slender, moves well, smiles readily and has a personality that dominates a room. She is a woman who has taken good care of her face and figure. She is a compulsive talker.

She admits she never would have become involved in the gay rights controversy "had it not affected me personally."

The Dade County Commission triggered the controversy on Jan. 17, 1977, by adopting an ordinance that added four words — "affectional or sexual preference" — to an existing law banning discrimination in employment and housing on the basis of race, religion, marital status, age and national origin.

Anita's children were enrolled in a private religious school and she and church leaders feared the ordinance would prevent them from keeping homosexuals off the faculty.

She organized a "Save our Children" campaign to repeal the ordinance, gathered the required number of petition signatures for a recall election, and conducted a nationally publicized crusade that climaxed June 7, 1977 when Dade County voters repealed the ordinance by a 2-1 margin.

Anita said she was concerned about the plight of homosexuals and had founded the Miami Beach counseling center to help gays change their lifestyle long before the county commission enacted the so-called "gay rights ordinance."

"I had worked with homosexuals all my life and I always had a policy of live and let live," she said.

She describes the life of the homosexual as "sad."

"So many have tried to escape in so many ways, through alcoholism and drugs. Most of those who want out have tried everything else so they'll even come to Anita Bryant, whom they have picketed and hated."

She said she prayed for guidance and "I realized that I personally had failed and I think the church had failed. The church had claimed to love and yet was very unloving to individuals they couldn't understand or that were distasteful and disgusting to many, like homosexuals, so it wouldn't believe that God could transform a homosexual the same as he could transform an alcoholic, or a murderer or a thief or anyone with a sin problem.

"You don't have to condemn these people because there's been condemnation already. You can take God's viewpoint and call sin sin and still love the sinner," she said.

She says she has testimonials from "more than 4,000" homosexuals who have attended counseling sessions and changed their lifestyles.

When she attempted to resume her career following repeal of the Dade County gay rights ordinance in the June 1977 referendum, she discovered she had become a national symbol. Homosexual organizations and their sympathizers picketed her. Foes of similar laws in other places invited her to lead repeal drives.

Personal threats soon followed.

"If you operate in fear, it can just wipe you out," she said. "You have to succumb to the police coming over bringing a dog to sniff out bombs here at the house. The kids have to come home from school early and sometimes have to stay in the school office for hours because of the kidnap threats. And the FBI becomes involved in the letters that come from people who write they are going to assassinate you.

"That alone is enough to stop you from walking out your front door. You can't put a price on those kinds of things.

"And you have to have detectives come over and tell you how to secure your home, and there is all that expense involved in putting in 10 times the security you had before, and having to live with bodyguards around you constantly.

"Even when I'd go to churches (in other cities) and had no intention of mentioning the Dade County issue, I'd invariably have to have a press conference because of the media coverage the homosexuals would get that were there.

"The lightning rods would get their point across, even when I had no intention of addressing that issue," she said.

There were even a few attempts to carry out some of the threats.

At a state fair where she was performing, police spotted the writer of a threatening letter in the crowd. At another performance, guards intercepted a youth with a club attempting to reach her dressing room. Two girls with cans of mace attempted to climb on the stage during another Bryant performance.

In Washington, her hotel was surrounded by 6,000 homosexuals and three of them disrupted a Bryant performance at the National Religious Broadcasters Association convention. A woman was arrested and police found she was armed. "She called me a fascist, sexist pig. I hadn't heard that before," Anita said.

There are still pickets, but fewer than before, "except when I go into a city I haven't been in before. Then the local people want to do their thing," she said.

FTC checking on warranty repairs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission has opened an investigation to determine if new car owners get cheated on repairs done under warranty because auto companies reimburse dealers too little for such service.

The investigation stems from a petition filed by four Ralph Nader-affiliated groups. The groups claim a survey in four states showed many dealers are reimbursed for warranty repairs at a rate lower than they would normally charge for similar non-warranty work.

The result, the petition contends, is a disincentive for dealers to do a proper job fixing cars that develop problems while still under warranty.

The FTC said it is concerned because a recent study done for the agency "shows that new car warranty repairs take considerably longer time periods and produce substantially higher levels of consumer dissatisfaction with the service provided than do warranty repairs for other types of products."

The petition was filed by Public Citizen Inc., the Nader umbrella group, and by the Minnesota, Indiana and New York Public Interest Research Groups — campus-based citizen action centers organized by the Nader group.

William Schultz, a lawyer for Public Citizen, told UPI that the survey of 63 dealers and 13 manufacturers found 59 percent of the dealers were reimbursed at lower rates for labor on warranty repairs than on non-warranty work; that 35 percent were reimbursed less for parts than they would otherwise charge; that 30 percent paid their mechanics less for warranty work than regular work.

The study found only two manufacturers, Volvo and Mercedes, reimbursed dealers at normal rates for work done under warranty.

The petition suggests the FTC could correct the situation by issuing a rule under which manufacturers who follow the lower reimbursement rates would have to disclose that fact to potential customers. In theory a consumer shopping for a new car could pick one where he or she might have a better chance of more complete warranty service.

The FTC has published a Federal Register notice asking for comment from consumers and other affected parties. Written comments should be sent to Michael Katz, Room 238, FTC, Washington, D.C. 20580.

Schultz said the PIRG survey found many dealers "would much rather not service your car" under current arrangements if the car is under warranty.

'The Boy Friend' to kick off Beaver reunion weekend

CHESTNUT HILL — Alumni, parents, students and friends of the Beaver Country Day School in Chestnut Hill will convene on Thursday and Friday, April 24 and 25 for the school's 53rd reunion activities and the Spring Arts Festival.

Highlighting the festival will be a student production of "The Boy Friend," Sandy Wilson's satirical look at the musicals of the '20's, and a student art exhibition which will include alumni art work completed in the 20's and '30's as well as current student work. The alumni collection has been lent to the school by Mrs. Beatrice Whitney Van Ness of Brookline, founder and first head of the school's art department.

The musical will open Thursday and run through Saturday with performances at 7:30 p.m. in Bradley Hall at the school. In lead roles are three Newton students: Julia Morse '80, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Morse, Aaron Clayton '81, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic S. Clayton, and Amy Zussman '80 daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Zussman. Other Newton students in the production are Lisa Bryant '81, Lauri Scher '81, and Jon Soroff '83. The production crew includes Timothy Halle, Annette Roman, Kerri Mandell and Raphael Wynd.

Alumni activities will commence with a dinner honoring the classes of 1925 and 1930 at Headmaster and Mrs. Philip E. McCurdy's home on Woodland Road in Chestnut Hill. Other reunion classes will be honored with cocktails and dinner at the school prior to the performance of "The Boy Friend."

On Friday morning, following the annual meeting of the Alumni Association, Barbara Weil Snelling, the University of Vermont's vice president for Development and External Affairs, wife of the governor of Vermont, and a Beaver alumna, class of 1945, will be the guest speaker.

In honor of the 60th anniversary of the founding of the school, alumni and trustees will formally dedicate Bradley Hall, named for the late Mrs. J. Gardner Bradley, founder of the school and president of the board of trustees from 1920 to 1945. Mrs. Bradley's grandson, Ferdinand Colloredo-Mansfield will take part in the dedication ceremonies. Cocktails and luncheon will follow. In the afternoon, Beaver's girls' tennis and lacrosse teams will compete against Lexington Christian at Beaver.

Class representatives involved in this year's Reunion Day celebrations from Newton and Chestnut Hill include Mrs. J. Stuart Laughlin, co-chairman for her 30th reunion class, Mrs. John C. Kiley Jr., Mrs. Richard E. Lincoln, Kristin Lee, Wendy Koplow, John Berenson, Audrey Rubin, Faith Michaels, Lynne Waterman, Susan Florence, Amy Simons, and Mrs. Mark T. Beaudoiun. Alumni board members include Mrs. Richard L. Narva, Anne K. Garland, Mrs. Stanley F. Waterman, Paul Clayton, and Dr. Werner Heider.

Anyone wishing further information concerning the performance of "The Boy Friend," which is open to the public, or reunion activities should call the school at 745-6950.

Registration for summer tennis continues at Y

NEWTON — The Family Y of Newton still has some openings in its instructional tennis clinics which begin April 28. The clinics are divided into three categories: beginners, advanced beginners, and intermediates, as well as boys and girls ages 8 to 14.

Each clinic is composed of six one hour lessons meeting twice weekly for three weeks. Clinics will be held throughout the summer and into September. They are restricted to no more than six and no less than three students to allow the instructors a one-to-one relationship with each player. However, if clinics are full or there is a time conflict, the Y also offers private or semi-private lessons.

The instructor is James McManus, back from an extremely successful first season with the Y. McManus boasts an impressive teaching background and hopes to make the Family Y of Newton "the best place in the area to learn tennis."

Registrations are being taken now for the first clinic starting on April 28.

For more information or brochure on times and dates of clinics call 244-6050.

Air Force to interview here

NEWTON — Air Force Sergeant Jack Ledom announced today that he now visits Newton once a week to interview applicants for the Air Force. He is located at the Claims & Employment Office, 262 Centre, Mondays from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Sergeant Ledom has his main office at 671 Main Street, Waltham, and can be reached by calling 894-7029 or 893-7941.

Young men and women interested in learning a technical skill along with college credits should contact Sergeant Ledom for an interview. There are thousands of jobs open in more than 400 career fields, most of which have a direct relation to civilian occupations.

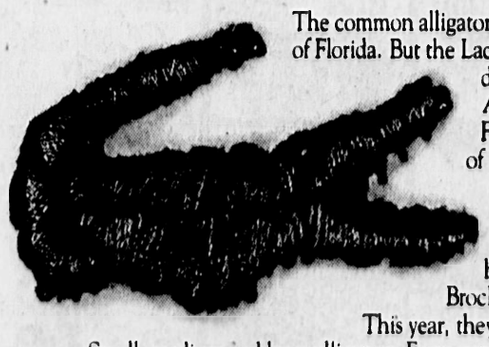

A phone call or visit to Sergeant Ledom puts you under no obligation and may be the most important thing you ever do. He will be glad to show you how to take advantage of these opportunities.

Alligators and Appleseed's.

The common alligator may prefer the Everglades of Florida. But the Lacoste alligator favors a different habitat. The Appleseed's of Massachusetts. Four sites north and west of Boston where the species arrives faithfully each spring. Braving the Northeast storms and the handbag manufacturers of Brockton and Lynn en route. This year, they're here in record numbers.
Small, medium and large alligators. Even extra large alligators. In every conceivable spring color.
You'll find alligators on tops, jackets, jumpers, skirts and shorts by Haymaker. On David Crystal dresses. On Lacoste knits and pullovers. And alligators all over the men's department, on sportswear by Izod.

Cybernetics seminar to be held at Claflin

NEWTON CENTRE — As part of its Special Events Series, the Claflin Community School is offering a seminar on cybernetics, to be held Tuesday, April 29, 7:30—9 p.m., in a Newtonville home.

Presenter Bruce Abele, a specialist in computer and managerial sciences, will be discussing cybernetics as the discipline behind the development of computers and automatic control devises.

The applicability of cybernetics, however, is far broader than that of computers. Cybernetics helps solve certain serious problems prevalent throughout the professions, sciences, communication disciplines, and even some of the arts.

Cybernetics, in one way, is a discipline for dealing with complexity. Progress in many fields such as medicine, law, administration, and engineering is limited by complexity per se; cybernetics provides aid in managing this complexity.

Cybernetics is also a theory of machines and provides understanding about all machines even though in the practical world they could never be built. This aspect of cybernetics is an aid to engineering and system creativity and also provides new insights into both the mechanism of the brain and the reasoning process.

The discipline helps add objectivity to the quantification process. The practical value of that objectivity comes from a speed-up in the process of getting agreement among members of a group.

The discipline deals broadly enough with information theory that it provides insights into interpersonal communication and languages.

The vocabulary of cybernetics is broad and general, yet not lacking in precision and concreteness. This unusual combination of characteristics is what makes it possible to provide help in skills as diverse as: improving succinctness in writing, defining administrative policy, or improving the link between the academic and real world. Because of these characteristics the vocabulary also provides an important and effective link inter and intra the sciences, arts, and communication disciplines.

Cybernetics is similar to the discipline of geometry, except that vocabulary, instead of relating to a world of shapes, relates to a world of change. Learning the discipline requires little mathematical or computer background, but, on the other hand, requires one of the more severe mental efforts likely to be required in any academic endeavor.

Cybernetics has played such an important part in the development of computers that for most people the two words are synonymous. Unfortunately that semantic quirk has hidden the discipline from the public eye severly hampering its growth and acceptance.

Come learn more about cybernetics and share in the discussion. Preregistration is required. Registration this special event is $3. For more information, please call 969-2567 or the Newton Community Schools office at 552-7118.

McHAPPY DAY— What do a professional football player, a child who has undergone treatment for cancer, and a big house in Brookline all have in common? The answer— McHappy Day, McDonald's 25th anniversary. Andy Johnson (r.), New England Patriots' star running back and honorary chairman of McHappy Day, is holding a Big Mac sandwich to remind everyone of just how On Sunday, McDonald's has chosen to celebrate their anniversary. April 27— McHappy Day— 25 . from the sale of every Big Mac will be donated to the Ronald McDonald House so that families , like that of David Jaquith (l.) of Nashua, N.H., will continue to benefit from Boston's "home away from home." The Ronald McDonald House, 229 Kent St., Brookline, provides overnight accomodations for families with children undergoing treatment for cancer' as well as emotional support and a means of sharing with other families in similiar situations.

McHappy Day is coming to Newton

NEWTON — McDonald's restaurants across the country have plans to participate in a fund-raising program for The Ronald McDonald House in celebration of their 25th Anniversary.

On McHappy Day, April 27, 25 cents from every Big Mac sandwich will be donated to the Ronald McDonald House.

National and local VIPs are currently being recruited to aid in the fund-raising program. Community leaders, sports figures, entertainers and media personalities will join forces to help support McHappy Day. Each VIP will spend about one hour at a McDonald's as a volunteer crew person, greeting guests, shaking hands and most important, help us raise money for the Ronald McDonald House.

The involvement of VIPs will encourage people to visit McDonald's on McHappy Day and lend their support to the house.

"I can't think of any better community program than to help the kids at the Ronald McDonald House," said Mirick Friend, owner-operator of McDonald's in Newton. "We plan to have several VIPs that will join us on Sunday and help us raise funds for the kids at the house. We're thrilled to hold a fundraising program for our community to celebrate McDonald's 25th Anniversary."

McHappy Day has been celebrated by McDonald's restaurants in Canada during the last two years, raising more than $1,000,000 so far in that country for crippled children.

Cancer Society to sponsor stop-smoking clinic at NWH

HIGHLANDS — The American Cancer Society's Newton-Wellesley Unit, in co-operation with the Newton Community Schools program, is gearing up to launch an attack on one of mankind's major cripplers — the cigarette.

Beginning on Tuesday, May 6, the Newton— Wellesley Unit will sponsor a four-week series of "Helping Smokers Quit" clinics that will be held on four consecutive Tuesdays, May 6, 13, 20 and 27, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Newton Highlands Library, 20 Hartford St., Newton Highlands.

The clinics are being held to help bring down the alarming rate of lung cancer and heart disease associated according to Sam Cohen, a member of the with cigarette smoking' Newton-Wellesley Unit's public education committee. The total cost to enroll in the program is $16 per person.

"Programs just like this one have been going on all over Massachusetts and have been very successful in getting people of all ages to drop the cigarette habit," Cohen said.

"One of the main reasons clinics appear to be the best approach for a confirmed smoker is that he or she is surrounded by other people in the same situation. Most have tried to quit cigarettes on their own and make it," he said.

During the clinic, smokers learn about themselves, what kind of smokers they are and what motivates them to smoke.

"During the initial meeting, we find that a lot of smokers have already cut down on their smoking a great deal," Cohen said. "This is because they realize much of their smoking was unconscious."

According to Cohen, nearly half of the participants in these clinics are still off cigarettes a year later.

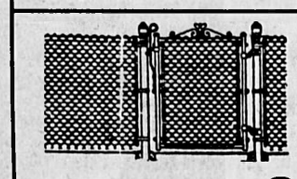

He added that this figure reaches as high as 90 percent after about two months, but many smokers slip into their old habits as time goes on.

Cohen urged anyone interested in attending these sessions to contact the local American Cancer Society in Boston at 267-2650 for more information, or the Society's smokers hot line at 1-800-952-7664.

There's nothing wrong with THIS OLD HOUSE

. . . Nothing that some hard work and money can't fix. WGBH-TV is supplying the work; they'll be showing you how to renovate your own home in the award-winning program, "This Old House." And the money? That's where we come in.
We're Mutual Bank For Savings, and we're helping to finance the renovation of this old house. It's just one of the ways we put people's deposits back to work for them in their own home towns.
Through loans and all kinds of public service projects, Mutual Bank does its part every day to take care of the financial needs of our neighborhoods and the people who live in them. That's what community reinvestment is all about, and it's helping to make a lot of these old houses as good as new.
So tune in channel 2 every Wednesday night at 8:00 for money- and energy-saving tips on renovation. Take a good close look; you'll be watching your money at work.

Exhibition on Newton papermakers at Jackson Homestead open house

NEWTON—An exhibit on "Early Newton Papermakers" will be featured at the Jackson homestead's final open house of the season on Sunday, May 4, from 2-5 p.m. It will include a demonstration of the paper making process.

Susan Abele has done extensive research for the exhibit, which will continue through June 27. The public is invited to visit it free of charge on weekdays between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Open house hostesses, directed by Miss Loraine Cotting, will be, from the Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter, DAR, Mrs. Gladys Irwin and Miss Marion E. Stratton; from the Newton Highlands Woman's Club, Mrs. Charles Casey, president, Mrs. Perry Appleton, Mrs. Hugh Boyd, Mrs. Clarence Churchill, Ms. Mildred Fibel, Mrs. Francis Foster, Mrs. John F. Goode, Mrs. Jackson Hayden, and Mrs. Francis Tucker; from the Waban Woman's Club, Mrs. Edward L. Lafferty, president, Mrs. James M. Fitzgerald, Mrs. William L. Givens, Mrs. Henry S. Kendall and Mrs. Alex R. Miller; and from the Friends of the Jackson Homestead, Mrs. Keith G. Willoughby, president, Mrs. Ruth W. Bassett and Miss Margaret Murphy.

Floral arrangements will be made by Mrs. Richard A. Crosby, chairman of the Flower Committee of the Friends of the Jackson Homestead and members of the Newton Highlands Garden Club, including Mrs. Robert Searway, president, Mrs. Philip Bowman, Mrs. Haig Merian, Mrs. Robert Sarafian, Mrs. Carlton Shaw and Mrs. Daniel Sullivan.

John Ware of Sherborn built the first paper mill at Lower Falls in 1790, beginning an industry which lasted for almost a century. Paper making was then basically a hand process. Water power was used only to soften and break down linen and cotton rag into pulp. Frames were dipped into the vats of pulp to form individual sheets of paper, which then had to be pressed, dried and glazed. The entire process took almost three months. After 1817 a cylinder machine eliminated the hand dipping process, and by 1828 the Fourdrinier machines were installed in the Curtis mill, allowing paper to be made in continuous sheets, and bringing prosperity to Lower Falls.

Founders of the papernaking industry in Lower Falls were John Ware, Solomon Curtis, Ephraim Jackson, Jr., William Hoogs, William Hurd, Lemuel Crehore and Moses Grant.

Audubon tour and workshop on pollution

BOSTON — The Massachusetts Audubon Society will present a bus tour-workshop for citizens and public officials entitled "Looking at Boston Harbor: Pollution Sources and Solutions" on Friday, May 2 from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The session will include a tour of the Deer Island Treatment Plant, lunch on Tenean Beach and visits to several combined sewer overflow treatment facility sites. A box lunch will be provided and walking shoes are a must.

The workshop is being conducted as part of a Massachusetts Audubon project made possible by a grant from the Environmental Protection Agency. The bus will leave from the Government Center Garage, Congress Street, Boston at 9:30 a.m. There is no charge but preregistration is advised as there are only 49 seats on the bus.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Lyn White, project director, at Massachusetts Audubon Society, 3 Joy Street, Boston, MA 02108 or calling (617) 367-1026.

Congratulations are extended to LTC Jerome J. Donovan, USAR, on receiving the Legion of Merit Medal from Frank A. Camm (r.), national director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). Participating in the ceremony were FEMA Region One director Stephen McGrail (l.) and the colonel's wife, Hannah. A mobilization designee attached to FEMA, Colonal Donovan earned the award, one of the Army's highest, for exceptionally meritorious service while assigned to the agency as a disaster analyst for over five years. In his assignment, Colonel Donovan was responsible for developing plans and preparations and contingency planning for response by appropriate state and local officials in a timeof natural or nuclear disaster.

John William Ward to speak to ADA board meeting

NEWTON — John William Ward, chairman of the Special Commission looking into corruption in awarding state building contracts, will address a state board meeting of Americans for Democratic Action, to be held Thursday, April 24, 8 p.m., at the home of Robert Stolzberg, 8 Mt. Vernon Terrace, Newton.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For more information call A.D.A., 482-3648.

Aquatic skills taught by Red Cross

WASHINGTON, D.C. — For the 58th year, the American Red Cross will conduct aquatic, first aid, and small craft schools to help meet the need for qualified swimming, lifesaving, first aid, CPR and boating instructors.

This spring and summer, hundreds of new instructors will be trained at the 7-to-10 day schools, strategically located at camps and college campuses across the nation.

Most of the schools are scheduled in June to allow aquatic and boating instructor candidates to take training before starting summer activities. These Red Cross schools also offer a unique opportunity to train first aid instructors to conduct in-plant courses for their employers to help business comply with the requirements of the Occupational Health and Safety Act of 1970.

Men and women 17 years of age or over, who are better than average swimmers and physically fit, are eligible for the aquatic and small craft schools. First aid instructor candidates are not required to have swimming ability, but must meet fitness requirements. Some swimming instruction may be available to these students, if desired.

A comprehensive curriculum of lectures, seminars, course instruction and practice sessions teach the following techniques: basic swimming, water safety, adapted aquatics (swimming for the disabled), basic, standard and advanced first aid, cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), canoeing, sailing, and boating. Not all subjects are taught at all the schools, however.

Faculties are comprised of highly-trained Red Cross volunteer instructors, who are experts in the field in which they instruct.

For further information and application forms, interested persons should contact the West Suburban Red Cross Chapter, 21 Foster Street, Newtonville, MA 02160 - phone 527-6000.

Travel Talk
By Josephine Arria
If your rule of thumb in selecting a vacation spot is "the less publicized, the more rewarding," then you must learn about Copan. Tucked away in a remote corner of Honduras not far from the Guatemalan frontier, Copan is an unearthly paradise of jungles, ruins, 12-foot monuments and a small village containing several hotels and restaurants. At 2200 feet, Copan boasts a cool and comfortable climate. An ideal excursion for a day trip out of San Pedro, the lovely hideaway is reached by chartered plane or a three hour drive.

Whether seeking a day trip, weekend retreat, extended vacation or emergency or business travel, BARCLAY INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL SERVICE, INC., 305 A Washington St., Newton Corner, can help you. As professional travel agents we are up to date on the latest rates, routes and availabilities of transportation and accommodations, aware of any local regulations of customs that must be observed and experienced in attending to the varied details necessary to insure a pleasant and unencumbered trip. Open 9-5:30 Mon.-Fri., 'til 8 Thurs. and 9-1 Sat. Tel. 244-8460. All standard credit cards accepted.
TRAVEL TIP: The Honduran national airlines (SAHSA and TAN) offer flights to Honduras out of Miami and New Orleans.

Nuclear energy topic of upcoming energy forum

NEWTON — A nuclear energy forum will be held at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, April 29, in the Parish Hall of the Unitarian Church, 1326 Washington Street, West Newton Square.

Speakers representing the spectrum of thought on nuclear energy include William F. Bradley, Jr., an engineer with Stone & Webster and participant in the licensing of nuclear power plants; Morgan, former director of Mass. Public Interest Research Group and former senior research associate for the New England Energy Congress; and state representative David Cohen of Newton who will moderate and also present issues from a governmental and legislative perspective.

According to Ned Leibensperger of Newton Centre who is in charge of the forum, the format of the program will consist of opening statements by each of the three speakers followed by a question and answer period.

The program is sponsored by the Social Concerns Committee of the First Unitarian Church of Newton and is free of charge and open to the public.

Members of the Social Concerns Committee involved in planning the program, in addition to Leibensperger, include Joan and Ed Lerner and Ann Lindsey of Waban; Billie Sue Sanders and Ellie Shacter of Newton Highlands; Wendy Haskell of Newton; Lynn Holbein and Peter Norstrand of Auburndale; Emilie Kaden, Patsy Leibensperger and Duane Natthiesen of Newton Centre; and Sharon Shoemaker and Peter Witt of Newtonville.

Cantor Murray Simon, l., of Temple Israel in Boston, was one of 15 Temple University alumni to receive Certificates of Honor from the university's General Alumni Association at its annual Founder's Dinner on March 29 in Philadelphia. He received the award from Dr. B. Stimson Carrow, president of Temple's College of Music Alumni Association. Cantor Simon was honored for his contribution to the music profession. He is national president of the American Conference of Cantors, president of the New England Jewish Music Forum, and treasurer and program chairman of the Jewish Ministers-Cantors Association of New England. He lives in Newton Highlands.

Milton Quint to be honored as Temple Emanuel Man of theyear

NEWTON — On Sunday April 27, the Brotherhood of Temple Emanuel, Newton, will honor as their Man of the Year, Milton Quint, at a breakfast meeting to be held at the Community Hall at 9:30 a.m.

A faithful worker at Temple Emanuel since 1944, Quint is interested in every phase of temple activity. He has been "Good Cheer" chairman of the Brotherhood for many years, and has brought comfort to the sick over this period of time. He also finds time to be Jewish National Fund Chairman, and through his efforts Temple Emanuel leads all the temples in New England with collections of "blue boxes" and the planting of trees in Israel.

A life time member of the Brotherhood board of directors, he is also an honorary member of the Temple board of directors.

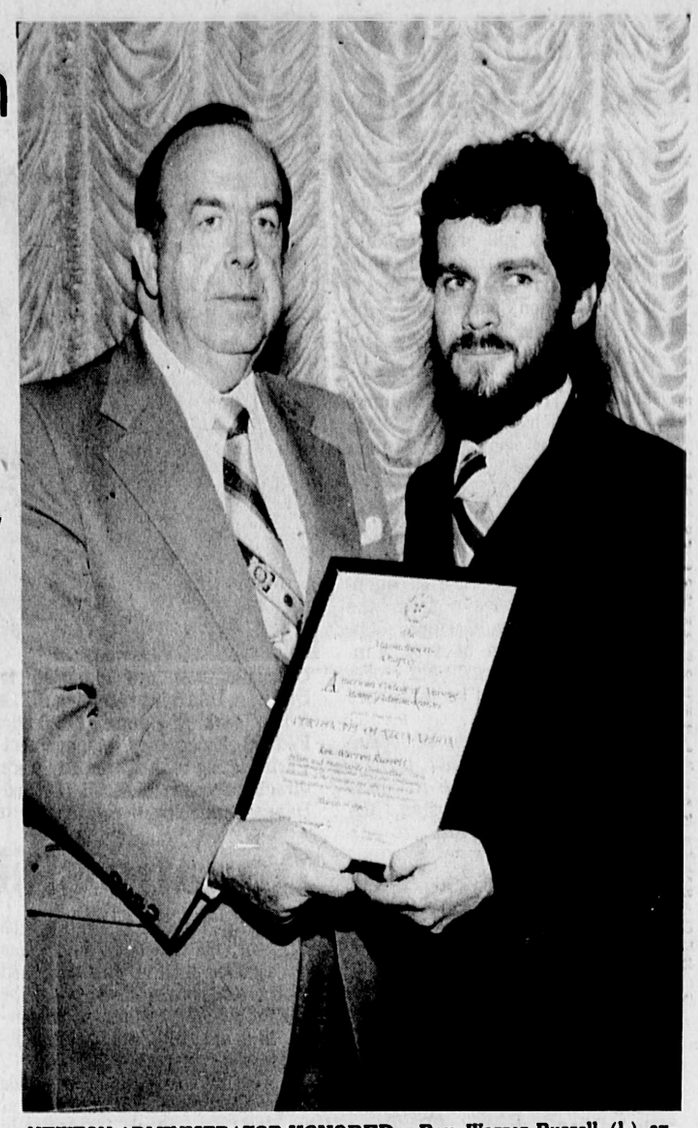

A graduate of Tufts College and a registered pharmacist, Quint is at present associated with his brother-in-law in the appliance and furniture business.

This Sept. 7, Quint and his wife, the former Esther Kulvin, will have been married 50 years. Esther has been active in the Sisterhood for over 30 years as chairwoman of the Happy Day Fund. She also works with the Golden Age Group and is the Hobby Shop coordinator. They have 2 daughters and five grandchildren.

Milton Quint

Mitchell T. Rabkin M.D. general director of the Beth Israel Hospital in Boston will be the guest speaker at the presentation.

NEWTON ADMINISTRATOR HONORED— Rev. Warren Russell, (l.), executive director of the Baptist Home of Massachusetts, Newton, receives a citation from Gregory Karr, president of the Massachusetts Chapter, American College of Nursing Home Administrators, for leadership and high professional standards in long term health care. Russell has served as chairman of the chapter's ethics and standards committee.

Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg will speak at the Rabbi Herman H. Rubenovitz Memorial Lecture to be held at Congregation Mishkan Tefila, 300 Hammond Pond Parkway, on Sunday, April 27, at 8 p.m. The award-winning author and distinguished historia will speak on "The Fifth Generation After 1881," which deals with the life of the contemporary Jew in America. The lecture is free of charge and open to the public.

Author speaks

WEST NEWTON — Dr. Jean Baker Miller, psychiatrist and author of "Toward A New Psychology of Women," will speak about the issues presented in her book at the 10:30 a.m. service on Sunday, April 27, at the First Unitarian Society, 1326 Washington St., West Newton Square. The public is welcome to attend.

In Dr. Miller's book, published in 1976 by the Beacon Press, she argues that the psychological development of both sexes has been limited and distorted by a "framework of inequality." She says that "the maintenance of rigorous sexual stereotypes (dominant males, subordinate females) has prevented men and women alike from achieving their full human potential."

Drawing on her own professional practice as well as the clinical evidence of others concerned with these issues, she examines traditionally defined masculine and feminine characteristics, and proposes a new framework in which concepts such as strength and weakness, dependency and autonomy, emotion, success, and power begin to take on new meaning and values.

Religious rights group to hold first membership meeting

BRIGHTON — The first general membership meeting of the Massachusetts Chapter of the Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights will be held at 3 p.m. on Sunday, April 27 at Aquinas Junior College, 15 Walnut Park in Newton (near Mass. Pike parking facilities and close to MBTA service).

Guest speaker will be National Catholic League executive director, Michael Schwartz, who will speak on the Catholic League's purpose and program both on the national and state chapter levels.

The Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights is an anti-defamation and civil rights union serving not only the Catholic Community in the same way that the Jewish Anti-Defamation League and the American Civil Liberties Union serve their respective communities, but they also protect the rights of all people.

The League recently provided legal counsel in the successful defense of an Evangelical Christian couple prosecuted for violating a state mandatory school attendance law. Allegan County Judge Gary Stewart held that Mr. & Mrs. Peter Nobel of Dorr, Michigan, were within their legal rights in deciding to withdraw their children from public and private schools with which they were dissatisfied.

"We had doctrinal differences," said Mrs. Nobel, "and there was too little religious guidance and bible training and discipline."

In the fall of 1978, Mrs. Nobel, a college graduate with several years of teaching experience, began teaching them at home. The Nobels received a summons informing them that they were in violation of state mandatory school attendance laws. A trial was held in October and the decision was handed down December 13, 1979.

The Rev. Virgil C. Blum, S.J., League national president, said that the U.S. Supreme Court has already affirmed the right of parents to choose their children's education in the Pierce case. The Milwaukee-based Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights provided legal counsel for the couple.

The officers of the Bay State Chapter believe it is imperative that Catholics and others be sensitized to the enduring presence of anti-Catholicism. The League, they remind, is dedicated to fighting bias against all religions. All denominations are under the umbrella of Catholic League protection.

Founded in Washington, D.C. in May 1973, the League is non-partisan and non-political. It is not formally affiliated with the Catholic Church but governed by a board of directors composed of constitutional experts, educators, doctors, editors, religious, community, business and labor leaders.

Michael Schwartz

The purpose of the formation of a local Boston Chapter of the Catholic League is to provide a structure through which the chapter's officers and members can participate in the work of the League; to increase membership in the League; to create high visibility for the League in local areas; to raise the level of consciousness within the Catholic community on issues of concern to the League; to provide psychological support for Catholics in their communities through group reinforcement; to serve as the eyes and ears of the League; to provide the National Office of the Catholic League and the board of directors with local perceptions of major issues, thereby making possible revision and adjustment of the League's programs and policies to meet the needs of the Catholic community. A major function of the League is to raise funds to support their work.

The League Chapter in Massachusetts will defend the rights of all Christians when they are undermined by government, the media or corporations and will defend their beliefs, values and rights.

He leaves his wife, Rachel (Vaughn); a son George W. Jr. of Marblehead, and a sister, Helen Hinman of Exeter.

Arrangements are by the Brewitt Funeral Home in Exeter.

Adult education seminars to be held at temple

NEWTON — Adult Education Sabbath will be observed at Temple Beth Avodah, 45 Puddingstone Lane, Newton, at 8:15 p.m. Friday, April 25. Following a brief worship service conducted by Rabbi Robert Miller, the congregants will have the choice of two seminars.

Rabbi Albert Goldstein return to Temple Beth Avodah to discuss the subject of prayer.

Dr. Jonathan Woocher of Brandeis University will return to the Temple and has chosen for discussion the subject "Anti-Semetism, Anti-Zionism and American Jewish Security." Considering the problems in the mid-East and the effect on the American scene, it will be a stimulating, thought-provoking address.

The Rabbi, board of directors, and the congregation cordially extend an invitation to members of the community to join them for this enlightening discussion and the Oneg Shabbat which follows the service. For further information, please call the Temple office, 527-0045.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

REALTORS in 17 cities and towns in southwestern Norfolk County have launched an anti-vandalism campaign as this year's "Make America Better" project, enlisting the support of fifth and sixth grade students in their area.

As part of the program, the REALTORS are showing a film on vandalism at the more than 40 schools participating in the project. After viewing the film, distributed by the National Association of Realtors, the fifth and sixth graders are asked to create anti-vandalism posters, expressing their feelings on the subject.

A winning poster will be selected at each school to be displayed in a public place, and the winning students will be presented awards durng the REALTORS' "Private Property Week", April 15-21.

The program is being conducted by members of Council I & M, a regional organization of the Brokers Institute, a division of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

Edward F. Smith of the Audrey C. Fields office and Karen Glaser of the Florence Kates office in Canton are coordinating the project as co-chairpersons of the council's Make America Better Committee.

Council I & M represents REALTORS in Bellingham, Canton, Dedham, East Milton, Foxboro, Franklin, Mansfield, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Milton, Norfolk, Norwood, Sharon, Walpole, Westwood, and Wrentham.

CAMELOT(S)
DON'T HAVE TO COST A LOT
Make your winter dreams come true this summer by building your summer home on the finest location on the "Gateway to the Cape".
There's a lot of Camelot on this 30,300 sq ft of prime waterfront land in Wareham. It's on a beautiful, breath-taking knoll overlooking the sparkling Weweanic & Marion shore.
Yet it's only a 50 minute drive from the Greater Boston area even on the busiest of traffic weekends since you don't have to go over either of the clogged Cape Cod Canal bridges.
This Camelot is the nicest area left on the Upper Cape. A one minute walk to a private sandy ocean beach on one side while there's just a saltmarsh between you and the river on the other.
You can build your own private dock riverside or just stroll across the road to an Atlantic inlet and a spectacular view of Buzzards Bay.

CASHIER FOR SELF-SERVICE STATION

NORWOOD

What we need:

An absolutely dependable man or woman to punch a computerized cash register, take in money and credit cards through a little window, and give back the right change.

What you need:

The eye of an eagle, the speed of a magician, and the patience of Job. At times there may be a dozen cars at once pulling in and out of our self-serve islands. And it's you who has to remember that the guy in the red sweater belongs to the blue Chevy at pump #3, and it was he who handed you the $20 bill, and not the credit card (which came from the blue sweater in the red Datsun). You'll work in a neat, comfortable area with a glass window to protect you from unpleasant weather – and, once in a great while, unpleasant customers. You can be young, retired, full-time, part-time, moonlighter... just as long as you're honest, accurate and reliable. Some experience handling cash would be helpful; but if you can convince us you're right for the job, we'll train you from scratch.

What you get:

Good pay, including paid vacations, a work schedule we'll try to match up with your schedule, and the security of working for New England's largest independent oil company. (Full-time cashiers also get free Master Medical and paid holidays.)

What to do:

Apply in person, 7 a.m. to 2 p.m., or stop by at your convenience and fill out an application, at:

489 Walpole St.
Rte. 1A, Norwood

Royal Yachting Assoc. to join olympic boycott

SOUTHAMPTON, England (UPI) — The Royal Yachting Association has decided to join the Olympic boycott movement, but British sports fans will have a consolation prize in this year's America's Cup 12-meter yacht race off Newport, R.I.

Britain is preparing a challenge that its organizers believe finally will bring home the cup, after more than a century in which millions of dollars have been poured into the quest for what has become virtually the holy grail of sailboat racing.

The British challenger, Lionheart, already has proved faster than the rest of the foreign competition, the French France III, the Australia and the Sverige from Sweden.

The 64-foot Lionheart is now sailing sea trials as part of a rigid program that concludes: "September, beat the Americans; October, bring back the cup."

The bulbous silver cup has been in U.S. hands since 1851, when the schooner America beat 14 British boats in a race around the Isle of Wight, a victory that still rankles in this land of dedicated yachtsmen.

U.S. yachtsmen have beaten off 23 challenges. They retain the only major international sporting trophy to have been held by only one country.

"You ask me why the cup is so difficult to win," said Ian Howlett, designer of Lionheart. "My reply is, 'Why should the Americans lose it?'

"They are racing in home waters. They know the winds. Their equipment is superb. They put more money, effort and experience into the venture. The only way we can do better is to build a fundamentally faster boat. Otherwise we don't have a hope."

Lionheart, he believes, is a faster boat. But even with the best boat in the world, every factor has to be just perfect to beat the Americans — and even then an element of luck creeps in.

It is, said Lionheart skipper John Oakley, "literally the most complicated sport in the world."

To win the America's Cup requires a hull honed to perfection: one-sixth of an inch shaved off the keel of Lionheart's 21-ton hull is expected to make an appreciable difference in performance. It needs the best sails and equipment money can buy and a crew that thinks as one. Individualists are not welcomed aboard.

"The skipper is the artist, we are merely his brushes," said shore manager Peter Buchanan.

"Money is useful," said Buchanan, a soldier on extended furlough whose job is to get Lionheart, its 20-man crew and a shipping container of equipment safely to the United States by June 1. "But unless you have a superb boat, skipper and crew, you can forget the America's Cup."

The original America cost $30,000, a sum that would hardly cover the cost of a set of sails for a modern 12-meter yacht like Lionheart. So far, about $1.4 million dollars have been spent on mounting Britain's challenge, a tidy sum for a country battered by economic crisis.

Tony Boyden, a reclusive industrialist who paid for Sovereign, Britain's challenger in 1964, put up $440,000 for Lionheart because, he said, the cup "is a supreme sporting challenge, and it excites me."

Boyden and the Lionheart team believe victory would help jolt Britain out of a national mood of pessimism and cynicism. He defended the expense as moderate when compared to the sums paid for the sale of soccer stars.

Boyden appealed to 1,500 British companies to contribute, but this was not successful. So an organization called Friends of Lionheart was formed, through which people can buy "a bit of the boat," ranging down in price to a steel pin at less than 20 cents.

"Lionheart has become a matter of national pride," Buchanan said.

Now that the Royal Yachting Association has decided to join the Olympic boycott movement, Lionheart's organizers are anticipating a lot more support.

Boyden's original idea was to build two challengers that could train against one another, but there wasn't enough money. Instead, Lionheart has been using the 1964 America's Cup victor, Constellation, as a trial horse.

Through a lack of cash, Lionheart was sailed up the North Sea only three weeks after being launched last year — which is like driving a Formula One racing car along a highway — for a victorious race against the Sverige.

Lionheart beat this year's other three contestants in a series of races off Brighton, England, last year. Rules of the New York Yacht Club (NYYC), keeper of the trophy, prevented U.S. boats from taking part.

Lionheart first must eliminate the Sverige, France III and the Australia to win the right to race against the best of the American defenders. Preliminary races are to begin Aug. 6 with the challenge series proper starting Sept. 16.

Oakley said he believed Ted Turner in Courageous would be the U.S. defender. more

Tobacco planting season is here, money is the crop

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Tobacco planting season has barely started, but David and Pat Proctor already have made $9,600 on a crop they are not going to grow.

The couple have leased their quota — their federally granted right to sell 24,000 pounds of the leaf. With the 40 cents they got for each pound, the Proctors developed the grain crop they are growing on the land where the tobacco would have been.

Cynthia Harris is leasing her 12,869 pounds of tobacco. Unlike the Proctors, Mrs. Harris is not a farmer and never plans to be one. She said she has the quota because she inherited a farm from her father — who rarely tilled the soil, but still had the quota because his father was a farmer.

The Proctors and Mrs. Harris are among the more than 170,000 property owners nationally who capitalize every year on one of America's most unusual property rights: the tobacco quota.

Created in the late 1930s to hold up crop prices by limiting production, the quota for both flue-cured and barley tobacco has evolved into a means for some landholders to make money off the work of others.

Last year about 121,000 of the 193,500 farm owners with quota rights to flue-cured tobacco leased their quotas, the U.S. Department of Agriculture said. Among burley tobacco growers the proportion was smaller: about 52,000 landholders of the 305,000 leased.

Some agriculture officials claim those leases are offered predominately by retired farmers who need the extra cash to hold onto their farms.

That may be true. In North Carolina, where tobacco is a $1 billion crop, the typical farm is smaller than the national average.

But, Billy Yeargin, executive secretary of the Tobacco Growers' Information Committee, says many quota holders are lumber and paper companies, churches and other non-farm groups.

"I would say a very large percentage of those quota owners are not involved in tobacco farming whatsoever," he said.

Yeargin says only full-time tobacco growers should have quota rights. But as to whether present system is unfair, he says, "It would almost be like saying 'Would it be fair for you to rent an apartment that you have inherited from your family?' Who can argue with you that you don't want to live in that apartment, you want to rent it out? It (the quota) is a property right owned by you."

Mrs. Proctor said quota rights are fair because it adds to her farm's value. (One realtor said a farm's worth increases about $2 for each pound in the quota.)

"When we bought the farm, we paid a lot more for the land to get the quota," she said. "We need the leases to help make our payments."

Found elsewhere only in peanuts, rice and a form of cotton, tobacco quotas matter because of the high price that crop brings. In eastern North Carolina an acre of land can easily yield $2,860 worth of flue-cured leaf, compared to just $287 worth of corn and $200 worth of soybeans.

Ernest Miller of the federal Agricultural Soil and Conservation Service said quotas began on a voluntary basis in 1934 in an attempt to keep tobacco production from flooding the market and thus cheapening the crop. The system was made mandatory in 1938 and then dropped in 1939.

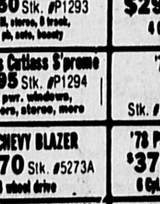

Frasca Auto Rental opens on Rte 1 Norwood

Newly opened Frasca Auto Rentals, a subsidiary of Frasca Auto Sales is owned and operated by Paul Frasca and assisted by his father Tony Frasca who runs the sales and service end of the business.

Frasca Auto Rentals offers a low cost auto rental service offering good dependable used cars at very low prices and never a mileage charge. You can rent daily, weekly, monthly, or whatever your needs may be. Major credit cards are accepted.

So, if your car is stolen, damaged, or in the garage for repairs and you want to stretch your dollar further, Frasca Auto Rentals now has the solution.

Alice Ragsdale:
"When the water came, it was like a dam broke! You can't imagine the total damage, Bill. Possessions washed away—family treasures smashed, covered with mud. It was shocking, devastating."

Bill Cosby:
"How'd you know Red Cross could help?"

Alice Ragsdale:
"My sister urged us to call Red Cross. We've always stood on our own two feet – asking for help isn't easy for us. But this time we had to – for our two daughters.

Red Cross helped us get emergency supplies – food, clothing, cleaning supplies; showed us how to apply for federal disaster assistance. They gave us moral support, too. That meant a lot.

It's true, Bill . . . sometimes we don't appreciate what we've got . . . until we lose it."

Bill Cosby:
"That's why it's so important to keep Red Cross alive and well."

Anger in Judaism is topic of lecture

NEWTON CENTRE — Dr. Solomon Schimmel, professor of education and psychology at Hebrew College, will present a lecture on the subject "Anger and its Control in Judaism and Related Religious Traditions" on Tuesday, April 29, at 9 p.m. at Temple Emanuel, 385 Ward Street, Newton Centre. The lecture, to which the public is invited, is sponsored by the Combined Adult Education Program of four Newton temples: Emanuel, Emeth, Reyim and Mishkan Tefila.

Admission to Dr. Schimmel's lecture is free for persons registered in the courses given by the Combined Adult Education program, $3 for all others.

A free CentralBank bunny ...just for openers.

CentralBank/Chestnut Hill and CentralBank/Needham are giving away gifts to depositors. Just deposit $250 or more into any new or existing savings account,* and we'll give you a free bunny.

If your sweet tooth wins out, you can have the Smucker's Sundae Twosome instead — two sundae dishes and three 6-oz. jars of Smucker's ice cream toppings. Or, you can choose a 72" x 90" blanket for those chilly end-of-winter evenings.

When you deposit $5,000 or more, you can walk away with one of the following: A man's or woman's Timex Watch. Hallmark's classic Chrome Felt-Tip Pen. A three-piece Corning Ware Wildflower set, for beautiful cooking and serving. Or, a complete sixteen piece set of Homer Laughlin Ironstone Dinnerware, which is both durable and attractive.

Visit our Chestnut Hill or Needham office today and take home one of our free gifts just for openers.
